RAI BAHADUR DWARKA PRASHAD JAIN.

A short sketch of the life of Rai Bahadur Dwarka Prashad Jain, Retired Garrison Engineer, Military Engineering Service.

Rai Bahadur Dwarka Prashad was born on the 25th December 1855 in the illustrious "Qilawala" family at Nehtaur District, Bijnor. He is an Agrawala Jain and his father Seth Lala Than Singh was a very religious man. The tradition goes that his forefathers had a fortress and so the family is still known as "Qilawala." His father, however, was not very rich and influential, like his ancestors, but was quite well-to-do. He got admission in the Roorkee Engineering College at an early age of 18 and passed out his final examination in two years i.e., 1875. His first appointment was at Sitapur near Lucknow, where he got training under Mr. Blackie and Mr. Perdie, Assistant Engineers and in about 4 years succeeded them and became a Sub-divisional Officer in their place. He remained as such at Sitapur, Lucknow, Jabalpur, Royal Gun-powder Factory, Ishapur, Kidderpur Dock Yard, Calcutta, Fort Williams, etc., etc.

He all along discharged his duties economically, conscientiously and to the satisfaction of his superior officers and earned the reputation of being an expert Engineer in Water Works. His services in connection with the Water Works at Ishapur, Bareilly, Meerut and Rani Khet were much appreciated, and in these he made a saving of over half a lakh in the sanctioned estimates. In 1901 he was decorated with the title of Rai Sahib. His work at Shahjahanpur in connection with the Boer camp was also much appreciated and in 1902 he was given a " Certificate of Honour " by the late Emperor Edward VII, and was subsequently awarded Coronation Medals too. In 1918 the title of " Rai Bahadur " was conferred upon him as a mark of high distinction. He was also the first Indian who was made Garrison Engineer of Fort William. This high post is generally filled up by the Royal Engineers.

After he reached the age of 55, the Government considering his services valuable was pleased to grant him extension for 5 years. Even when he was 60 his superior officers considered him fit and indispensable, and moved the Director General, Military Engineering Services in India for his further retension in service, but as he had no power to do so, he referred the matter to the Government of India who in their letter No. 13468/1 (M. W. 1) dated Simla the 6th September 1915 sanctioned his retention in Service until further orders. He ultimately retired from Government service in 1918 on his own accord, though his superior officers still desired that he should continue in service for sometime more.

His father had given him certain instructions when he had entered service and the following are the three main pieces of advice :—(a) Always take some exercise for the sake of your health (b) Never borrow money ; even avoid taking things on credit or loan (c) Earn money honestly and spend it economically. He followed these instructions religiously all along, and though 79 now, he takes some light exercise at home every morning, besides taking morning and evening walks. He spends as little as possible on his own person, but his charity, and specially for helping the poor students, has been unlimited. He has helped without making a show of it hundreds of students and many of them are now happily earning their livelihood. During the Great German War he contributed liberally towards the War Loans and different other funds and even offered his half-pay for the whole period the war would be going on. The Government expressed their high expression of his loyalty. At present he gives away half of his pension in charity.

He was blessed with a son while at Sitapur on the 11th July 1883. He gave his son Nand Kishore Jain proper education so that when the latter passed out his B.A. examination he was awarded with three gold medals, and in 1905 the Government was pleased to appoint him a Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector. He is still in the Government service and is a worthy son of a worthy father.

INTRODUCTION

On reading some Buddhist works in the original Pali, some translations in English and some independently written English books on Buddhism, I found out that old Buddhism resembled Jainism in many points. In order to know Pali Buddhism I went to Ceylon and stayed for a month in the Vidyalankara - College, Kelaniya, from the 14th May to 13th June 1932. Also I went to some other famous Buddhist places to know the religious ways and customs. In the College I gained much information on Buddhism from the Buddhist monk Ananda Kausalyayana and Rāhula Sankrityayana, the editor of "Buddha Charya."

I thought it advisable to write a book in which I might show the similarities between the Jaina and Buddhist philosophies by quoting passages from the literatures of both ; so that the readers may be convinced of their oneness and of their common source.

So far as I understand, the nature of Nirvāna and its path as shown in the Buddhist Pali Books are not different from the nature of Nirvāna and its path as given in the old Jain Books.

From the description given in this book, the readers will know that Goutama Buddha on leaving his home, adopted the conduct of a naked saint, like a Digambar Jain ascetic for some time. Afterwards he proclaimed his middle path in which clothes were allowed for the monks. But the philosophy was not changed by him.

Whatever literature in Pali compiled in the 1st Century A.D. is available, specially describes internal conduct. Such questions as depend on inference and logic were not answered by Goutama Buddha to the general public, such as 'what is soul ?, ' what is Nirvāna ?, ' what happens after death ?'. But these questions have been answered and described in such a way that no discussion may arise, while the reasonable men may understand the answers correctly, and may be engaged in making efforts for Nirvāna.

Although the Jains acknowledge one philosophy, there have now been two divisions among them, DIGAMBAR AND SVETAMBAR. Similarly the Buddhist Order was established separate from the Jain Order on allowing clothes to monks by Goutama Buddha even at the time of Lord Mahavira, i.e., before Mahavira began to preach in His age of 42 when He became dr̥shṭi and omniscient. At the time of Mahavira there appears to have existed some rivalry between them, which is proved from some Buddhist sutras which do not speak favourably of some Jain Views ; although this unfavourable description will be found to be incorrect when Jain literature is consulted properly and compared with the Buddhist sayings. I give below the names of some of the Sutras in which Mahavira has been spoken of as Nigantha Nāṭaputta. These are the instances of rivalry which existed between the Jains and the Buddhists at least at the time when the Buddhist literature was compiled in the first century A.D. in Ceylon.

From "Buddha Charya" the following such sutras are quoted here. (1) P. 91. Jatila sutta (S. N. (3-1-1). Raja Presanajita of Kausala spoke to Goutama, "O Goutama, the Lord of Saints and Brahmans, the leader of saints, the teacher of saints, learned, famous, Tirthankara well-honoured by many people just as Nigantha Nāṭaputta.".....

(2) Page 110 Asibandhakaputta sutta (An. N. A. K. 2-4-5) and (S.N. 40-1-9).

"Once the Exalted One Goutama with an assembly of monks went to Nalinda, where Nigantha Nataputta was staying with a very large assembly of Niganthas (Jain monks)."

(3) Page 148. Siha Sutta (A.N. 8-2-1. 2).

"Once Lord Goutam was at Vesali, then the commander-in-chief Sinh, a layman srāvaka of Niganthas was sitting in the assembly.....Sinha went to where Nigantha Nataputta was seated.....Goutam says, "Sinha, your family has been serving Niganthas for a very long time, when they arrive, you should not refrain from giving them alms."

(4) Page 228 Chula Dukkha Kandha Sutta (M.N. 1-2-4). Goutama says, "Once I was walking on Gridha Kuta hill of Rajagraha and there many Nirganthas (Jain Saints) were suffering strong having a vow of standing on Kāla silā of Riśigiri. Goutama asked, "Niganthas! why are you suffering?" Then they said, "Nigantha Nāṭaputta (Jain Tirthankara Mahavira) ■ all-knowing, all perceiving. He is always in Knowledge and perception.....

(5) Page 265. Maha sukuladai sutta (M.N. 2-3-6).

Nigantha Nattaputta has come in Rajagraha for rainy season.....

(6) Page 280. Chula—sukuladai sutta (M.N. 2-3-9).

"Who are claiming to be all-knowing, all-perceiving, knowing all knowledge and perception—? O Lord! Nigantha Nattaputta".....

(7) Page 341. Deva daha sutta (M.N. 3-1-1).

"Those Nigantas told me 'Nigantha Nattaputta is all-knowing, all-perceiving, having all knowledge and perception."

(8) Page 445. Upali Sutta (M.N. 2-2-6).

At that time nigantha nattaputta with a great assembly of Niganthas (Jain Saints) was roaming at Nalinda—"

"Lord Buddha said to Upali," "Your family has been serving the Niganthas for a very long time, when they arrive, you should not refrain from serving them with alms."—

"O Lord! Goutam orders me to give alms to Niganthas."

"A great ascetic went to where Nigantha Nattaputta was sitting."

"Abhayarajakumara went to where Nigantha Nāṭṭaputta was sitting."

"Some one said Nigantha Nāṭṭaputta."

(11) Page 481. Samagamasutta (M.N. 3-1-4).

Once Goutama Buddha was touring in Sākya country, then Nigantha Nāṭṭaputta (Jain Tirthankara Mahavira) had his Nirvana at Pava.

Note. According to "Buddha Charya" (505 V. S.-428), Goutama was then 77 years of age. His full age was 80.

"The famous dignified Tirthankara Nigantha Nāṭṭaputta.".....

(13) Majjhim Nikaya Chula Saropam Sutta 30.

"ये ईमे भो गोतम समाज ब्राह्मण संघिनो यथावरिया कातायसस्तिसनो तिथकरा सामुसमता बहुजनस्त सेष्यस्तिथं निगंत लायपुनोः"

"Ye īme bho Gotama samana brāhmaṇa sangino gaṇā chariyā jnātā yasassino titthakar sadhu sammata-bahujanassa seyyathidam nigantha nāṭṭaputto."

"O Goutama, those who have an assembly of saints and Brahmans, leader of assembly, knowing, famous, well honoured by many people, just as Nigantha Nāṭṭaputta."

(14) Digha Nikaya III 29 Basādika Suttanta.

"Eka samayam Bhagavā sakkesu viharati—tena kho pana samayena Nigantha Nathputta pāvāyam adhāna kāla kato hoti....."

"Once Lord Goutama was touring in Sakya country, then Nirgrantha Nathputta breathed his last at Pāvā....."

(15) Majjhima Nikaya mahasachchikasutta 36.

"Sachchaka Nigganthaputto-mahāvanam upasankāmi.

"Nigantha natha puttam vāden."

"Sachchaka, the follower of Nirgrantha went to the great forest. Nirgrantha nathaputra by discussion....."

From the above quotations it also appears that at the time of Goutama Buddha the followers of Nirgrantha were prevalent from a very long time and that Lord Mahavira was recognized as Tirthankara and Omniscient.

Just at the present time we see in India Digambar and Svetambara Jains following their religious duties side by side, but with rivalry, in the same way the Jains and Buddhists were living side by side, but with rivalry in the olden days.

From "Buddha Charya" page 577 it appears that Mahendra, son of Asoka went to Ceylon in V.S. 190, when 236 years had passed after the Nirvāna of Gotama.

It is also known that either Jainism was prevalent in Ceylon, before this time or the preachers of Jainism must have gone to Ceylon along with Mahendra.

The Buddhistic Book Maha-Vansa says that there were Nirgranthas at Anuradhapura in Ceylon.

A Buddhist king was displeased with them and turned them away and in their religious place he constructed a Buddha temple. The Pali words are :—

Mahavansa chapter 33.

“ वा सितो व सदा आसी एकवीसति राजासुतं दिल्लाम
पलायंतं निगंयो शिरिनामको पलायति महाकाल सीहलोति
भुसंरवितं, सुताम भग्नराजा सिंहेमम मनोरथे विहारं प्रथकारे-

“ Vā sito vā sadā āsi eka visati rājasutam dis

“ The 21st Raja was living (at Anuradhapura) a Nirgrantha (Jain whether saint or layman) seeing him fleeing away said loudly that Maha Kala Sinhala was fleeing. Hearing this, Maharaja Sinhala resolved in his mind that when his object would be fulfilled, then he would construct a temple here. He killed Dāthika Damila and ascended the throne himself, then he destroyed the shrine of Nirgranthas and constructed (Buddha) temple with twelve pravinas.”

Note. This is said to have occurred about 2 centuries B.C.

The above statement shows that there were Jains along with the Buddhists in Ceylon, but they were not in good terms. On reading this book it will be known that whatever philosophy is described in the old Pali books has been explained in details in the Jain Scriptures. On consulting the Jain literature, the glory of the Buddhist Scriptures can be realised better.

The present-day scholars also maintain that old Buddhism was somewhat different from the present Buddhism. Some of their statements are given below:—

1. Sacred Books of the East Vol. XI (1881).

Translation by W. Rhys Davids from Pali edited by Max Muller:—

Intro. Page XXI. “It will be acknowledged that the suttas have preserved for us at least the belief of the earliest Buddhists—the Buddhists of India—as to what the original doctrines taught by the Buddha himself, had been.”

Page XXII. “The first record we have of the Buddhist Scriptures being reduced into writing is the well-known passage in Dipa Vansa, which speaks of their being recorded in books in Ceylon towards the beginning of the first century before the commencement of our era.” The date of Dipavansa may be placed about the 4th century A.D.”

Buddhism of the Pali Pitakas is not only a different thing from Buddhism as hitherto commonly received, but is antagonistic to it.

Page XXXIV. No record of his actual words could have been preserved. It is quite evident that the speeches placed in the Teacher's mouth, though formulated in the first person, in direct narrative, are only intended to be summaries, and very short summaries, of what was said on these occasions."

II. "The Doctrine of the Buddha" by George Grimm.

Preface page XVI. "The fixing of the Tipitaka in writing followed only a few decades before the beginning of our era under King Vattagamini in Ceylon, to which island the Canon had been brought by Mahinda, the son of King Asoka. This definite fixing of the Pali Canon took place about 400 years after the Buddha's death." The present work sets forth the original genuine teaching of the Buddha.

III. The life of the Buddha by Edward J. Thomas, M.A., (1927).

Intro—Page XVIII. "As the authoritative teaching represented by the dogmatic utterances and discourses of the Founder were not recorded in writing, but were memorised by each school, differences inevitably began to appear."

Page XXII. "They (the Pali Chronicles of Ceylon) are corroborated in their main out-lines by the Puranic and Jain traditions. The chronological relations with general history have been determined by the discovery of Sir William Jones that the Candagutta (Candragupta) of the Chronicles and Puranas is the Sandrocottos of Strabo and Justin, the Indian King who about 303 B.C.

made a treaty with Seleucus Nicator and at whose court Megasthenes resided for some years as ambassador."

Page 204. "They all agree in holding that the primitive teaching must have been something different from what the earliest Scriptures and commentators thought it was."

If the philosophies of the Jains and the old Buddhists were the same with only difference in some external conduct of monks, especially in this that Nirgrantha saints were naked and the Buddhist monks wore clothes, then it is to be found out whether Mahavira began his preaching or not when Goutam Buddha left home and followed external conduct of a Digambar Jain Saint for some time.

Whether Lord Mahavira had commenced his preaching or not it is certain that knowledge of Jainism was prevalent before Lord Mahavira began his sermon. Buddha Charya P. 481 Samagama Sutta (M. N. 3-1-4) says "When Goutama Buddha was 77 years of age Mahavira attained Nirvâna in his age of 72. It is evident from the Jain Scriptures that Mahavira did not begin his preaching before his age of 42. He preached during his last 30 years. It means that when Goutama Buddha was of 47 years of age, Mahavira's teachings were commenced. Goutama Buddha left home in his age of 29 and began his preaching after 6 years i.e., at the age of 35. It proves that the Preaching of Mahavira began 12 years after the commencement of the preaching of Goutama Buddha. Then whatever conduct of Digambar Jain Saints was prevalent in India at the time when Goutama left home at 29 and began preaching at 35, was due to the teaching of some one previous to Mahavira. The Jaina Saint Devasena writes in his Darsanasara that Goutama Buddha became the disciple of Pihitasrava Jain saint, who was in the line of Lord Parsva Nath, the 23rd Tirthankara of the Jains. This proves that Parsvanath flourished before Mahavira. The period of 250 years is the interval time between the Nirvāna of Parsva and that of Mahavira. When Mahavira was born, Parsva had attained nirvāna only 178 years before.

As yet the name of Parsva has not been found in many inscriptions or historical records ; therefore he may not be taken as a historical great man ; but it is perfectly proved that Jainism or the old Buddhism was prevalent before Lord Mahavira and Goutama Buddha began their teachings.

In my opinion there is not any difference between Jainism and Buddhism. Whether we speak of Jainism or Buddhism before Gautama Buddha we speak of one and the same thing. Gautama Buddha made easy the external conduct of the monks only. He maintained the same philosophy which was prevalent in Jainism or old Buddhism. This fact will be known to the readers if they study these books carefully. That there was Jainism before the preaching of Buddha was commenced, will be known from some of the opinions of the scholars, given below :—

P. 25. I. The life of the Buddha by E. J. Thomas (1927).

Intro. P. XIV. "There were gymnosophists or naked saints in India, but they were not Buddhists."

II. Ancient India as described by Magasthenes and Arrian (1887).

Page 104. "Philosophy, then with all its blessed advantages to man, flourished long also among the Indians, the gymnosophists."

P. 105. Sarmanes called Germans by Strabo and Sumarians by Parphyrius, are the ascetics of a different religion, and may have belonged to the sect of the Jains or to another.

Page 115. When Alexander arrived at Taxila, and saw the Indian gymnosophists (Jain Munis), a desire seized him to have one of these men brought into his presence. The oldest of these sophists with whom the others lived as disciples with a master Daulanus by name, not only refused to go himself, but prevented the others going. He is said to have won over Kalanus one of the sophists of the place.

P. 122. Socrates speaks of the soul as at present confined in the body as in species of prison. This was the doctrine of Pythagoras, even in its most striking peculiarities, bears such a close resemblance to the Indians as greatly to favour the supposition that it was directly borrowed from it. There was even a tradition that Pythagoras had visited India.

III. Science of Comparative religions by Major General J.G.R. Forlong, F.R.S.E., F.R.A.S.M.A.I. etc. (1877).

This book shows that Jainism and old Buddhism were one and the same religion, and that this religion was prevalent in India and outside of India from a very, very long time and that its influence was impressed upon the Jewish religion and Christianity also.

Intro. P. XIV. "The selection of these Short Studies has enabled us to virtually embrace and epitomize all the faiths and religious ideas of the world, as well as, to lay bare the deep-seated tap root from which they sprang, viz., the crude yatism, jati or asceticism of thoughtful Jatis or Jinas, who in man's earliest ages have in all lands separated themselves from the world and dwelt from pious motives in lone forests and mountain caves."

Intro. P. XIX. "It is clear also that the Gotama of early Tibetans, Mongols and Chinese must have been a Jaina; for the latter say he lived in the 10th and 11th centuries B.C. Tibetans say he was born in 916, became a Buddha in 881, preached from his 35th year and died in 831 B.C. dates which closely correspond with those of the saintly Parsva."

Page 2. "Through what historical channels did Buddhism influence early Christianity? We must widen the inquiry by making it embrace Jainism—the undoubtedly prior faith of very many millions through untold millenniums—though one little known in Europe except to the few."

Page 20. "So slight seemed to Asoka the difference between Jains and Buddhists that he did not think it necessary to make a public profession of Buddhism till about his 12th regnal year (247 B.C.) ; so that nearly if not all his Rock inscriptions are really those of a Jaina Sovereign."

P. 29. From Aini-akbari of Abul Fazl it is clear that Asoka supported Jainism in Kashmir, when Viceroy of Ujjain about 260 B.C., as had his father Bindusara and grand-father Chandragupta throughout the Magadha Empire. Buddhism was apparently for about a century after Gotama's death thought, by all who did not trouble themselves with details to be a mere form of Jainism. Among and beyond these millions, Asoka laboured assiduously to propagate his mild and kindly Jainism, especially concerning the sacredness of all life, as well as peace, charity, and universal brother-hood. In all his rock-inscriptions he designates himself by the favourite Jaina title "Deva nam piya," the Beloved of God ?

" This then was the theory and practice of the great Jaino-Buddhist religion which flourished in India many centuries before and after the teaching of Gotama Sakya Muni.....It was certainly long prior to Parsva and Mahavira.....Whilst India was certainly the fruitful centre of religion from the 7th century B.C., yet Trans Himalaya, Oxiana, Baktria, and Kaspiana seem to have still earlier developed similar religious views and practices ; and Indian Jains and Buddhists claim and almost historically show, that about a score of their saintly leaders perambulated the Eastern World long prior to the 7th Century B.C. We may reasonably believe that Jaino-Buddhism was very anciently preached by them from China to the Kaspian.....It existed in Oxiana and north of the Himalayas 2000 years before Mahavira.

Page 32. In these moves, we see how Baktrian faiths passed West and how in the 7th and 6th centuries B.C. or earlier, Xalmoxis and Pythagoras were preaching and teaching like the Butha gurus of Jains and Buddhists.

Strabo says "They were a Thrakian sect who lived without wives. Their brethren the Masi religiously abstained from eating anything that had life." -

Homer, of the 7th century B.C. or earlier, called them," most just men.....livers on milk.....devoid of desire for riches. John the Baptist, Jesus and their disciples are common examples of Essenik life in Asia.

Josephus says the Essenik brethren like the ancient Dacae neither married, drank wine, nor kept servants, living apart. They offer no sacrifices and teach the immortality of the soul as do Jains.

P. 35. He (Zalmoxis) taught more than the Jaina doctrine of the immortality of the soul.

P. 36. "He taught the Indian doctrines of.....transmigration etc.....and considered no animal should be injured—all having souls like men."

P. 40. "The Savans of Alexander found Jaino-Buddhism strongly in the ascendant throughout Baktria, Oxiana and all the Passes to and from Afghanistan and India."

P. 46. Aristotle saying (about 330 B.C.) that "the Jews of Cæle-Syria were Indian philosophers called in the East Calani and Ikshvaku or sugar-cane people and only Jews, because they lived in Judea. These Jews (evidently Essenes) derived from Indian philosophers wonderful fortitude in life, diet and continence. They were, in fact Jaina-Bodhists, whom the great Greek confounded with Syrians.

Page 67-202-193 B.C. Rise of Chinese Han dynasty, before which say compilers of Sui dynasty of about 600 A.C. Buddhism was unknown in China, so that all prior to 200 B.C. was Jain-Bodhism.

From the above statements also the readers will know that the philosophy of the Jains and Buddhas is the same and that this Jain-Buddhist religion was prevalent in the world many thousand years before Christ and that the Jewish and the Christian religions were also influenced by it. Both Jainism and Buddhism flourished side by side in many places. There are many old places in India which have old relics of both the religions. Let me enumerate a few.

(1) Sarnath (Benares). It is the birth place of 11th Jain Tirthankar Sri Sreyamnsa Nath. Still there is a Jain temple and Dharmasala. Jains visit this as a place of pilgrimage. Just opposite to the Jain temple there is an old Buddhist stupa.

This is the place where Gautama Buddha preached his first sermon of middle path. On excavations along with many Buddhist images, Jain idols are also found; which are kept outside the museum.

(2) Rajagraha (Bihar). Here are five mountains on which there are Jain temples. Here the Buddhists also visit and generally they pay respect to the Jain images.

(3) Sravasti or Saheth Maheth (Gonda U.P. in Balrampur State).

This is the birth place of Sambhava Nath the third Tirthankara of the Jains. Some Jain images were found here. They are kept in the Lucknow Museum. This is the chief religious place of the Buddhists also.

(4) Nâsik (Bombay P.) Pandulena Caves. Here are many Buddhist caves with images and stupas. There is also a Jain cave with Jain images.

(5) Ellora caves (near Aurangabad, Hyderabad, Nizam state). Here are many caves of the Buddhists and the Jains side by side with their own images.

(6) Taxila (Rawalpindi). Here are many Buddha stupas and images. Some sites are found out which appear to belong to the Jain temples. Vide Guide to Taxila by Sir John Marshall (1921).

Page 7. At Jandial a little to the north of Kachcha Kota are two conspicuous mounds, on one of which is a spacious temple dedicated, there is good reason to believe, to fire worship, and a little beyond these again, are the remains of two smaller stupas which may have been either Jain or Buddhist probably the former.

P. 68. Sircap city—Among these buildings is a spacious apsidal temple of Buddhist and several smaller shrines belong either to Jain or to Buddhist.

P. 74. In several houses, is a stupa shrine occupying in each case a court which opens with the high street. The best preserved of these shrines are to be seen in blocks G and F—both probably of Jain origin. The reason for regarding these stupas as of Jain rather than Buddhist origin is that they closely resemble certain Jain stupas depicted in reliefs from Mathura.

As far as the old literature of Jainism and Buddhism will be comparatively and minutely studied, so far there would appear similarity in their root principles. I could not read Svetambara Jain literature which is in Prakrit. I have compared Buddhism only with what is known from Digambar Jain literature. If any scholar will take up the task of comparing Buddhism with what is given in the Svetambara Jain literature there will appear a special glory of their similarity. I have made efforts to write this only with the view that the research scholars of philosophy in the world may be able to recognise their oneness.

With my scanty knowledge I have dealt with the subject with a pure heart; if there should be any mistakes the learned may kindly inform me of them; for which I shall ever be grateful to them.

JAINISM AND BUDDHISM.

CHAPTER I

NIRVANA, MOKSHA OR LIBERATION

THE meaning of the word Nirvāna is extinction, while the word Moksha means "liberation." Extinction of the mundane condition is Nirvāna; and liberation from the same is Moksha. Both the terms thus contain and express the same idea. It is generally supposed that Buddhism preaches the philosophy of "transitoriness" or "destruction;" that it does not believe in the indestructibility of the soul or in the permanence of Nirvāna. It is this supposition which has led to the general notion that the word Nirvāna means total destruction or annihilation. The old Pali books of Buddhism, however, show that the Nirvāna of Buddhism is not "annihilation," but is a positive condition of the soul. As a result of elucidative discussions with the Principals of the Vidyalankar College, Kelaniya, and the Vidyodaya College, Colombo, (Ceylon) and with the English-educated Buddhist Monk, Narad Maitreya of Vajrarama Bambalpitiya (Ceylon), as well as with other Buddhist monks of Ceylon, I have come to know that Nirvāna is neither annihilation nor non-existence of the soul, but that it is an indescribable condition. Relying on the description of Nirvâna, as given in the Pali books, they strongly maintain that Nirvâna is not annihilation.

The "Hindu Organ," Jaffna, (Ceylon) dated the 19th May, 1932, contains an article on the subject of Nirvana by the Buddhist Monk B. Anand Maitreya, Belangoda, (Ceylon). Therein says the learned monk :—

Nirvâna is not nothingness. As regards those things which do not tend to freedom from sorrow, the Buddha was silent. This is because his only aim was to lead the suffering world to real happiness. Nirvâna is holiness. Though it is neither this nor that, Nirvâna is not nothingness, yet it is a third possibility."

In "Buddhist Wisdom, The mystery of the self", George Grimm (Munich, Germany, akademiestrasse 19/II) says :—

"It is characteristic of modern materialism to have chosen the first alternative, that of absolute annihilation, despite the Buddha's repeated assurances that he does not teach annihilation, but on the contrary, shows a way to the Imperishable, the Deathless." (Page 86.) Again he says :—

"The Buddha further explains and teaches that extinction applies only to the three "flames" of lust, hate and delusion (the three kinds of thirst for sensation) and for this reason he defines Nibbânam, the goal of sainthood, as Tanha Nibbânam, literally, the extinction of thirst. The holy life with the sublime one is lived for the extinction of craving." (Page 57.)

In Majjhima Nikâya Bhaya Bhairava Sutta 4th, in the Pali language, we find that Goutam Buddha has shown how he advanced himself and then declared that Nirvâna is not extinction, but is a blissful condition. The Pali text is:—

* "So evam samâhite chitte pari-suddhe pariyyodâte anangame vigatupakkilese mudubhute kamunâiyê thite ñijjapatte ñasavînâm khaya ñiniya chittam abhininnamesim so:—iyam dukkhanti yathâ bhutam abhannasim ..ayam dukkhasamudayoti ; yathabhutam ubhannasim, ayam dukkha nirodho ti yathabhutam ubhannasim, ayam dukkha-nirodha-gamini patipada ti yathabhutam abhannasim ; ime ñava ti yathabhutam abhannasim, ayam ñava-samudayoti yathabhutam abhannasim, ayam kho me brahmaṇa rattiya pachhime

An English rendering of the text would be as follows. "Having thus pacified the mind, purified it, made it dirtless, having got rid of miseries, having become blissful, having brought the mind under control, on the destruction of āsavās or impure thoughts, I realized thus:—It is misery, its true nature is known; it is the cause of misery, its true nature is known; it is the preventing of misery, its true nature is known; it is the way leading to prevention of misery, its true nature is known; these are the āsavās, now truly known: these are the causes of āsavās, now truly known; this is the prevention of āsavās now truly known; this is the way of prevention of āsavās, now truly known. When thus I knew, and thus I realised, thought activities of desire left my mind, I became free from desires. It was realized by me, that my birth is destroyed, my chastity is fulfilled, whatever I had to do I had done, nothing remained for me to be done. Thus I knew. In this way O Brahman, I procured this third knowledge in the last quarter of the night. Then ignorance fled away, knowledge appeared, darkness was removed, the Light burst forth, just as is possible to a wandering monk who is free from carelessness, is alert and absorbed in meditation of the Truth."

The above description shows that when the thought of Nirvāna, full or partial, is awakened, knowledge shines forth, desires cease to be, the causes of impure thought activity or āśavās are removed. It further shows, that Nirvāna is not extinction, but a blissful condition, free from attachment and full of knowledge.

The words āśava and apramatta found here frequently occur in Jain Literature, where lust, hate and delusion are included in the term āśavās, and it is stated that a monk without carelessness is capable of being liberated.

In "Samayasara," the Jain Saint Kunda-Kundacharya, says in the chapter on Āśavā :—

* *Rāgō dōsā mōhōya āśavā nāthi sammadiṭṭhisā,
Tahma āśava bhāvēṇa, viṇa hēdū na pachchayā hōnti.*

* रागो दोसो मोहो य आसवा णत्थि सम्मदिट्टिस्स ।

तहमा आसव भावेण विणा हेदू ण पच्चया होंसि ॥ १९८ ॥

" Lust, hate and delusion, impure thoughts, causing the inflow (of karmas) are not found in a right-believer, therefore in the absence of these Inflow-causing thoughts, the material karmas, in existence with a soul, can never be the cause of bondage."

The Jain Saint Kula-bhadra-acharya says in his "Sarasamuchchaya":—

"Jnan bhāvanayā siktā nibhritenantarātmāna, Aparamattam gūḍam prāpya, labhante hitamātmānah.

" Those who are engaged in meditation of true knowledge, come to know the inner self, and having got rid of carelessness acquire the goal of the soul."

Majjhima-nikāya, sattipaththana suttam (the tenth), describes four kinds of concentrated meditations as helpful to Nirvāṇa, (1) meditation upon the transitory and impure nature of the body, (2) indifference to pleasure or pain, (3) meditation for getting rid of lust, hate and delusion, and for acquisition of non-attachment, (4) meditation on the different natures of things, such as, upon the nature of the causes of troubles and āsrava, upon the nature of the impurity caused by sensual enjoyment, and upon the nature of self absorption. In the last part of this Sutra, the following words show the result of such meditations.

५. ज्ञान भावनया सिक्ता निषुतेनान्तरात्मवः ।

अप्रमत्तं गुणं प्राप्य, समन्ते हितमात्मवः ॥ २१८॥

* "Yahi kochi Bhikkhuve imē chattārō sati-paṭṭhā-nē evam bhāvayya sattāham, tassa duvinnam phalānam annataram phalam patikankham: ditthe va dhamme Annā, sati va upādhi sese anāgāmitā...evam ayam bhikkhute maggo sattānan visuddhiya sakapariddavanam samatikkamaya dukkha-domanassavam atthagamīya nāyassa adhigamāya, nibbanassa sachchhikiriyaya yadidam chattaro satipatthanati, iti yam tam vuttam iyametam patichcha vuttanti idamavoccha Bhagawa, attamanā ti bhikkhu bhagawato bhāsitam abhinandunti.

"Any monk who thus dwells upon these four meditations even for seven days, will achieve either of the two results: he may realise Nirvāna while residing in this body or if the practice is defective he will not suffer transmigrations. O monks! This is a way for purification of beings, for removal of sorrow and weeping, for freedom from misery and impure mind, for realization of Truth, for direct perception of Nirvâna—such are these four meditations. They should be believed in as stated. So spoke the Lord. The monks greeted the saying of the Lord with joy."

The above statement clearly shows that Nirvâna is not annihilation but is self-realization. It is the direct perception of the self, it is full and complete pure thought activity.

Majjhima-nikâya, Mula pariyâya sutta, 1st.

This sutra says:—"I am apart from all worldly objects." It removes delusion. The following extract from it will show that Nirvâna is something positive, not annihilation.

"O Monks! The monk who is worshipful, who has destroyed asavas, is fully chaste, has done what had to be done, has thrown away the burden, has attained truth, has destroyed the bondage of birth, has become rightly learned, is non-attached, knows earth to be earth, and does not maintain that earth to be his own. In the same way, he knows water as water, fire as fire, he does not maintain that water is his and fire is his. Because he has become delusionless, on destruction of delusion. In the same way, Tathagata (Gotam Buddha) is also worshipful, has right knowledge, he also knows earth as earth: he does not maintain earth to be his own. He knows that Thirst is the root-cause of misery. Becoming is cause of birth. The living being suffers old age and death."

"O monks! This is the reason why Tathagata on destruction of all thirst, being non-attached from it, having prevented it, having removed it, being freed from it, becomes the right knower, having gained the highest right knowledge. Thus I say. The Lord spoke thus. The monks greeted His saying with joy."

The above statement refers to one who has acquired the liberated condition, even when residing in the body. The words Arahanta, khināsrava, vitamōha, are found in Jain Literature also. The qualities of arahanta, have been described by Nemicandra, a great Jain Saint in his work "Dravya Samgraha" as below :—

* Nattha chadu ghāikammo dāmaraṇa suha pāṇi viriya maio.

Suha dehattho appū suddha arīho vichintijjo.

"The soul which has destroyed the four destructive Karmas, Knowledge-obscuring, Conation-obscuring, Deluding and Obstructing Karmas and has attained infinite Conation, infinite Knowledge, infinite Happiness and infinite Power, is residing in a fine body, and is pure; He should be meditated upon as arahanta."

The Jain Saint Amritchandra-acharya in his Tattvartha-sara, uses an expression similar to khināsrava.

* णाडु चक्कु धाइ कम्मो दंसण सुह आण बीरिय मईओ ।
सुह देहत्थो अण्णा सुन्दो आरीहो विचितिज्जो ॥ २० ॥

^३ *Jānataḥ pasyataschordhvam jagat kārunyataḥ

Tasya bandhaprasango na sarvāśarva pari kṣayāt.

"On the destruction of all the āśavās, one who knows and sees the world does not become liable to bondage."

Vitamoha, which means the same thing as kshīnamōha, is used by him in Samayasara :—

⁴ Jidamōhassa du jaiyā khinō mōhō havijja sāhussa

Taiyā du khina mōhō bhaunadi so nichchhayā vidūhim.

"When delusion is destroyed in a saint who has already conquered delusion, then he is called delusionless by the knowers of reality."

Majjhima-nikāya, Ariya-pariyesana suttam 26. This sutra shows that Goutam Buddha on leaving home had the company of Alara Kalama, Uddaka Ramputta and on reaching Uruvela he attained knowledge. The last part refers to Nirvāna, which he searched after.

“That Nirvāna which is to be searched after, is uncreated, unrivalled, realizable through concentration, free from oldness, devoid of diseases, deathless, sorrowless, painless. I have really known this nature of it. It is deep, hard to see, peaceful, highest, beyond argument or logic, and realizable only by the highly learned.”

In the face of the above statements about Nirvāna, how can it be taken to mean extinction. Really speaking Nirvāna is the pure essence of the soul which is uncreated, immortal, realizable through concentration, and cognizable by itself.

Majjhima Nikāya. Mahāmālumba Sutta 61.

“So yadeva tattha hoti cedanāgatam samuagatam sankharagatam vinnanagatam te dhamme anicchto

“ He sees the nature of feeling, perception, contact and (impure) consciousness as transitory, painful, diseased, wounded, prickling, demeritorious, miserable and foreign, and finds himself free from them. He removes his mind from them. Being thus unattached, he carries his mind to the immortal. That Nirvāna is peaceful, highest, where all contacts are dissolved, where all defects are removed, where thirst is destroyed, non-attachment has risen, non-self is prevented—that is Nirvāna. He who is absorbed in it destroys asavas.”

“The Word of the Buddha” by Nyaya tiloka

एन्नानागतं ते धर्मे अनिष्टतो, दुःखो, रोगतो, गंडतो, सप्लतो, अवतो, आशाधतो, परतो, पलोकतो, सुष्ठतो, अनन्ततो समनु पस्सति । सो तेहि धर्मेहि चित्तं पटिवापेति, सो ते हि धर्मेहि चित्तं पटिवापेत्वा अमताय धातुश्च चित्तं उपसंहाति पतं सतं पतं पर्णीतं यदितं सब्बसंखारसमयो सब्बुपाधिपटि-निस्सग्गो, तन्ह-स्थयो विरागो निरोधो निव्वानंति सो तथायि-नेना आसवानं स्थयं पापुणाति ॥ ”

Mahathera Buddhist monk of Dodundawa (Ceylon) late Professor Tokyo University, Udān 8 varga, describes Nirvāna thus :—

"There is an unborn, unoriginated, uncreated, unformed. If there were not this unborn, this unoriginated, this uncreated, this unformed, escape from the world of the born, the originated, the created, the formed, would not be possible. But since there is an unborn, unoriginated, uncreated, unformed, therefore is escape possible from the world of the born, the originated, the created, the formed."

The Pali text is as follows :—

'Atthi bhikkhave ajātam abhūtam akatam asankhatam noched bhikkhave abhavisa ajatam abhutam akatam asankhatam na ita jātassa bhūtassa katassa sankhatassa nissaranam pajnaya, yasmai cha kho bhikkhave atthi ajātam abhūtam akatam asankhatam tasma jātassa bhūtassa katassa sankhatassa nissaranam pajnayāti.

This clearly shows that Nirvāna itself is such, or there is some thing in "Nirvāna" condition which is uncreated. And it cannot be anything else than a pure soul. When all the impure thought activities are removed, all the bodies and formations are rid of, all the varied notions are gone, all the pleasant and painful feelings are vanished, then that pure soul, devoid of all the transitory and foreign elements, remains as ever existing. This is "Nirvâna." And this is the belief of the Jains also.

The learned Buddhist monk Shri Dharmânanda, the Principal of the Vidyâlankara College, Kelaniya, (Ceylon), on being asked about Nirvâna declared, "It cannot be said to be quite extinction or non-existing. There is bliss." His actual words are :—

" शून्यं वक्तुं न शक्यते, सुखं च अस्ति ॥ "

" Sînyam vaktum na sakyaté, sukham cha asti. "

The learned Principal consulted a Pali Dictionary and gave me a note about the different synonyms of Nirvâna, as found in the Buddhist Pali Scriptures. They are as follows :—

मुखो, निरोधो, निब्बाणं, दीपं, तण्हक्षय, तानं, लेमं, अरूपं, सातं, असंखतं, सिवं, अमुर्तं, मुदुहसं, परायनं, सरणं, निपुणं, अनन्तं, अक्षरं, दुःखक्षय, अन्यायज्ञा, अनालयं, विवृ, लेम, केवल, अपवग्गो, विरागो, पणीतं, अच्छुतंपदं, योगखेमं, पारं, मुर्ति, विसुद्धि, विमुक्ति, असंख्यातु, सुच्छि, निष्पुत्ति ॥ "

Mukhâ, special, Nirôdhâ, prevention, Nibbânam, the extinguishing of mundane life, Dipam, island, Tanhe-kkhaya, destruction of thirst, Tânam, safe place, Lemam, absorption, Arûpam, without form.

Page 197. Nirvána—The state to which the monk has now attained is the other shore, the immortal (i.e., permanent) fixed state. The word Nirvána blowing out, extinction, is not peculiarly Buddhistic. For the Buddhist, it is, as is clear, the extinction of craving.

From lust and from desire detached,
The Monk with insight here and now
Has gone to the immortal peace,
The unchangeable Nirvána state.

It is unnecessary to discuss the view, that Nirvâna means the extinction of the individual, no such view has ever been supported from the texts and there is abundant evidence as to its real meaning, the extinction of craving in this life.

Possessing a soul now of perfect purity, I urge all living beings to seek the abolition of worldly existence through the lamps of the Law.

I have given above some extracts about Nirvâna, from the Buddhist works which I could find for study. I shall hereafter show that authoritative Jain books declare nirvana to be a similar condition.

According to the Jains, Nirvâna is a condition of soul, free from all bondage of Karmas, all impure thought activities bringing inflow of Karmas, devoid of all kinds of fine and gross bodies, being cessation of all the worldly miseries, fully blissful, peaceful, enlightened and eternal, without fall.

To show this, I proceed to give some references from authoritative Jain works.

" Complete separation of the soul from Karmas and their causes is Liberation ; it results in the attainment of pure attributes (such as) knowledge etc." 230

" When Karmas are destroyed, the Self becomes steady in its own nature ; there is neither annihilation, unconsciousness, nor useless consciousness." 234.

" The Lord in that condition perceives and knows Himself and the other knowables, as they are, with reference to their past, present and future conditions but remains unattached." 238.

" There that Self realizes the eternal bliss which is full of infinite knowledge, perception and power, is independent of sense enjoyment, free from craving, and is never destroyed." 239.

" The bliss in nirvāna is independent, unobstructed, above sense gratification, eternal, sprung up on the destruction of the destructive Karmas." 242.

The above quotations with reference to nirvāna from the Jain scriptures, will clearly show, that the description of nirvāna is similar in the Jain and Buddhist scriptures.

The Buddhistic literature describes nirvāna as enlightenment, eternal, immortal, peaceful, blissful, unshakeable, devoid of birth and death, out of mind and speech, free from ḍasavās, free from craving unattached, defectless, painless, pure, independent, non-material, birthless, the highest condition, island, best, deep, realizable by the wise etc. The same attributes are applied to nirvāna in the Jain literature also.

All defects, delusion and ignorance found in mundane life are completely destroyed. Only the indestructible nature shines out. From the philosophical point of view the nirvāna of both the systems is the same. In the Jain scriptures it is further said that the liberated and perfect souls go upward and stay on the top of the universe eternally and their extent is a little less than that of the last body in the meditative posture. This statement has not been found by me in the Buddhistic literature. But the real inherent nature of nirvāna in both the systems appears to be the same without any difference whatsoever.

CHAPTER II

EXISTENCE OF THE SOUL.

Although the Buddhistic literature does not contain an explicit description of the soul, still, if it is minutely searched, it will be found to contain enough to show that the Buddhistic conception of the nature of the soul is the same as is described in the Jain literature.

We have shown in the preceding Chapter that the nirvāna of the Buddhists is not annihilation, not total non-existing, but it is something positive. When it is something, the next point to decide is whether it is matter without consciousness or something possessed of inherent consciousness. It cannot be matter; it is not a material substance devoid of consciousness because nirvāna is attainable only by one who has right enlightenment, through Prajna, self analysis, or self discernment. It must therefore be a conscious substance. Rupa (form), sanjna (sensation), vedana (feeling), samskāra (contact) and vijñāna (impure consciousness) are the causes of mundane wanderings. When these causes are all destroyed, what remains is nothing else than the pure Self or the Soul. Whatever qualifications of the pure soul are mentioned in the Jain Scriptures, are the same as are in the Buddhist scriptures attributed to the state of nirvāna. Nirvāna is synonymous, identical with the pure soul. As in the Buddhist literature so in the Jain scriptures also, it is said that in respect of the attainment of nirvâna, or the ultimate purity of the soul argument cannot find it, mind cannot reach it, speech cannot describe it. The pure soul is only realizable by the Self.

In "Samâdhi Sataka" the Jain author Pujiyapada Swami says :—

यत्परैः प्रतिपाद्योहं यत्परान् प्रतिपाद्ये ।
उम्मत्तचेहितं तम्मे यदहं निर्विकल्पकः ॥ १९ ॥

Yatparaih pratipâdyôham yat parân pratipâdaye, Unmatta cheshtitam tanmê yadaham nirvikalpakah.

"The notion that, "I can be known by the others" or that "I shall make it known to others" is the uttering of a mad man like me, because 'I' am beyond thinking. (I am only realizable by myself.)"

In the Jain literature, the description of the soul is given in a direct manner. In the Buddhist literature though no direct mention of the soul is found, it is described in an indirect way, in the enunciation of Nirvâna. In the Jain Literature also indirect mention of the soul has been made in many places. The same author Pujiyapada Swami says elsewhere in "Samâdhi Sataka" thus.

सर्वेन्द्रियाणि संयम्यस्तिमितेनान्तरात्मना ।
यत्क्षणं पश्यतो भाति तत्तत्वं परमात्मनः ॥ २० ॥

Sarvêndriyâni sayyam yastimitenântarâtmânâ, Yatksanampasyatôbhâti tattattvam paramâtmânah.

" After having brought under control all the senses, and after a steady internal insight, whatever is then realized is the true nature of the pure soul."

This worldly being grasps different objects through the five senses and the mind, and is plunged in delusion, lust and hate and is therefore always away from its own Self. If he restrains himself from attending to these six organs, then what is realizable within, is nothing but the pure soul or the nirvāna. Take the case of a man living in a house with six windows. He always looks outside through one or more of those windows, but never looks within. If he would divert his attention away from the windows, and look inside he would see all that is within. In the same way when one becomes non-attached to the six organs and attends within, he finds his own Nirvāna or the pure soul within himself. In the Buddhistic Literature, such indirect description is made with the purpose of diverting attention from the Non-self to the Self. There, one is asked to relinquish all the causes of āsavās, i.e. impure thought activities, to get rid of delusion, lust and hate, to follow full chastity, to practise perfect concentration, to have perfect equanimity, to be totally non-attached, and to have perfect meditation. He is asked to have no attachment to transitory conditions which rise and fall. To be non-attached to all the flittering objects, is to be absorbed in one's own Self.

I shall show by quotations from Buddhist Literature, how one has been advised to be non-attached to the other, the non-self, and to be bent on reaching the goal of Nirvāna.

Another fact which appears in the Buddhist Literature is that it has not taken up the subtle questions of metaphysics, which stand on the basis of intellect or argument, and has avoided all controversial points. It has mostly dealt with matters, that may be easily understood by the ordinary public, so that they may easily understand, and try to walk on the Path. It has mostly described four things ; (1) What is pain ? (2) What is the cause of pain ? (3) What is cessation of pain ? (4) What is the means of cessation of pain ? The utility of such description is this that the student is saved the difficulty of discussing different views of different systems of philosophy, and easily engage himself in following the path, with the result that he reaches the same goal, which would have been reached also through subtle metaphysics. On giving deep thought, he gradually understands the subtle philosophy also. We shall take some examples from Buddhist Literature.

Paṭṭhapāda Sutta of Dīghanikāya. 1 : 9.

The translation and purport of which has been given in the Hindi book "Buddhacharya" see pages 189 to 199.

" Paṭṭhapadā asked the following questions of Gautam Buddha (1) Is the universe indestructible ?

(2) Is the universe destructible ? (3) Is the universe finite ? (4) Is the universe infinite ? (5) Is the soul same as the body ? (6) Is the soul another, and the body another ? (7) Is Tathagata born again after death ? (8) Is Tathagata not born after death ? Buddha replied that these questions were not to be discussed. Gautama says in these words, " Paṭṭhapāda, they are not useful ; they do not lead to virtue ; they are not causes of chastity, or self-absorption, nor do they bring non-attachment, nor cessation of miseries, nor they lead to Nirvāna ; and therefore I do not describe them." Again Paṭṭhapāda asks : " What has the Lord Buddha described :" Then Buddha says, " Paṭṭhapāda : It is misery which I have described ; the cause of misery, the cessation of misery, the means of the cessation of misery ; this I have described. Paṭṭhapāda, this is useful, leading to Virtue, procuring chastity or self-absorption, bringing non-attachment, causing cessation of pain, leading to passionlessness, providing knowledge, making intellectual, and leading to nirvāna ; therefore I have described."

Although, Jain Literature has given a very fine description of the substances, still it is said that the description is of three kinds Heya, avoidable, Upadeya, adoptable, Jneya, knowable. Out of these three, he who is desirous of liberation, should pay his deep attention first to the former two. He should know what are the causes of misery, and what lengthens worldly wanderings, and then after having understood them properly and without vacillation try to avoid those causes ; and he should also know the means which bring destruction of mundane conditions and lead to nirvâna and after having understood them properly and assuredly try to adopt those rules.

The knowables, he may try to know according to his common sense and intellect. If any subtle matters are not capable of being grasped by his understanding, he should not be sorry or uneasy on that account. Necessary it is to know the avoidable and the adoptable as Saint Nâgasena says in his " Tattvânusâsana. "

" In order that the deserved ones who are afflicted with the three afflictions of birth, decay and death, may attain the bliss of Nirvāna the principles to be observed are said to be of two kinds, avoidable and adoptable." 3.

" Bondage and its cause, are said to be avoidable, because these two are the seeds of the avoidable, pain and pleasure." 4.

" Liberation and its cause are said to be adoptable, because from them will arise the adoptable bliss." 5.

To show what Buddhist Literature has directly or indirectly said about the soul, let us take a few examples.

"Once a Bachchagotta Paribrajaka went to Buddha, met Him and after talking pleasantly, sat aside and asked the question, "Gotam, Is there a soul?" On this Gotam did not reply, but remained silent. Again he asked, "Gotam! Is there no soul?" Then even he remained silent. Then, Bachchhagotta got up and went away. Just after his departure the Bhikṣu Ananda asked the Lord, "Why did you not reply to the questions of Bachchhagotta?" Then Lord Gotama said "Ananda, if in reply to the question of Bachchhagotta 'Is there a soul,' I told him, 'there is soul,' then O Ananda I would have sided with those saints and Brahmans who maintain things (totally) indestructible : and Ananda! if I had replied to the question of Bachchhagotta 'Is there no soul' that 'there is no soul,' then I would have sided with those Saints and Brahmans who maintain that every thing is transitory and destructible. Ananda! if I would have replied to the question of Bachchhagotta that there is soul, then would that saying of mine be correct when I had said that for acquisition of Truth all things are not the soul. Ananda said it would have gone contrary to that.

And Ananda! if I would have replied to the question of Bachchhagotta that there is no soul then he would have been perplexed thinking that he maintained the soul which is denied now."

The above conversation requires a careful and deep thinking. The reason why Gotam Buddha did not reply to the questions of Bachchhagotta, and remained silent, appears to be, that he avoided a discussion on these points, and further his mode of silence showed to Bachchagotta that the soul cannot be known by talking, but has to be realized.

His first reply to his near disciple Ananda shows that Gotam did not take a one-sided view, did not maintain that the soul was absolutely indestructible or destructible. As stated in Jain Philosophy, the soul according to him had both the attributes of permanent existence, and changeability. From the point of view of its nature, the soul is indestructible, while at the same time from its liability to change it is destructible. This is true of every existing substance in the universe. If it be totally indestructible, no change is possible, if it is totally destructible, it cannot exist. We see that substances are ever existing and still changing. To maintain both the predicates is the real Truth. The Jain Saint Samantabhadra, in his book "Aptamimamsa" says on this point as below :—

निस्त्वैकान्तपक्षे ऽपि विकित्या नोपयथते ।
 प्रागेव कारकाभावः क प्रमाणं क तत्फलम् ॥ ३७ ॥
 सापेक्षकान्त पक्षे ऽपि प्रेत्यभावाद्यसंभवः ।

 Ksanikaikantaपक्षेर्प्रत्यभिकाद्यसंभवाह,

" If a substance be said to be totally indestructible, than no condition or change is possible. There cannot be any action, as there cannot be then the doer or object of any action. Neither can it be proved nor can it be believed in because there will be no modification even in knowledge. And if a substance is maintained to be totally destructible, then there can be rebirth, and no recognition : neither can any action be commenced, nor can any result be achieved."

A substance is to be understood by the many-sided view of Syadvāda Logic (syad—from some point of view Vāda-speaking). Soul is indestructible as well as destructible, is the view to be inferred from Buddha's first reply to Ananda. His reply to Ananda further shows that all the worldly conditions of the soul are transitory. If Bachhagotta had been told in reply that 'there was soul,' he might have taken the fleeting conditions to be the soul and may not have thought further, and if the reply had been that there was no Soul, he might have been bewildered and might have turned a materialist or an atheist.

This description of Samyutta Nikāya clearly shows that Gotama believed in the soul, just in the same way as the Jains did. To take an illustration. As regards its composition, gold is indestructible, but as regards its modifications or conditions, it is destructible. Its own inherent attributes are permanent, but it may be moulded into any form, or changed into any alloy.

Samyutta Nikāya of Sutta Pitaka "Chando 13."

The Pāli words are :—

तस्मीदिह आनन्द अत्तदीपा विहरय असासरणा अनन्न
सरणा असमदीपा असमसरणा अनन्द सरणा.

*Tasmaddih ānanda attadīpa Viharatha attasaranā

"Therefore, O, Ananda, walk in the Isle of Self : Self is the safe refuge, there is no other place of safety. Dharma (Path of Nirvāna) is the Isle. Dharma is the place of security. There is no other place of safety."

These above words show that one's own pure soul should be taken to be an Island or a right resort, and the nature of soul which is Dharma should be taken as an Isle or a place of safety.

Majjhima Nikāyautta pathana Mula pariyāya sutta.

The whole sutta being carefully read would show that he who maintains that anything other than the true self is the soul, is ignorant, while he who believes all the non-self to be the non-self is the wise. Let us give a quotation.

Bhagavan Gotama said, "He who is not learned in Arya Dharmā (The Truth), knows earth as earth ; Knowing earth as earth, he maintains earth (as himself), he maintains (himself) in the earth, he maintains his use) from the earth, he maintains that earth belongs to him, he welcomes earth. In this way he deals with water, fire, air, all the worldly beings, celestials, space, consciousness (derived through senses and mind), all objects capable of being seen or heard. He welcomes them all ; because he is ignorant, thus I say. And again O Monks ! That Saint, who walks after having known that Nirvāṇa is the best and realisable by concentration, also knows earth as earth ; and having known earth as earth, he does not maintain earth (as himself), does not maintain (himself) in the earth, does not maintain (his use) from the earth, does not maintain earth to be his own, he does not welcome earth, because he is the Knower, thus I say. In the same way he does not welcome water, fire, air, all the living beings, celestials, space, consciousness (impure), objects seen and heard ; because he is the Knower, so I say."

The above statement clearly declares that the pure Soul is what is Nirvāna. All else than Nirvāna or pure Soul is non-Soul. This is called Prajna Vivēka, bheda vijñāna i.e. Self-analysis or Self-discrimination. This is the way to Liberation.

The Jain saint Kunda Kunda Āchārya also says the same in his Samayasaṅgraha :

सब्बे करेदि जीवो अज्ञावसाम्भेद तिरियनेरैप ।
देवमणुपेपि सब्बे पुण्णं पावं अगेयविहं ॥ २९१ ॥
धम्माधम्मं च तदा जीवाजीवे अलोगालोगं च ।

Jā sankappa viyappo ta Kammam Kunai asuh suhajanayam, appasaruva riddhi jāya nahiyaē parip-pharai. (294).

"On account of wrong attachment, this (ignorant) being, maintains all the sub-human, hellish, celestial, and human beings and different kinds of merit and demerit to be is own. (291).

The (ignorant) being on account of wrong attachment maintains medium of motion and medium of rest, all the souls and non-souls, non-universe and the universe as his own. (292).

So long as there are wavering thoughts, he performs actions bringing merit and demerit so long as the glory of the nature of the soul has not been effulgent within him." (294).

These Jain passages also show that all else besides his own pure self is not his own self. To maintain all the others as himself or belonging to him is ignorance and wrong belief.

Majjima nikāya alagaddupama sutta, 22.

This Sutta also very nicely declares that all the other conditions are not the soul.

All those impure thought—activities, feelings of pleasure and pain, perception and knowledge which arise on account of five senses and mind and the bodies formed owing to their effects are included in the five skandhas of the Buddhists i.e., Rupa (body), Vedana (feeling pleasure and pain), Sanjna (perception through senses and mind), Samskāra (mental activities) Vijñāna (consciousness through senses and mind). This sutta very beautifully contradicts the belief of self in these five skandhas.

We give below a portion of this Sutta containing conversation between Gautam and his disciples.

Gotam—"O Monks, which do you maintain, whether the body is indestructible or destructible ?

Monks—O Lord, it is destructible.

G.—Is that which is destructible, painful or pleasing ?

M.—O Lord, it is painful.

G.—Should we say of that which is destructible, painful, changeable, that it is mine, or that my soul is this ?

M.—O Lord, not.

G.—Is feeling indestructible or destructible ? Is perception indestructible or destructible ? Are mental activities indestructible or destructible ? Is (impure) consciousness indestructible or destructible ?

M.—O Lord, destructible.

G.—Therefore, O Monks, whatever body past, future, or present, external or internal, gross or fine, low or high, far or near, all this body—this is not mine, nor I am its, nor this is my soul. Thus should one see rightly to arrive at the best discrimination. In the same way all these feelings, perceptions, mentalities, consciousness (of past, present and future) should be thought of. O Monks, The Aryasravaka well versed in scriptures seeing thus, becomes non-attached from the body, feelings, perceptions, mentalities and consciousness. Being unattached, he gives up affection, becomes free from them through non-attachment, having thus freed mentally he realizes that he is freed—his birth is destroyed, his Brahmacharya (chastity or self absorption) is complete, whatever was to be done has been done, here nothing else is mine, he knows this. Therefore, O Monks, give up that which is not yours. By this means you will be happy and contented for a long time.

O Monks—What objects do not belong to you ? This body, this feeling, this perception, these mentalities, this consciousness, all this is not yours.

O Monks ! If in this Jetavana forest, one may steal or break or destroy any grass, any stem, any branch, or any leaf, would you maintain that one has stolen you, broken you or destroyed you.

M.—O Lord, no, we cannot maintain so.

G.—Why will you not feel so ?

M.—They are not we, not ours.

G.—O Monks, in the same way, give up all what is not yours.

You will happily live for a long time.

Thus O Monks ! This is my declared Dharma or Path.

A consideration of the above description of self analysis or self discrimination, will make it clear that only that pure soul which exists in Nirvâna after destruction of all the non-soul objects is " I " or " my Soul." A wise man should realize this. He should give up attachment with all the other thought-activities, objects, ideas, fleeting different kinds of consciousness, pleasure and pain and all the other beliefs or conjectures about the Soul.

The above statement clearly proves the existence of the pure soul, or of the Nirvâna or of the one who is in Liberation. The great Jain Saint Kunda Kundacharya has also described the way to Self-analysis in the following verses in his Samayasâra :

अहमेदं पदमाहं अहमेदस्सेव होमि मम एदं ।

अण्णं जं परदब्धं सचित्ताचित्तमिस्तं वा ॥ २५ ॥

"It is an ignorant person who says of living, non-living, mixed or any other object (other than I), I am this, this is I, I am its, it is mine; this was mine in past time, I was this in past time; it will be mine in future, I will be this, expresses untrue thought activities. While a wise man never does this. He knows the Truth."

Here living objects are women, children, pupils, lust and hate etc. impure thought activities; non-living objects are gold, silver, books and material Karmic, electric and outward bodies and all the five substances matter, medium of motion, medium of rest, space and time which the Jains believe to be other than the soul substance. The mixed objects are women and children with clothes and ornaments, students with books, four conditions of life, hellish, celestial, sub-human, human, sense-pleasure, impure knowledge, etc. The purport is that all the worldly things, thoughts, conditions or other existing souls or other substances all these are other than myself, they were and will remain other than myself. In reality, I am alone, free from all this. I am only a pure soul or one which is positive in Nirvāna. Such realization is Self-discrimination.

(5) Samyutta Nikāya (4) Satyātana Vaggo (1) Anichcham.

Gotam says:—

चक्कुं भिक्खवे अनिच्छं यदनिच्छं तं दुःखं यं दुःखं तद
अनात्तायद अनात्ता तं न पतं मम नेत्रोऽहं अस्मि न मे सो अस्ताति

"Chakkum bhikkhave anichcham, yadanichcham tam dukkham, yam dukkham tad anatta-yad anatta tam na etam mama ne so ham asmi na me so attāti evam etam yathabhutam sammapajñaya dayhavvam. Satam anichcham, ghānam anichcham, Jihvā anichcham, Kāyo anichcho, mano anichcho."

"O Monks, this eye is destructible, that which is destructible is misery ; that which is misery is non-soul ; that which is non-soul is not mine, nor I am such ; nor it is my soul. Such realization is right knowledge. In the same way ear, nose, tongue, body, and mind are destructible."

The above statement also clearly declares that 'I' am something else; 'I' am not the five senses and the mind. Discrimination or Prajna is only possible, when there is something other than the destructible and painful objects. That which is other than the five senses and mind is the Nirvâna or the Pure Soul.

The Jain Saint Pujiyapâda Swami says in his Samâdhi Sataha :

यत्क्षणं प्रस्थितो भासि तत्तत्वं परमात्मनः ॥ ३० ॥

"I am full of self-discrimination. All those Aryas who walk in the forest with self-discrimination, I am one of them. O Brahmana, thus seeing the wealth of self-discrimination within myself I walk fearless in the forest."

Here Prajna means the realization that I am other than non-self, senses, and all that which is destructible and painful. 'Seeing the wealth of self-discrimination within myself' clearly shows that one is seeing his own nature as it is in his own pure soul. Had there been no existence of the soul or had there been no soul in Nirvāna, then the above statement would have had no meaning at all. Prajna is called that intellect which discriminates self from non-self. The Great Jain Saint says in Samayasāra :—

पण्णाय घितव्वो जो चेदा सो अहं तु पिच्छयदो ।
अवसेसा जे भाषा ते मज्जपरित्त नाश्वामा ॥ ३२५ ॥

*Pannāye ghitavvō jō chedā so aham ta nichchhayado

"That which should be grasped by self-discrimination is 'I' from the real point of view ; all the other conditions should be known as other than 'I'."

Some Sayings of the Buddha by F. L. Woodward, M.A., 1925. Some quotations from the above book which show the existence of the soul are given below :—

Page 188.—Impermanent, alas ! are all compounded things. Their nature is to rise and fall. When they have risen they cease. The bringing of them to an end is bliss. (D. N. II 198).

The Jain Saint says the same thing in Samayasarā :

"What I perceive originating and perishing, that cannot be my I, my Ego. On one side stands I; on the other, the whole gigantic cosmos, the duration, origination, dissolution of which I recognize in and through my personality."

P. 138. "This thought, wisely considered, also must make it clear that I am something standing behind life, behind the five groups, something only adhering, only clinging to life and to the five groups constituting personality, as to something alien which I think desirable."

P. 139. "The soul is an immaterial and therefore spiritual, therefore simple, therefore imperishable, substance. Notions are therefore nothing originally real, but an artificial product of reason distilled from the world given in perception."

Jain literature also says that the pure and true nature of the soul appears in its reality in the Nirvâna condition. The Jain Saint Amritachandra says in Samayasâra Kalasa:

This is the nature of Nirvāna also.

These passages also show the pure nature of the soul.

The Jain Saint Sri Yogindra Acharya says in Yogasara:

S. 160. "Self is the lord of Self, who else could be the Lord? With self well-subdued, a man finds a lord such as few can find."

S. 165. "By oneself the evil is done, by oneself one suffers; by oneself evil is left undone, by oneself one is purified. Purity and impurity belong to oneself, no one can purify another."

Here also the soul is referred to. It becomes pure on the removal of all the impurities of the five skandhas. The soul is itself responsible.

The same idea has been expressed by the Jain Saint Pujiyapāda Swami in his Samādhi Sataka:

नयत्यात्मानमात्मैव जन्मनिर्वापमेव च ।

Path of Purity by Buddha Ghosh. Translated by P. Maung Tui XX P. I & II P. 342:

The whole wide world we traverse with our thought,

And nothing find to me more dear than soul
Since, aye, so dear the soul to others is,
Let the soul-lover harm no other man.

Note.—This passage also refers to the soul.

The Life of the Buddha by Edward J. Thomas (1927).

P. 188. The ascetic Malimkaya Putta is said to have asked many questions, one of which was whether a Tathāgata exists after death. Buddha refused to say whether he exists, whether he does not exist.

The silence proves that what remains in Nirvāna is only realizable, not describable.

P. 189. Dialogue between the nun Khema (wife of Srenika) and King Pasenadi :

She says, "Reverend one, the ocean is deep, immeasurable, unfathomable, even so, king, that body by which one might define Tathāgata is relinquished, cut off at the root, unrooted like a palm tree, brought to nought, not to rise in future. Freed from designation of body a Tathāgata is deep, immeasurable, and unfathomable like ocean."

This passage also proves that the pure soul in Nirvāna is out of mind and speech and is only realizable.

Sacred Books of the East Vol. XLIX. Buddhist Mahayana Text.

Prajna paramita.

P. 148. "When the envelopment of consciousness has been annihilated, then he becomes free from all fear, beyond the reach of change, enjoying final Nirvāna. All the Buddhas of the past, present and future, after approaching Prajna Paramita, have awoke to the highest knowledge."

P. 149. "O wisdom, gone, gone, gone, to the other shore, landed at the other shore."

This also shows that discrimination between soul and non-soul is prajna. This leads to purity of soul in Nirvāna. It also proves the existence of the soul.

Sacred Books of the Buddhists Vol. III by T. W. Rhys Davids L.L.D.

Dialogue of the Buddha—Pali D. N. P. II. (1910).

P. 64. — Moreover, Anand, happy feeling is impermanent, a product, the result of a cause or causes, liable to perish, to pass away, to become extinct, to cease, so too is painful feeling, so too is neutral feeling. If when experiencing a happy feeling one thinks "this is my soul"—when that same happy feeling ceases, one will also think:—my soul has departed, so too when the feeling is painful or neutral. Thus he who says: "my soul is feeling" regards as his soul something, which in this present life is impermanent, is blended of happiness and pain, and is liable to begin and to end. Wherefore, Ananda, it follows that this aspect: "my soul is feeling" does not commend itself.

Herein, again Anand, to him who affirms, nay, my soul is not feeling, my soul is not sentient, answer should thus be made:—my friend, where there is no feeling of anything, can you then say I am. You cannot, Lord. Wherefore, Ananda, it follows that this aspect:—nay, my soul is not feeling, my soul is not sentient, does not commend itself.

My friend, when feeling of every sort or kind to cease absolutely, then there being, owing to the cessation, thereof, no feeling whatever could one then say—I myself am?

No lord, one could not.

Wherefore, Ananda, it follows that this aspect:—nay, my soul is not feeling, nor it is not sentient; my soul has feeling, it has the property of sentience, does not commend itself.

P. 65. Now, when a brother, Ananda, does not regard soul under these aspects either as not feeling or having feeling, then he, thus restraining from such views, grasps at nothing whatever in this world, and not grasping he trembles not, and trembling not, he by himself attains to perfect peace. And he knows that birth is at an end, that the high life has been fulfilled, that what had to be done had been accomplished, and that after this present world; there is no beyond."

The above dialogue, if deeply thought of, will show that, that which is free from all kinds of thoughts, is only realizable and is fully peaceful, is the pure soul itself.

When all attachment to all the objects, thoughts, impure natures and all lust and hate etc. are given up, then there is nothing to relinquish and nothing to grasp—that is the condition of soul's perfect equanimity or self-absorption. Really it is the way to Nirvâna and it is the Nirvâna itself.

The Jain Saint Amritachandra says in Samayasâra Kalasa:

One who has kept one's full power within oneself has given up all that was to be given up and has taken in all that was to be taken in."

The Jain Saint Puṣyapada Swami says in Samādhi Sataḥa :

Hindi Buddha Charyā by Saint Rahula.

(1) Sela sutta Page, 165.

Gotam is saying to Saila: "I have known what should have been known, I have meditated upon what should have been meditated upon, I have given up what should have been given up; therefore, O Brahmana! I am Buddha."

In such words does Gotam declare that he has known himself, which is realizable, and has given up all non-soul.

(2) Mahali sutta P. 247. Gotam says:—"Mahali! once I was roaming in Ghositārama of Kausambi. Then Mandissa Paribrajaka and Jaliya, disciples of Dārupatīka came to me and stood aside after greeting me. They asked "Gotam, are the soul and the body the same? or are the soul and the body both different?" Then I told them to hear patiently and said, "That monk who is full of right conduct obtains the first concentration and he knows and perceives this. He has no necessity of saying, "Are the soul and the body the same or are they different?" In the same way he who obtains the second, the third and the fourth concentration and fixes his mind in perception and knowledge, has no necessity of saying "The soul and the body are the same" or "They are different." I know this, even then I do not say "The soul and the body are the same" or "they are different."

This statement proves that soul is different from the body and can be realized.

(3) Sandakasutta Page. 264. Gotama says "O Sandaka! just as a man whose hands and feet are cut off, knows that his hands and feet are cut off, even when walking, sitting, sleeping and awakening, so the monk who is Arhat and whose Āsavās are destroyed, always realizes that he is the destroyer of Āsavās".

This shows that there is a pure soul, freed from Āsavās.

(4) Mahasukuldai sutta P. 372. Gotama says "I have shown the path...Udai! just as some one may separate culm from the grass, then he knows that this is culm, this is grass; culm is separate and grass is separate....Just as a man may take away sword from a sheath, then he knows that this is sword, this is sheath, sword is separate, sheath is separate, although sword has come out of the sheath....Just as a man may bring out a serpent from a basket-thus I have shown the way."

These passages show that the soul is distinct from the body.

(5) Ratthapāla sutta P. 354.

The Monk Rastrapala controlled in self has obtained the best Brahmacharya in this very life after knowing and realizing himself.

This also shows realization of the soul.

(6) Page. 358. Ratthapath sutta (M. N. 2. 4. 2).

King! That Lord who is knower and perceiver, Arhat, and well-learned have preached 4 paths; knowing them, I have been homeless. They are (1) this world is destructible (2) this world is unsafe (3) this world is not mine, I have to go leaving all, (4) this world is a slave to craving.

Here also the soul is referred to.

I have thus shown such passages ■ prove the existence of the soul, selected by me from such Buddhistic literature as was available to me.

SOUL IN JAIN LITERATURE.

Now I shall give some passages about the existence of pure soul from Jain literature.

It should be remembered that the Jain literature describes soul from two stand-points, the real and the practical. The real stand-point speaks of the true and the real nature of the soul as it is free from all Karmic bondage or anything else. The practical point of view shows ■ the impure and incomplete conditions of the soul, which are caused on account of Karmic bondage, or contact with body and other objects. First of all I shall quote those passages which describe the soul from the real stand-point, so that the nature of the pure soul may be known. The nature of the pure soul is the nature of Nirvâna. The Buddhistic literature mainly describes the soul in an indirect way, showing all that is foreign to its nature, but the nature of Nirvâna has been clearly described in a direct way. The Jain literature also has described the soul in an indirect way, showing the absence of that which does not belong to it. The following passages will show both the direct and indirect mention about the soul in the Jain literature :—

"This soul should be known to be having special qualities of perception and knowledge, with innumerable spacial units (like the universe), non-material, having size of the body it occupies." 17.

"That which has not anger, pride, deceit, greed, thorn in thought, thought-paints, birth, old age, death, and any defect is 'I.' " 19.

"That which has not touch, taste, colour, smell, sound etc., but is a pure, conscious and defectless being is 'I.' " 21.

"I am devoid of no-karmas (body etc.) karmas, and full of independent knowledge and other attributes: I am perfect, pure, eternal, one, and independent." 27.

Thus some quotations of Jain Literature have been given above in order to show how the soul is described in them from the real point of view. This is the pure soul and this is what is called Nirvāna. There is no difference between pure soul and Nirvāna at all.

THE SOUL FROM THE PRACTICAL POINT OF VIEW.

From the practical point of view, the soul is described in connection with bondage of the material karmas. All the attributes and conditions which do appear through karmas are described. All this description of the soul from the practical stand-point does almost agree with that of the five Skandhas of the Buddhists. This impure condition of the soul is not its real nature. When this condition is destroyed, then Nirvāna is procured. This is what the Buddhist Literature says that when these skandhas which are destructible and are caused in connection with others are altogether destroyed, then Nirvāna is attained.

The Jain saint, Sri Nemichandra Acharya describes the nature of the soul in his Dravya Samgraha thus :—

जीवो उद्योगमभा अमुति कर्ता सदेहपरिमाणो ।
भोक्ता संसारत्थो सिद्धो सो विस्तसोद्धर्गार्ते ॥ २ ॥

*Jivo udyogamas amutti kattā sadehaparimāno,
Bhaktā samsārattho siddho so vissasoddha ai* (2).

The soul has nine characteristics. It is (1) living (2) has conscious attentiveness (3) is non-material (4) is the doer of actions (5) enjoyer of the fruits of actions (6) has the size of the body it occupies (7) wanders in the world (8) can become liberated (9) has the natural tendency to go upward.

We may describe these nine characteristics with some details, I. Living—The soul exists in any body on account of material vitalities, Dravya Prana, and dies when they are destroyed. They are ten in number, five senses, of touch, taste, smell, sight and hearing; three powers of body, speech and mind; age and breathing. They are found in different degrees in the different kinds of mundane beings as below :—

(1) One-sensed, beings such as earth-bodied, water-bodied, fire-bodied, air-bodied, and vegetable-bodied. They have got only one sense namely that of touch and have in all four vitalities, touch, physical power, age and breathing.

(2) Two-sensed beings such as insects of rice shell and conches etc. They have senses of touch and taste, and have six vitalities in all. Sense of taste and speech-power are added to the four of the one-sensed.

(3) Three-sensed beings such as ants, bugs, lice, etc., have three senses of touch, taste and smell and have seven vitalities. Sense of smell is added to the six of the former class.

(4) Four-sensed beings such as flies, wasps, bees, moths etc., have four senses of touch, taste, smell, and sight and have eight vitalities. Sense of sight is added to the seven of the former class.

(5) Five-sensed irrational beings such as some species of serpents which live in water; they have got all the five senses, and have nine vitalities, sense of hearing is added to the eight of the former class.

(6) Five-sensed rational beings such as human beings, celestial beings, hellish beings; four-legged animals like cows, buffaloes, deer, dogs, cats; birds, such as pigeons, peacocks, crows, parrots, and fishes, crocodile, tortoise, etc. They have got mind also in addition and thus have all the ten vitalities.

As the soul is really indestructible, injury to any of these vitalities is called Himsa. As a substance, matter is also indestructible, only dis-arrangement of material vitalities is the material injury. Passionate thought-activity is the internal cause of causing hurt to external vitalities. The number and value of vitalities injured, means lesser or greater sin. The least injury is caused in the destruction of one-sensed beings.

From the practical point of view, the soul is living on account of these vitalities. Really consciousness is the vitality which never leaves the soul.

II. Conscious-attentiveness—It is of two kinds:—
Conation or perception and knowledge.

Conation is of four kinds:—(1) Conation through the eye, (2) Conation through any sense other than the eye or mind, (3) Clairvoyant conation, (4) Infinite conation.

Knowledge is of eight kinds (1) Mati Jnâna is knowledge derived through the senses and mind

(2) Sruta Jnâna is knowledge derived through objects known by sensitive knowledge or the knowledge of the books.

(3) Avadhi Jnâna is knowledge of the past and the future lives through the psychic power of the soul.

(4) Manah-paryaya Jnâna is the knowledge of the ideas and thoughts of others.

(5) Kevala Jnâna is omniscience or knowledge unlimited as to space, time or object.

The first three kinds of knowledge when associated with right belief, are called right knowledge and when associated with wrong belief, they are called wrong knowledge. Thus there are eight kinds of knowledge. The living beings have got life, they are not dead—such recognition is done through any of these twelve kinds of conscious attentiveness. These are from the practical point of view. Pure conation and pure knowledge are the two real characteristics of a soul from the real point of view.

III. The soul is non-material from the real point of view, because it has not got colour, smell, taste and touch, the attributes of matter; but from the practical point of view, it appears as material in mundane life, because it is wholly obscured by the dirt of karmic matter. The worldly conditions and all impurities are due to the karmic effects. This impure condition is coming on from eternity, though new karmic matter is mixed and old one is shed off at every instant.

IV. Doer—From the practical stand-point, it is said to be the doer of its impure thought-activities, delusion, love and hatred etc., which are really due to the operation of the material karmas bound previously. It is also called the doer of karmic bondage which is really effected owing to soul vibrations and passions. It is also called the doer of houses, pots, cloths, etc., as they are caused through the activities of its body, mind and speech. From the real point of view, the soul is the doer of its own pure thought activities.

V. Enjoyer—From the practical point of view, it is the enjoyer of pleasure and pain caused by the effect of the past karmas. Really, it is the enjoyer of its own real bliss.

VI. Has the size according to the body—From the real point of view, it has innumerable spacial units equal to this universe, i.e., it is as wide as the universe; but from the practical point of view, it contracts and expands according to the body it occupies owing to the effect of karmas; thus it has the size of the body it occupies. There are some special causes, when this mundane soul, while living in the body expands and goes to some distance like the electric current and then again contracts to the size of its original body. Its real size is not material, but it is a non-material conscious one.

VII. It wanders in the world :—This soul owing to the effects of its meritorious and demeritorious karmas wanders in the world in the four conditions of life, celestial, hellish, sub-human and human. Beings from one-sensed to five-sensed animals are all sub-human.

The Jain Literature has divided the mundane souls into two kinds also. (1) Immobiles—all one-sensed beings such as earth, water, fire, air and vegetable-bodied. (2) Mobiles—All the others form the two-sensed to the five-sensed beings.”

VIII. It can be liberated. When through self-concentration, all the karmic matter is shed off and all the causes of inflow of new matter are removed, then the soul becomes liberated and attains Nirvâna.

IX. It has the nature of going upward. From the real point of view, the nature of the soul is to go upward, like the flame of fire. When it is freed from karmas, it goes upward to the top of the universe. But when it is in bondage with the karmas, it goes after death from one incarnation to another instantly in straight directions, i.e., east, west, south, north, upwards and downwards but not in cross lines. If the place of re-birth is in a crooked place, the soul will take turnings through straight directions and reach there. The readers will have some idea of the mundane souls from the above description.

Panchâstikâya by Sri Kunda Kunda Acharya says the same :—

जीवोति हवदि चेदा उपभोगविसेसिदो पदु कर्ता ।

भोक्ता य देहमत्तो ण हि मुत्तो कम्मसंजुत्तो ॥ २७ ॥

Jivottî havadi chêdâ upavôga visêsidô paku katta, Bhôtta ya déhamattô nahi muttô kammasanjutto 27.

"The soul is (1) living (2) realizer (3) has conscious attentiveness (4) lord of its destiny, responsible for its good or bad conditions (5) doer (6) enjoyer (7) having size according to the body it occupies (8) non-material (9) and is associated with karmas."

If we compare the actions of the five Skandhas of the Buddhists with the mundane condition of the soul in karmic bondage, its sensual and impure knowledge, feeling of pleasure and pain etc., we will come to the conclusion that Jainism and Buddhism are the same in this respect. The pure soul of Jainism agrees with the Nirvâna of the Buddhists. Although in the Buddhist literature, it is not clearly stated that any soul is coming on along with the five compound things, body, feeling, sensation, mentation, and (impure) consciousness, yet on deep consideration it will be noted that the positive thing which remains after the destruction of the five skandhas is Nirvâna i.e., the pure soul. It means that what was hidden under the effects of the five skandhas has now appeared in its pure nature. The soul retains its pure nature of greatest peace and bliss for ever.

If Nirvâna is not annihilation, but a positive condition of existence, it must be taken to be nothing else but the pure soul as described in Jainism.

CHAPTER III.

THE PATH OF NIRVANA OR LIBERATION.

From the last two chapters, it will be evident to the readers that the nature of Nirvâna—the soul as is known from the Buddhist scripture is the same as described in the Jain literature. Now it is to be seen whether the path of Nirvâna as given in the Buddhist literature agrees with that of Jain literature or not.

Further this Sutta describes that in order to acquire right view, one should know the following things :—

“(A right believer) knows the nutriment, the cause of nutriment, the checking of nutriment, the means of checking nutriment. Nutriments are four:—Mouthful eating gross or fine, contact is the second, volition is the third, (impure) consciousness is the fourth. Rise of desire is the cause of nutriment, prevention of desire is prevention of nutriment, the means of prevention of nutriment is the eight-fold path (described above).”

Note. Āhāra is translated as nutriment by some, we may translate it as taking in or grasping.

Note. It is evident from the above description that when desire arises, the four kinds of taking in are possible i.e., (1) taking in gross or subtle matter which is nutritious to the body, having contact with sense-objects for enjoyment, thought with regard to sense-enjoyment, and consciousness with regard to that enjoyment. When desire will be checked, there will be neither taking food, nor any enjoyment of senses, neither mental thought-activity pertaining to it, nor the consciousness regarding it. Cessation of desire is possible by following the eight-fold path of liberation.

The causes of the pain are desire to take re-birth, desire to have pleasure and welcoming the pleasures, just as (1) desire for sense-enjoyments (2) desire to have re-birth (3) desire to have riches or to be destroyed. The prevention of pain is to have total non-attachment with that desire, to check it, to give it up, to throw it off, to be liberated from it, not to be absorbed in it. The means for the prevention of pain is to follow the eight-fold path of liberation.”

Note. In the Hindi Buddha Charya Page 124 Maha satipatthana sutta Dig. N. 2. 22 the description of the five spheres is given thus :—To have organs of touch, taste, smell, sight, and hearing is body-sphere or rūpa upādāna; feeling of pleasure and pain on knowing the sense-object is feeling-sphere or vedāna upādāna; to know sense-object is sensation-sphere or sanjñā upādāna; having continual mental notions is mental-sphere or sanskara upādāna; to sustain its knowledge is consciousness-sphere or vijnāna upādāna.

Note.—Here the nâma of the Buddhist philosophy includes all the worldly conscious thought-activities and impure knowledge. Nâma rupa means a group of all the worldly conditions. According to the Jain literature also all the impure modifications of body and consciousness or the soul are what is called the world. The destruction of all this world is Nirvana just as destruction of Nâma rupa is Nirvâna in the Buddhist philosophy. Both the Jain and the Buddhist philosophies are agreed upon this point with difference only in name.

(A right believer) knows the (impure) consciousness, the cause of the consciousness, the cessation of the consciousness, the means of the cessation of the consciousness. These six are the spheres of consciousness : (1) consciousness due to eye (2) to ear (3) to nose (4) to tongue (5) to body and (6) to mind. Rise of temptations is the cause of consciousness, cessation of temptations is the cessation of consciousness. The eight-fold way is the means of cessation of consciousness.

Note.—Here sankhāra is translated as temptations, while Woodward in his book "Some Sayings of the Buddha" translates sankhāra as activities which make karmas. It appears that this sankhāra or sanskara is the link of acquisition of (impure) consciousness in the fresh body. This sankhara may be taken to be the group of past karmas.

"(A right believer) knows the āsavas, the cause of the āsavas, the cessation of the āsavas, the means of the cessation of the āsavas. There are three āsavas :—sense desire, desire of birth, entanglement in ignorance. Rise of ignorance is the cause of āsavas. Cessation of ignorance is the cessation of āsavas. This eight-fold path is the means of the cessation of the āsavas. Thus he, who knows the path of the cessation of the āsavas, having removed the dirt of attachment, has destroyed the dirt of hatred, having removed this pride of "I am" (such and such), having cut off ignorance, having acquired knowledge, ends the miseries even in this very life. Thus an Ārya srāvaka is a right believer, and his view becomes right, he maintains firm belief, and he knows this True Dharma (the Path of Liberation)."

Note.—This samma ditthi sutta describes the means of checking the following things :—(we may count the thirteen things from reverse side)—(1) āsavas (2) ignorance (3) sanskāra of mind, body and speech

(4) six spheres of consciousness (5) nāma rūpa, (6) six sense-organs (7) six sense-contacts (8) six sense-feelings (9) desire for six sensual objects (10) four graspings (11) condition of existence (12) birth (13) old age and death. These thirteen things are in succession the cause of the following.

In this sutta, firstly (ten) 10 harmful and 10 useful natures, then four kinds of nutriment have been said. Desire has been said to be the cause of four kinds of nutriment. Then seven kinds of pain have been said and there cause is assigned to three kinds of desire. A right believer should know all these rightly.

It should also be considered here that āsavas have been said to be the cause of the remaining twelve things said above in succession and those āsavas are three : (1) desire for senses, desire for birth, and entanglement in ignorance. Again ignorance alone is said to be the cause of these three kinds of āsavas. It therefore shows that ignorance is the cause of āsavas and āsavas are the causes of ignorance.

Not to know pain, cause of pain, cessation of pain and means of cessation of pain is ignorance. Pains are seven in number: (1) birth (2) oldness (3) disease (4) death (5) sorrow, weeping etc. (6) not to have the desired things and (7) five root-spheres of body, feeling, sensation, mentation and consciousness.

The cause of these pains has been said to be desire. That desire is of three kinds: desire for sense-enjoyments, desire for birth, and desire for riches or for not taking birth. If desire is destroyed, all pains are ended.

The purport of all this above description is this that ignorance is the root-cause of constant wanderings in the world. The means of removing ignorance and with it, all its family is to follow the eight-fold path.

The Buddhist literature is full of references to this Path.

From the above Hindi description this 8 fold path is described below:—

"(1) Samyak dristi—To know rightly and with full belief—the pain, its cause, its prevention and means of its prevention.

(2) Samyak sankalpa—firm determination of being rid of karmas, of being free from enmity, of following non-injury.

(3) Samyak Vachana—to give up falsehood, backbiting, harsh speech and chattering.

(4) Samyak Karmanta—to save himself from injury to living beings, from taking anything not given, from wrong sexual-enjoyment.

(5) Samyak Ājiva—to have right livelihood and to relinquish unjust one.

(6) Samyak Vyayāma—to strongly resolve, try, labour, and control for not having harmful thought-activities which have not yet arisen, to resolve etc. to give up the harmful thought-activities already arisen, to resolve etc. to have useful thought-activities which have not arisen, and to resolve and labour for maintaining the useful thought-activities which have already arisen, and to improve them, meditate upon them, and to lead them to perfection.

(7) Samyak Smṛiti—remembrance of the impurity etc. of the body and not to have grief or greed for it. In the same way having recollection of truth of feelings, mind-notions and other conditions.

(8) Samyak Samādhi—Here the Monk, having freed himself from sense-desires and harmful thought-activities meditates upon the first kind of concentration which is full of love and happiness having been produced by right argument, right thinking and self-discrimination, (2) then he, on getting subsidence of argument and thinking, acquires the second kind of concentration full of love and happiness caused by internal peace, steadiness of mind, freedom from intellect and thinking and self-absorption, (3) then he, on being non-attached to any sort of love, and on having recollection of truth and being experienced, acquires the third kind of concentration in which happiness is realized. Such a monk ■ called non-attached, full of recollection and walker in happiness by the learned, (4) and then at last he, on giving up pleasure and pain, on removal of good and bad mentality, acquires the fourth concentration which is without pain, without pleasure, full of purity of recollection of non-attachment or equanimity."

It is necessary to know more about the 7th path Samyak Smriti, therefore it is described as below :—

Majjhima Nikāya tenth sutta Satipatthāna. Its purport is here given :

Bhagavan said thus :—This is the one path for the purification of the beings, for removal of sorrow, weeping etc., for casting away pain and mental griefs, for knowing the truth, for realizing Nirvana,—and that is the four kinds of steadfastness in recollections :—What are the four ?—The monk roams seeing his body as body only, knowing feelings as feelings only, seeing mind as mind only, knowing different conditions as conditions only. He must be active, conscious, full of recollection, removing greed and mental bad thought-activities. The mode of recollection of these four has been given in the sutta in detail, here its translation in short is given :—

I. Meditation upon the body :

(1) The monk, having entered into a forest and sitting in a posture (Palyankäsana) attends to his mouth ; when breathing strong or mild, he may know it such and think that this body has nature of the rise and decay, one should have no attachment with it. There is nothing in this body which is liable of being adopted.

(2) When walking, standing, sitting, sleeping, or in any kind of movement of body, the monk should always be careful.

(3) When going near or far, seeing here and there, spreading arms and legs, wearing clothes, taking four kinds of food as eatable, drinkable, tastable, and lickable, casting away refuse, sleeping, awaking, speaking and in silence etc. activities, the monks should be aware of all these and be careful in them.

(4) Then the monk may meditate that this body from head to foot, from foot to head is altogether full of filth, bones, blood, flesh, fat, perspiration, spitting, filth of nose, impurities etc.; just as a soak is full of different kinds of corn-seeds, a clever man knows them separately as pulse, rice, wheat etc., so he may know the nature of every part of the body separately.

(5) Then he meditates that this body is made up of the elements earth, water, fire and air.

(6) Then he thinks that this body is sure to be destroyed once and to become a dead body.

(7) Then he considers that this body when dead is liable of being eaten by eagles, crows etc.

(8) Then he meditates that the body when dead will be broken into parts of head, legs, arms etc. separately.

Then he thinks that this body will once be grounded and mixed into ashes.

Thus he becomes unattached with the body.

II. Meditation upon feelings:—

The monk knows, when he is feeling pleasure or pain and when there is neither pleasure nor pain. He properly ascertains the nature of the world pleasure and pain, strong and mild and also knows their internal and external features and their causes—knowing thus disinterestedly, he does not believe them to be useful.

III. Meditation upon mind.

The monk knows the attached mind as the attached one and non-attached mind as non-attached one, the mind with hate as one with hate and mind without hate as one without hate, the deluded mind as one with delusion, the delusionless mind as one without delusion ; the steady mind as the steady and unsteady mind ■■ unsteady ; the mind in grandeur as in grandeur and the mind without grandeur as without grandeur. In the same way he recognises the charitable mind, uncharitable mind, peaceful mind, non-peaceful mind, passionless mind, passionate mind,—whatever be the nature of mind, he knows its internal and external features—knowing thus the nature of the thing, he does not identify any one with himself and does not grasp any one in this universe.

IV. Meditation upon the nature of conditions.

1. Meditation upon the five impurities (Nivarana):—

(1) Sensual desire (2) enmity (3) dullness (4) restlessness and grief (5) doubt. Concerning these five, the monk meditates if they are found in him or not. If they are found, he knows such ; if they are not found, he knows such ; if they are not in him, he recognises how they can be produced ; and if they are in him, he knows how to get rid of them. He also knows the way how not to let them again re-appear on their once disappearance. He is properly aware with the internal and external features of these five impurities. He knows the way how they arise and how they are destroyed.

2. Meditation upon five root spheres.

(Upadana skandha).

The monk recognizes the nature, the cause of arising, and the cause of destruction with regard to body, feeling, sensation, mentation and consciousness. He knows their internal and external feature.

3. Meditation upon the six internal and external sense-organs (âyatana).

The monk recognizes the eye, the object known through the eye, and the impurity of attachment produced in connection with these two; he also knows how the attachment can arise and how to destroy it if it has arisen, also knows the way how it may not again rise after its destruction once. In the same way, he recognizes all about ear, nose, tongue, body and mind.

4. Meditation upon seven modes of attaining true knowledge (Bodhi anga).

The monk recognizes ■ he has within himself the recollection of true knowledge ; if he has it, he knows such ; if he has it not, he knows such. He also knows how to produce it if ■ is not in him, and how to keep it firmly if it has arisen in him, and how to advance it to its completion. In the same way he meditates upon the other six modes (1) thought of Dharma or piety (2) energy (3) love (4) peacefulness (5) equanimity or concentration (6) non-attachment.

5. Meditation on four Arya truths.

The monk rightly knows the nature of pain, its cause, cessation of pain and the means of cessation of pain.

As to the 8th path Samyak Samadhi four kinds of concentration have been mentioned. But there are other concentrations also after them. For them see Majjhima Nikaya 8th sallekhana sutta.

The other improved concentrations according to Sallekhana sutta are the following:—

- (1) Ākāsa-ānantya-āyatana, to have concentration on pure infinite space.
- (2) Vijhāna-ānantya-āyatana—to have concentration on infinite consciousness.
- (3) Ākinchanya āyatana—to have concentration that nothing belongs to me.
- (4) Naiva Sanjñā nā sanjñā āyatana to concentrate that there is neither name nor any nameless, neither any sensation nor any non-sensation. This last concentration leads to Nirvāna, it appears.

As has been said above, the root cause of worldly wanderings is ignorance. We may give some more quotations from the Buddhist works to show the path of Nirvāna.

(4) "The doctrine of the Buddha" by George Grimm, page 287-288. Ignorance is the basis of the whole chain of suffering. Ignorance is the deep night where-in we here so long are circling round (sutta nipāta on P. 730).

If ignorance is abolished, thirst and together with it all causality is up-rooted for ever, those who have vanquished delusion, and broken through the dense darkness, will wander no more. Causality exists no more for them (Itivuttaka 114). In dependence on ignorance avidya, arises organic process of senses; in dependence on them, arises consciousness vijnāna; in dependence on vijnāna arises corporeal organization Nāmarūpa, in dependence on Nāmarūpa arises six organs of sense Sata āyatana, then contact phasa, then sensation Vedana, then thirst trisna, then grasping upadana, then becoming bhava, then birth jati, then old age, death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, grief, despair (Udan I 37).

Note.—The eight-fold path described above has its root beginning with Samyak-darsana, right view.

The correct view is the very first element of the path constructed by the Buddha for the annihilation of suffering. He himself calls it ditthi or right view.

The same book shows the necessity of right concentration p. 394, Contemplating and contemplating we will purify our deeds; contemplating and contemplating we will purify our thoughts. Thus Rahula, you ought to exercise yourself (M. I. P. 420).

The path of Nirvana is said in Chapter XX. Page 273. The best of way is the eight-fold ; the best of truths, the four words (pain, its origin, its destruction, its way) ; the best of virtues passionlessness ; the best of me-he who has eyes to see.

(4) Exertion is my beast of burden, carrying (me) to nibbana, he goes without turning back to the place, where having gone, one does not grieve.

= This body is like a lonely village, the six sense organs are like the village thieves. These senses reside in this village of body, but they do not know each other. The organ of eye runs to see the colour, ear knows sounds, nose knows many kinds of smell, the tongue goes to know different tastes, the body-sense runs to the objects of touch and mind-sense engages in thought of conditions ; these six sense-organs do not go against their own respective objects. This mind is feeling like deceit, is entangled in the objects of six senses, as a man goes in a lonely village and is captured by the six village thieves. This mind knows the objects of six senses. "This flies to them like a bird. Mind is a machine, which is engaged by the senses. You should not let it go to the senses but engage it in the self-knowledge."

PATH OF LIBERATION IN THE JAIN SCRIPTURES.

As the eight-fold path has been said to be the means of liberation in the Buddhist scriptures, so the three-fold path has been said to be the means of Nirvāna in the Jaina Scriptures.

This three-fold path is contained in the eight-fold path and vice versa. This three-fold path is called Ratnatrya Dharma or the Truth of the three gems. It is a combination of Samyakdarsana, right view or belief, Samyak jnāna, right knowledge, Samyakchāritra, right conduct.

The Jain Saint Kunda Kunda Acharya says in Samayasāra :—

दंसण जाग चारित्राणि सेविद्यकाणि साहुणा गिरां ।

ताणि पुण्ड्राणतिभिन्नि अप्याप्येव निष्ठयदो ॥

Damsana nāga charittāni, sevi davvāni sahuna nichcham,

*Tāni pūṇa jāṇa tinnivi appānam cheva nichchhayado

Jain philosophy, when it describes a thing from the practical point of view, analyses it into kinds and divisions ; but when it describes a thing from the real stand-point, it thinks of it as an indivisible whole.

Therefore from the practical stand-point, the path is three-fold, but from the real stand-point, it is the self only.

When one's own self is believed in and known as it is in its own essence and is realized as such—then pure concentration of one's own self appears. It is the real three-fold path or the self itself.

Sri Umaswami says in his Tattvartha sutra :

सम्यग्दर्शनकानवारित्पाणि मोक्षमार्गः।

*Samayag darsana jnâna châritrâni môksa

" Combination of right belief, right knowledge and right conduct is the way to liberation."

I. Samayak darsana or Samyak-dristi Right belief or Right view.

The Jain scriptures describe right belief with knowledge as Samyak darsana. From the practical point of view, it is necessary to have firm belief in the seven principles. Umaswami says in Tattvārtha sutra :—

तत्त्वार्थस्तदामं सम्यग्दर्शनम् ॥ २ ॥ जीवाजीवास्तवबन्ध-हंवरनिर्जरासोक्षासत्त्वम् ॥ ४ ॥

Tattvārtha sraddhanam samyag darsanam I. 2.
Jivajivasravabandha sanvara nirjara mokṣastattvam I. 4.

"Belief in the seven principles as they are, is called right belief. The principles are Jīva soul, Ajīva non-soul, Asrava inflow, Bandha bondage, Samvara checking, nirjara shedding, Mokṣa liberation."

All the modifications and objects of this universe come under the first two principles, soul, and non-soul. Nāma rupa of the Buddhist philosophy is included in these two principles. Feeling, perception, mentation, consciousness are found in the impure soul, while body is included in non-soul. Just as in the Buddhist philosophy, the knowledge and belief in the pain, its cause, its cessation and the way of its cessation is Right View; so also in the Jain Philosophy pain and its cause are described by the two principles Asrava inflow and bandha bondage, while the cessation of pain is the Mokṣa or liberation and the means of cessation is included in Samvara, checking and Nirjara, shedding.

It will be noted that in the Jain Scriptures, these principles are described according to the root-meaning of their words as per Sanskrit composition, e.g., Āsrava means "Asravati yat"—that which comes is āsrava. "Yena asravati tat"—that through which comes is āsrava.

Karmic molecules, which are very fine particles of matter and which cannot be perceived by any of the five senses, do come near the soul by attraction ; their coming is āsrava.

The good and bad activities of mind, body and speech are the causes for the inflow of karmic matter, therefore they are also called Āsrava. Inflow of karmic matter is called dravya āsrava material inflow or objective inflow while its cause is called bhāva āsrava or subjective inflow. Likewise the fine karmic matter bound with the mundane soul is called Dravya bandha, material bondage or objective bondage.

The thought-activity causing this material bondage is called bhāva bandha subjective bondage. Karmic matter which is prevented from inflow is called dravya samvara or material checking or objective checking, while the thought-activity which checks the inflow is called bhāva samvara, subjective checking. Karmic matter which is shed off is called dravya nirjara material shedding or objective shedding, while the thought-activity which causes shedding is called bhāva nirjara or subjective shedding. Total freedom of soul from karmic matter is called Dravya mokṣa material liberation or objective liberation ; while pure thought-activity which removes all the karmic molecules is called bhava mokṣa or subjective liberation.

The Buddhist literature has clearly described the subjective inflow, bondage, checking, shedding and liberation, while the objective inflow, etc. have been dealt with in a vague manner. It appears that the ordinary public will not understand easily the details of the material inflow etc. and perhaps this consideration has prevented them from being clearly and explicitly dealt with.

The Jain philosophy has described the subjective inflow and subjective bondage, i.e., causes of inflow of karmic matter and their bondage as follows :—

मिथ्यादर्शनाविरतिप्रमादकषयायोगा बन्धहेतवः ॥

Mithyā darsanāvirati pramāda-kaṣaya yoga bandha hetavah 1/8.

The causes of bondage (and inflow) are (1) Mithya-darsana or Mithva drista, i.e., wrong belief in the true principles (2) avirti not to restrain from himsa injury, Asattya falsehood, steya stealing, abrahma unchastity, parigraha thirst for worldly possessions (3) pramada carelessness or indifference to useful thoughts leading to Nirvāna, (4) Kaṣava passions, i.e., anger, pride, deceit and greed (5) yoga activities of mind, body and speech. These five are both the subjective inflow and subjective bondage.

The Jain saint Nāgasēna says as follows in his Taittivānusāsana about wrong belief and bondage :

"The principles have been said to be of two kinds adoptable and the other avoidable, so that the deserving souls, who are suffering by the heat of birth, old age and death, might attain the bliss of Nirvāna, 3.

Bondage with its cause is avoidable, because it is the seed of producing worldly pleasure and pain which are themselves avoidable. 4.

Liberation with its cause is adoptable, because it is the seed producing Spiritual Bliss which is adoptable, 5.

Intermingling of soul and karmic matter owing to its causes is bondage which is of four kinds:—Class-bondage, duration-bondage, fruition-bondage, quantity-bondage. 6.

The fruition of bondage is wandering in this world of many kinds such as material, spacial, etc. causing suffering to the worldly souls. 7.

The root causes of bondage are three, wrong belief, wrong knowledge, and wrong conduct, all else is its detail. 8.

Wrong belief is not to believe in the principles as they are, on account of the operation of right-belief-deluding karma. 9.

Wrong knowledge is to know the substances wrongly or doubtfully or not to care for knowing them on account of the operation of knowledge obscuring karma. 10.

Activities of mind, body and speech caused by passions like anger etc., on account of the operation of right-conduct-deluding karmas are said to be wrong conduct. 11.

Among the causes of bondage, wrong belief is the prominent cause; wrong knowledge is a minister to the king Wrong Belief or Delusion, 12.

'I am this', 'it is mine' these two are the sons as well as commanders-in-chief of the king Delusion; under their control the army of Delusion acts. 13.

That which is always other than the self just as body and other conditions is due to karmas. To identify oneself with them as "it is mine" is just as to believe that body is mine. 14.

To identify oneself with the impure thought-activities due to the operation of karmas which do not really belong to self as 'I am this' 'I am the King, (is wrong). 15.

'I am this' 'it is mine' these two thoughts arise on account of wrong belief with wrong knowledge. Attachment and hatred are due to these two. 16.

Attachment and hatred bring forth passions like anger etc. Affected by these passions, mind, body and speech, act, and through their actions the sins of injury to living beings etc. are caused. 17.

Through these sins, bondage of karmas occurs; on account of the operation of these karmas, good or bad conditions of existence appear, where the beings have fresh outer bodies and with them, sense organs. 18,

There the beings grasp the objects of senses and thereby produce delusion, attachment and hatred, whereby again bondage of karmas occurs; thus the mundane soul wanders with the army of delusion in this world, 19.

Note.—From the above description the nature of delusion or wrong-belief is clearly evident. It shows that to identify the self, which is really Nirvâna in essence, with any worldly condition is delusion.

This wrong belief is of the subjective inflow or Asrava or subjective bondage or bandha. Right belief removes the wrong belief.

The Jain Saint Amritachandra says thus about right belief in Tattvârthasâra.

पश्यति स्वस्वरूपं यो जानाति चरत्यपि ।

दर्शनज्ञानचारित्रं दयमौत्मवं स स्मृतः ॥

Pasyati svasvârûpam yo jânâti charatyapi

Right belief is to believe in the self as it is in its essence, while wrong belief is to identify oneself with all the other conditions and thoughts foreign to this real self.

Checking of the subjective inflow and bondage and of Vowlessness is caused by practising the full vows of non-injury, truth, non-stealing, chastity and non-possession. Checking of subjective inflow and bondage, and of carelessness is caused by acting carefully, that is by observing the five kinds of carefulness, i.e., Samiti.

(1) Iryâ samiti—carefully walking after seeing the way four cubits forward in the day-light.

(2) Bhâsha samiti—carefully speaking sweet and non-injurious words.

(3) Eshanâ samiti—carefully eating pure food given by a layman out of the food prepared for his family only. A Monk will not arrange for his food himself, nor order any one for it.

(4) Adâna-niksépana samiti—carefully taking and putting things so as not to cause injury to any life.

(5) Pratishthapanâ samiti—throwing out bodily filth so carefully as not to injure any life.

Checking of the subjective inflow and bondage of passions is caused by following the ten rules of piety or Dasa Dharma, by contemplating twelve meditations, or dvâdasa bhâvana, by conquering twenty-two kinds of sufferings or dvâvinsati parishaha jaya and by following five kinds of right conduct or pancha châritra.

The Ten rules of piety are :—Uttama Kshamâ or highest forgiveness, control over anger.

(2) Uttama mârdava or highest humility, control over pride.

(3) Uttama ârjava or highest straight-forwardness, control over deceit.

(4) Uttama saucha or highest contentment or purity, control over greed.

(5) Uttama sattyâ or highest truth, refrain from false-hood.

(6) Uttama samyama or highest self-control, restraint of senses and compassionate dealing.

(7) Uttama tapa or highest austerities, control of desire and self-meditation.

(8) Uttama tyâga, or highest charity, to bestow alms of food, medicine, knowledge and fearlessness to the deserving.

(9) Uttama âkinchanya or highest non-attachment, not to regard any non-self to be one's own self.

(10) Uttama Brahmacharya—highest chastity, restraining from thoughts of sexual enjoyment.

The Twelve meditations are :—

(1) Anitya or transitoriness—All created things and modifications are destructible such as riches, family, body, pleasure, pain, impure thoughts etc.

(2) Asarana or unprotectiveness, no one can protect us from death and karmic effects.

(3) Sansâra or worldly wandering, all the four conditions of existence, hellish, celestial, sub-human, and human are full of sufferings and are therefore to be avoided.

(4) Ekatva or solitariness. The self is alone responsible for its actions ; alone it is born, alone it dies, alone it has to suffer. Its nature is free from all non-self.

(5) Anyatva or otherness. All the good or bad karmas, body, different objects, conditions and non-self thoughts are other than one's own self.

(6) Asuchitva or Impurity. Body and its contents are impure; one should not be deluded by this impure body.

(7) Asrava or inflow. Wrong belief etc., are the causes of inflow of good and bad karmas.

(8) Samvara or checking. Right belief etc., are the causes of checking the karmic inflow.

(9) Nirjara or shedding. Right self-concentration, equanimity, and non-attachment are the causes of shedding karmas.

(10) Loka or universe. Universe is uncreated, eternal, full of self and non-self substances. It is changing on account of conditions, but indestructible on account of the root substances.

(11) Bodhi durlabha. Difficulty of obtaining knowledge. It is very difficult to understand the true path and also to follow it. When once it is known, it should be pursued carefully and wisely.

(12) Dharma or the True Path. True path is right belief, right knowledge and right conduct. This is the means of liberation and perfect bliss.

Conquering of Twenty-two Sufferings :—

The sufferings are: (1) Hunger (2) thirst (3) cold (4) heat (5) biting of mosquitoes, etc. (6) nakedness (7) dislike (8) woman (9) walking (10) sitting (11) sleeping (12) abuse (13) beating (14) asking alms (15) Failure to get alms (16) disease (17) contact with prickly shrubs (18) dirt (19) honour or dishonour

(20) conceit of knowledge (21) ignorance (22) slack belief.

Five Kinds of Right Conduct :—

(1) Sāmāyika—equanimity or self-concentration.

(2) Chēdōpāsthāpanā—Recovery of equanimity after a fall from it.

(3) Parihāra Visuddhi—Pure and absolute non-injury.

(4) Sukshma sāmparāya—Slightest passion.

(5) Yathākhyāta—Ideal and passionless conduct.

Checking of the subjective inflow and bondage of mind, body and speech activities is said to be Gupti or restraint of mind, body and speech by engaging oneself in self-contemplation.

All the kinds of subjective inflow or Bhūta asrava, mentioned in the Jaina scriptures, if compared with the asravas dealt with in the Buddhist literature will be found to agree with one another.

(1) sakkāya ditthi (2) vichi kichchā (3) Silabbata parā mā so."

"I was in past time," "I will be in future time," "I am in the present time":—On creating such notions in the mind, he will have one of the six (wrong) views (1) my soul is (2) my soul is not (3) 'I know soul by soul' (4) 'I know non-soul by soul (5) I know soul by non-soul" (6) "This my soul which experiences the ripening of karmas is eternal, indestructible and unshakeable and has the nature of unchangeability."

Thus arises the net of (wrong) belief, jungle of belief, the thorn of belief, the cloud of belief, the bondage of belief. On account of this bondage of (wrong) belief the soul is not saved from birth, old age, death sorrow, weeping, pain, grief and miseries. He who actually understands "this is pain," this is the cause of pain; this is the cessation of pain; this is cause of its cessation, removes three kinds of dirts (1) identifies himself with body (2) doubt engages in vows and rituals only. Thus the asrava of wrong belief should be removed by right belief.

Note.—Really Nirvana or the pure soul is realizable only; it cannot be grasped rightly through mind. Whatever notions an ignorant soul forms in his mind about the soul are not the real facts, about the soul, but they are quite against the reality of the soul. In the above statement of the Majjhima nikaya six kinds of wrong beliefs about the soul are described (1) my soul is—here the real soul is identified with the impure conditions of the soul due to ripening of karmas—therefore it is a wrong view. (2) My soul is not—here total non-existence of soul is maintained. (3) I know soul by soul—here also the thinker's mind grasps the impure condition of the soul to be the real soul. He does not take the pure and unthinkable soul into his mind; therefore it is also a wrong view. (4) I know non-soul by the soul. Here he understands that, he acting through mind and senses and thereby knowing others, is the real soul. This is also a wrong view. He does not consider the pure soul which does not require help of senses and mind, but which can know all himself and others independently. (5) I know soul by non-soul this is also a wrong view. He understands that mind and senses which are not the soul, can know the soul. (6) My soul which experiences the ripening of karmas is eternal and unchangeable. This is also the wrong view, because that impure soul which experiences fruits of karmas is not eternal but is changeable. Here also the pure soul of Nirvana has not been taken into consideration. These six kinds of wrong beliefs maintain something else than the real pure soul. Whoever believes in the Nirvana or the realizable pure soul, he removes all these wrong views. Then he does not identify his pure soul with the five spheres, body, feeling, perception, mentation and (impure) consciousness. All his doubts are removed, although he follows practical rules of conduct, he believes them to be rejectable. He maintains that only pure concentration or Samādhi is adoptable. This is the right view or right belief or Samyak darsana.

In fact such is the statement of the Jain Saints also about right belief or Samyak darsana.

The Jain Saint Kunda Kunda Acharya says in Samayasāra :—

जीवस्स णत्थि रागो णविदोसो षेव विजदे मोहो
णोपचया णकम्मं णोकम्मं चाविसे णत्थि
णेवयजीवद्वाणा णगुणद्वाणाय अतिथजीवस्स
जेणदु एदे सध्ये पुमालद्ववस्स परिणामा.

*Jivassa natthi rāgo navi doso neva vijjade mōho,
No pachchayā na kammam no kammam chāvi se natthi 56
Nevaya jīva itthānā na guna itthānā ya atti jīvassa, Jenadu ede sauve puggula davvassa pari nāmā 60*

In the pure soul, there is neither affection nor hatred nor delusion, neither causes of asrava, nor karmas, nor quasi-karmas even. 56.

Neither there are soul classes nor spiritual stages in the soul, because all these are the modifications of matter only, (because they appear in soul in connection with matter).

Samayasāra Kalasa says the same :—

वर्णाद्यावा रागमोहाद्योवा भिन्नाभावा सर्वेषात्स्य पुंसः ।
तेनैवान्तस्तत्त्वत् पश्यतोऽमीनोदृष्टाः स्युद्रिष्टमेकं परंत्पात् ॥

Varnāddyā vā rāga mohādayo vā chinnā bhāvah sarva evāsyā punsah.

Tenaivāntastattvalāh pasyto mē-no dṛistāh syurdriṣṭā mekam param syat 5/2.

All these colours etc. or affection and delusion etc. modifications are other than the pure soul; therefore while realizing within the self, these are not realized, only the highest one is realizable.

Note.—This pure and highest one is nothing but the nature of Nirvana. Thus the subjective inflow of wrong belief is removed by right view or right belief. Jainism and Budbhism are one in this point.

" What asavas should be removed by restraint—Samvara :—

The Saint, knowing the senses and mind separate from his self through self-discrimination, walks under restraint of eye-sense, ear-sense, nose-sense, tongue-sense, body sense and mind sense. Thus the destructive rise of Ásavás is restrained."

Note.—In the Jain scripture vowlessness is said to be the second cause of subjective inflow and its checking i.e., by following five vows of non-injury, etc. Here in the above statement restraint of five senses and mind is said to check vowlessness. So it is quite right, because restraint of these six senses leads to non-commission of the five sins viz., injury etc., due to lust and sense-gratification and thus the five vows of non-injury, etc. are actually observed. He who has full control over his senses, mind, and thought will never injure any one, nor speak untruth, not steal anything, not act unchastefully, nor have attachment for possessions. The same idea has been expressed by the Jain Saint Sri Umaswami in his Tattwartha Sutra, 6th Chapter :—

इन्द्रियकर्त्तायाव्रतक्रियाः - एश्वर्तुः एश्वर्पञ्चविशतिसंख्याः
पूर्वस्य भेदाः.

Indriya kaṣṭyā vrata kriyā pancha chatuh pancha pancha vinortisankhya pūrvasya bhedah, vi, 5.

"Five senses, four passions, five kinds of vowlessness and twenty-five kinds of activity are the kinds of worldly 'asrava'."

Note.—Here five senses have been said to be the main causes of anger, vowlessness, etc. When senses are controlled, every other sin is restrained.

" What Asavas are restrained by careful dealing (note :—pati sevana appears to be the equivalent of samiti in Jainism).

The Monk, knowing himself separate through self-discrimination, uses clothes to keep off cold, heat, mosquito-biting, air, sun-shine, serpents, etc. and for shame; takes alms not for sport, nor for pride nor for glory, but for keeping the body, to be saved from injury and to follow chastity; so that old troubles may be removed and new ones may not arise and that my journey of life may go on defectless, and I may walk easily. He uses seats and beds for the removal of cold, etc., takes medicine for the removal of diseases—all these functions are done with carefulness; then those harmful āsavas which would have been caused by carelessness would not happen.

"What āsavās are removed by calm suffering :—

The Bhikkhu, full of self-discrimination, calmly suffers cold, heat, hunger, thirst, mosquito-biting, wind, sun-shine, touch of serpents, etc., hearing abusive words, bodily troubles, hard pains, unbearable to mind and other deadly matters ; then he removes all those harmful āsavās which would have been caused by his not calmly suffering them ; thus āsavās should be removed by calm suffering.

Note :—The Conquering of 22 sufferings described in Jainism for the restraint of inflow includes what is described above.

What asavas should be removed by avoiding :—

The Monk, full of self-discrimination, carefully walks avoiding the fearful elephant, rude horse, striking bullock, wrathful dog, serpent, column, thorny place hill, spring, pond and place of refuse. He avoids those unfit seats, and those sinful friendships on account of which the learned, chaste monk may be liable to commit sin. Thus those harmful asavas which would have been caused by non-avoiding them are not caused. Thus Asavas should be removed by avoidance.

Note.—This is included in the five kinds of carefulness (Samiti) of the Jains stated before to avoid the inflow due to carelessness.

What asavas should be removed by destruction :—

The Monk, full of self-discrimination, does not grasp the arising thought of sensual desire of anger, of injury and other harmful thoughts, gives them up, destroys them, ends them, and clears them off. Thus three harmful asavas which would have been caused by not destroying them do not occur by their destruction. Thus asavas should be removed by destruction.

Note.—According to Jainism, the ten rules of piety of highest forgiveness etc. described before include the above.

“What asavas should be removed by meditation :—

The Monk meditates upon (1) the recollection of true knowledge (2) upon thoughts of Dharma or piety (3) upon energy (4) upon love (5) upon peacefulness (6) upon equanimity or concentration (7) and upon non-attachment-with discrimination, with, passionlessness, with restraint and with determination of renunciation. Then those harmful asavas which would have been caused by their non-meditation do not happen by their meditation. Thus asavas should be removed by meditation.

Note.—The twelve meditations already described according to the Jain Scriptures for restraint of inflow of passions do very correctly include the above stated seven meditations

The Buddhist Asrava Sutra of Majjhima Nikaya correctly agrees with the subjective inflow and the subjective checking of karmas described in the Jain Scriptures.

The Jain philosophy mentions self-concentration as the means for the shedding of karmic dirt. This self-realization purifies the soul, and thereby the soul attains Nirvâna.

The Jain Saint Sri Umasamevi says in the Tattvârtha sutra :—

Translation and purport :—

The Shedding of karmas is caused by austerities. They are of two kinds; external and internal. The external austerities are of six kinds :—

(1) Anasana—fasting. Not taking any of the four kinds of food e.g. eatable, drinkable, lickable and tastable, for promoting self-control, for destroying lust and for attaining self-concentration.

(2) Avamōdarya—Taking less than what is required for the appetite, for awakening in control, subsidence of defects, contentment, easy engagement in reading and meditation.

(3) Vritti pari sankhyāna—to have a sacred pledge in mind before going for alms such as to go till so many homes, etc. If the pledge is not fulfilled and if alms are not procured then to have satisfaction and to subdue desires.

(4) Rasa parityâga—to give up one or more of the six kinds of rasas e.g., ghee, curd, milk, sugar, salt and oil, for the control of senses and for easy engagement in reading and meditation.

(5) Vivikta sayyâ sana—to sleep and to sit in a lonely place for the observance of chastity and for the attainment of deep meditation and deep knowledge.

(6) Kâyaklesa—Mortification of the body so long as the mind is not disturbed. To practise austerities in forest, on mountains and on the shore of a sea or the bank of a river etc. for advancing in self-concentration and spiritual bliss. Others may know that the monks are suffering hardships, but they may not feel any kind of uneasiness. These six external austerities are practised by a monk according to his own might, so that he may not feel any pain but feel internal happiness and love. It is said in "Tattvartha sutra" Saktitastapah 24/6. "Anighita viryasya margavirodhî kâya klesa tapah"—i.e., this kâyaklesa tapa should be followed according to one's own power which may not be inconsistent with the real path of liberation.

The six internal austerities are :—

(1) Prâyaschitta—Expiation—to remove one's transgressions in vows on adopting punishment through the teacher.

(2) Vinaya—Reverence—for the right belief, right knowledge and right conduct and for the worthy followers.

(3) Vaiyya vritya—Service—serving the distressed, fatigued and sick saints.

(4) Svâdhyâya—Reading holy scriptures.

(5) Vyatsarga—Giving up attachment to body etc.

(6) Dhyana—Concentration.

Concentration is of four kinds:—

(1) Arta dhyana—painful concentration as feeling sorrow etc. (2) Raudra Dhyana—wicked concentration—to have pleasure in teasing others. (3) Dharma dhyana—right concentration. (4) Sukla dhyana—Pure concentration. Right concentration is of four kinds:—

(1) Ajna vichaya—to meditate upon the right principles according to the scriptures.

(2) Ajna vichaya—to meditate on how to remove one's affection and hatred and karmas and how to remove wrong belief and knowledge of others.

(3) Vipaka vichaya—to meditate upon the causes of pleasure and pain, the ripening of karmas.

(4) Sansthana vichaya—to meditate upon the nature of the universe and upon the pure soul itself.

Pure concentration—is of four kinds:—

(1) Prithakva vitarka vichara. Absorption in meditation of the Self, but unconsciously allowing its different attributes to replace one another.

(2) Ekatva vitarka avichara—Absorption in one aspect of the Self, without changing the particular aspect concentrated upon.

(3) Suksma kriya-pratipati—The very fine vibratory movements in the Soul, even when it is deeply absorbed in itself, in a Kevali.

(4) Vyupurata kriya nivarti—Total absorption of the self in itself, steady and undisturbably fixed without any motion or vibration whatsoever.

In Jainism, practical right belief has been said to be firm belief in the seven principles, of which subjective inflow, subjective bondage, subjective checking and subjective shedding have been described above.

Self-concentration or perfect equanimity or Samyak Samādhi is the subjective shedding which removes karmic dirts. Subjective liberation or Nirvana is the same thing and has been described in the first chapter. Nāma rūpa of the Buddhists is included in the two principles soul and non-soul. Some more details of these two principles may be useful to the readers :—

The soul principle—

The nature of the soul from both the practical and real points of view have been described in the second chapter. All the conditions pertaining to the worldly souls are included in Nāma rūpa of the Buddhists, while the pure soul i.e., (worldly soul minus worldly conditions and matter) is what is Nirvana of the Buddhists and the Jains.

Non-soul principle :—

There is no consciousness in it. It is of five kinds. They are the five root-substances :

(1) Pudgala—matter. That in which atoms may have union and disunion is called Pudgala. Its special natures are touch, taste, smell and colour. Indivisible matter is particle and different kinds gross and fine molecules are formed by their different numerical union. The four elements of earth, water, fire and air are formed from matter. Karmic molecules which inflow towards the mundane soul and are bound with it are fine material molecules invisible to the senses. Sound, bondage, fine things, gross things, material figures, pieces, darkness, shades, light and sun-shine etc. are all the modifications of matter.

Tattvārthasāra says :—

भेदादिभ्यो निमित्तेभ्यः पूर्णाङ्गालनादपि ।

पुद्गलानां स्वभावाः कथ्यंते पुद्गलाद्वति ॥

Bhedādi bhyo nimittebhyah Purnāngalālanadapi Pudgalānām svabhāvajnaiḥ kathyante pudgalā iti
55/3.

Pudgalas are so called, because they unite and dis-unite, owing to breaking and mingling, on account of external causes.

(2) Dharma sti kāya—medium of motion. It is one immaterial substance all pervading in the universe which is a very essential auxiliary cause for the motion of souls and matter. It does not induce them to move.

(3) Adharmāsti kāya—medium of rest. It is one immaterial substance all pervading in the universe which is a very essential auxiliary cause for the resting of souls and matter. It does not induce them to rest.

(4) Ākāsa. Space—It is infinite, is the greatest of all substances in dimension, immaterial, one whole substance—which has the capacity of giving space to all the other substances.

(5) Kala—Time. Time-atoms called kalani are separate existing on each of the spacial points of the universe. As the spacial units of the universe are innumerable so the Time-atoms are also innumerable in number. Their function is to be the auxiliary cause of the modification of all the substances.

Note.—As far as I have read the Buddhist literature, I have not found such divisions of the substances in it. The Buddhist books say that Goutama did not describe 'what is in the universe.'

According to Jainism right belief and right knowledge of the seven principles, soul, non-soul, inflow, bondage, checking, shedding and liberation are practical right belief and right knowledge, while firm belief in the pure nature of one's own self is the real right belief and right knowledge.

Let us describe Right Conduct; Dravya Samgraha, a Jain work says :—

असुहादो विणिवित्ति सुहे पवेत्ती य जाण चारित्सं ।
वदसमिदिगुत्तिरुवं वथहारणया दु जिनभणियं ॥ ४५ ॥
Asuhádo vinvitti suhe pavitté ya Jāṇa chārittam, Vadasamidiguttiruvam vavaháraṇayā du Jīṇabha-niyam.

Giving up bad engagement and following good engagements should be known to be conduct ; (five) vows, (five) carefulness and (three) restraints have been said to be practical conduct by the Jina.

Five Mahāvratā or great vows are non-injury, truth, non-stealing, chastity and non-possession.

Five Samiti or carefulness are carefulness in walking, speaking, eating, handling and casting refuse.

Three Gupti or restraints are control over mind, body and speech.

These thirteen kinds of conduct are for the monks from the practical point of view.

Dravya-Samgraha says :—

बहिरभंतरकिरियारोहो भवकारणप्यपासदुः ।
णाणिस्त ज्ञ जिषुर्तं परमं समचारित्तम् ॥ ४६ ॥
Bahirabhantrarakiriyāroho bhava-kāraṇapppanā satkam,
Nāṇissa Jñām Jīvuttam tam paramāṇi samma-chārittam.

Cessation of external and internal activity for the destruction of causes of the worldly existence by a right knower has been said to be the real right conduct by the Jina.

Self realization or self-absorption is surely the real right conduct.

Note.—The readers must note that the Buddhist books describe the eight-fold path of liberation which agrees with the three-fold path of liberation described in the Jain books.

Just as self-concentration has been prominently said to be the means of deliverance in the Buddhist Books, so also it has been said in the Jain books. Let us give some passages from the Jain books.

(1) Dravya Samgraha of Sri Nemichandra :—

तुविहंपि मोक्षहेतुं ज्ञाने पादृणदि ज्ञं मुम्पो धियमा ।

"Because both kinds of practical and real paths of liberation can be attained in self-concentration, therefore the wise after giving up slothfulness, should always practise concentration."

"Attention to one special object (soul) without wavering is concentration. It is the cause of checking karmas and shedding them also."

"Because the soul concentrates upon itself, in itself, through itself, for itself and from itself, therefore the soul itself present in the six cases is concentration, from the real point of view."

"Renunciation of property, control of passions, practising of vows and conquering of mind and senses are the materials for the practice of concentration."

"Practise concentration from scriptural reading, and come to scriptural reading from concentration—thus by the gift of concentration and reading the pure soul is enlightened."

"He, who wants concentration, should know and believe the self and the non-self as they are and then giving up the non-soul thinking it to be useless, should perceive and know the self only."

"He should always see the self through the self, as distinct from all the thought-activities arising by karmas, having knowledge as nature and indifferent to others."

"As far as the concentrating person attains steadiness in his own self, so far the glories of concentration would be realised."

"Again there are four special causes of concentration:—(1) Instruction from a Teacher (2) conviction (3) continual practice (4) and steady mind."

"O Soul ! give up these sensual enjoyments which are fleeting like lightening ; O Soul, there is no such pain which has not been suffered by you in this very dangerous forest of Samsara. If you have any desire, O Wisdomless, for these sinful enjoyments, you should give it up even now, otherwise, O Fool, you can never go to Nirvāna being freed from the great miseries of this Samsara."

PRAJNA OR SELF-DISCRIMINATION.

The Buddhist literature has shown the great necessity for Prajna in very strong terms :—

(1) Hindi Buddha Charya page 415 (D.N. 1-10.2) Sangita pariyaya Sutta. There have been described four right spheres :—

Prajna (discrimination), Sila (practical vows), Samādhi (concentration) and Vimukti (liberation). Out of these four, the last is the result while the first three are the means to Nirvāna, and they are included in the eight-fold path Samyak dristi, etc. During my talks with the learned Buddhist Monks of Ceylon I came to know that Samyak dristi and Samyak sankalpa are included in prajna; Samyak Vachana, Samyak Karmanta, Samyakajiva, Samyak Vyayama and Samyaksmriti are included in Sila; while Samyak Samâdhi is itself Samâdhi.

The Jain scriptures also describe the three-fold path which very closely resembles the Buddhist three-fold path. Samyak darsana and Samyak Jnana of the Jains are included in Prajna, because it means right discrimination such as "my self is distinct from non-self and all other substances, and that I am only realizable alone"; while practical Samyak-châritra of the Jains is included in Sila and the real Samyak châritra is included in Samâdhi.

(2) Buddha Charya p. 244 D.N. 1-4 Sinadanda Sutta—

It says : "Self-discrimination is purified by conduct, conduct is purified by self-discrimination. When there is conduct there is discrimination; when there is discrimination, there is conduct; self-discrimination is procured by conduct, while conduct is procured by self-discrimination. Still conduct is said to be the foremost of all the self-discriminations. Self-discrimination is purified by conduct and conduct is purified by self-discrimination."

Note. In fact, practical conduct is necessary for right belief and right knowledge, thereby the mind will become mild and self-discrimination will appear, while on procuring self-discrimination, practical conduct will be improved and concentration will arise. Both are the means for concentration.

The Jain scriptures also glorify prajna or self-discrimination thus :—

Samayasára says :—

पण्णापवित्तान्वो जो चेदा सो अहं तु निच्छयदो ।
अवसेसा जे भाषा ते मज्जे परेति जाव्या ॥ ७१ ॥

. Pannáe ghittavvo Jo chadá so aham tu nichchhayado,
Avasesá Je bhává te majjhe paretti ná davyá

“ That conscious being which is to be grasped by self-discrimination is I am myself from the real point of view ; all the other conditions are foreign to me—this should be known.”

Sára Samuchchaya says :—

प्रज्ञांगना सदासेव्या पुरुषेण सुखावहा ।
हेयोपादेयतत्त्वज्ञा या रता सर्व कर्मणे ॥ ७५ ॥

Prajná nganá sadá sevya purseṇa sukhá vahā,
Heyópádeya tattvajna ya rata sarva karmant.

“ The Maiden of self-discrimination, which is always obedient in knowing the adoptable and the rejectable principle in all the actions and is blissful, should always be served by a man.”

FOUR MEDITATIONS.

The Buddhist literature speaks highly of the four meditations :—maitre or friendship, pramôda or delight, kárunya or compassion, Upéksa or madhyastha or indifference.

Buddha Charya pa. 186 M. N. 2. 1. 2. Mahā Rāhula-vāda sutta (1) Rahula ! meditate upon friendship ; by such friendly feelings enmity will be destroyed. (2) Rahula ! meditate upon compassion ; by compassionate feelings, injurious thoughts will be destroyed. (3) Rahula ! meditate upon delight, by delightful thoughts you will remove dissatisfaction. (4) Rahula ! meditate upon indifference, by which your thought of enmity will be destroyed.

The Jain scriptures also declare that these should be meditated upon by every saint and layman :—

(1) Tattvārtha sutra by Umaswami says :—

मैत्रीप्रमोदकारुण्यं माध्यस्थानि च सत्त्वगुणाधिकं क्लिश्य-
माना विनयेषु ॥ ११-७ ॥

Maitri-pramoda kārunyamadyas-thani cha sattva gunādhika kliśyamānā vina yeshu. 11/7

“ Friendship towards all the beings, delight towards those great in qualifications, compassion towards the afflicted and indifference towards those who are perversely inclined.”

(2) Samāyika path by Amitagati says :—

सत्त्वेषु मैत्री गुणेषु प्रमोदं क्लिश्ये जीवेषु कृपापरत्वं ।
माध्यस्थं भावं विपरीतवृत्तौ सदा ममात्मा विदधातु देवः ॥१॥

Sattoesu maitri gunisu pramodam, Klitesu Jivesu Kripa parattvam.

Mādhyastha bhāvam viparita vrittai sada mamatme vida dhātu deva : 1

"O Lord, let my soul always have friendship towards all the beings, delight towards the qualified, compassion towards the afflicted and indifference towards those perversely inclined."

The above statements will clearly show that the eight-fold path of Nirvâna in Buddhism quite agrees with the three-fold path of Nirvâna in Jainism. Both Jainism and Buddhism believe that one can attain Nirvâna by one's own efforts; never can it be given through compassion by any personal God.

Both the religions lay stress on self-discrimination. Both strongly recommend the giving up of affection, hatred, delusion. Both say that Nirvâna is realizable. Both lay stress on the control of the five senses and the mind. Both teach relinquishing injury, false-hood, theft, unchastity and desire.

Both declare that mind, body and speech must be kept free from harmful actions and they should be applied to those useful means which result in procuring Nirvâna.

CHAPTER IV.

KARMAS AND THEIR FRUITS.

It is evident from the Buddhist literature that every being experiences fruits of his good and bad deeds in the very life or in the future life and that the being takes another birth owing to Sanskara or mentation of previous birth ; and that as far as continuation of five spheres of body, feeling, perception, mentation and (impure) consciousness goes on, so long has the being to undergo many births and that when all the āsavās (impure thought-vitalities) will be destroyed, Nirvāna will be procured.

Although Buddhist literature does not seem to give clear, direct and detailed description of bondage and fruition of Karmas, still there are scattered passages here and there which show that the writers of the Buddhist literature had in their mind the description of karmas according to what the Jain scripture says.

A metaphysician can know it by devoted and critical study. Jain authors say that there are fine karmic molecules made up of material particles floating throughout the universe. They are so fine that they cannot be known by our senses. This mundane soul attracts them according to good and bad thought-activities when performing actions through mind, body and speech. This is called āśrava or inflow. Their existence with the soul for some duration is called Bandha or bondage.

When these bound karmas are ripened, they give agreeable or disagreeable results. They can be destroyed before their ripening-time by self-concentration. When there is no inflow of karmas through passions, the soul is called Ksināśrava or destroyer of inflow. Thus by checking inflow and by destroying the old accumulated karmas, the soul attains liberation or môksa or Nirvâna.

Môksa has been described in Tattvartha sutra by Umaswami thus :—

वंघहेत्यभावनिर्जराभ्यां कृत्कार्मविप्रमोक्षो मोक्षः।

Bandha hetva bhâva nirjarâbhyaṁ kritsna karma vipra môksô môksah.

" Liberation (is) the freedom from all karmic matter, owing to the non-existence of the causes of bondage and to the shedding of karmic molecules."

Before describing in detail the karmic philosophy as given in the Jain scriptures, it is advisable to let the readers know those passages in the Buddhist literature which in short give the description of karmas as is given in Jainism.

(1) Majjhim nikaya ; deotia sutta savvâsava.

"Āsāvā samvara pahā tava," is a Pali question. Which āsāvā should be removed by samvara? Here both these words are the same as in Jainism. If their liberal meaning is taken into consideration, they would mean that something, which comes, is checked.

"Bhikkhu savvāsava samvara samvuto vihorati." This means that the monk roams while checking all the dsravas (i.e., all the karmas which had to come were checked).

(2) Majjhim nikaya bhaya bhairava sutta Chatuttham.

"Yathā kam mupage satte pajanami" i.e., I know the beings when they are prone to ripening of their karmas.

Note. Here the word "kam mupage" shows that karmas are ripened "Michchhā ditthi kamme sama-dāna" (i.e.) having wrong belief karma.

Note. This passage refers to a class of karma named mithyā-dristi karma which is bound by a wrong believer.

(3) Digha Nikaya Vol. III—33, Sangita Suttanta.

"Tayo rāsi—michchatta—niyato rāsi, sammatta niyato rāsi, aniyato rāsi." Here the word rāsi means a collection or group,

The passage means "the group of wrong belief only, the group of right belief only, the group of their mixed."

These terms refer to three classes of karmic molecules as described in Jain scriptures:—wrong belief deluding karma is of three kinds, wrong belief karmas, clouded right belief karma and mixed right and wrong belief karma. The word rasi refers to group of karmic molecules as said in the Jain scripture.

(4) Buddha Charya page 370 Anguli mala sutta (M. N. 2-4.8.)

"O Brahmana, you are suffering the fruit of that karma (karma vipaka) in the very life, which would have to be suffered for many centuries, many millenniums in the hell by you. Then the Saint Angulimala, while enjoying the bliss of freedom in self-concentration at a solitary place said the verse which means."

"He at first collects the karmas and then destroys them. He is shining in the universe like the moon within the clouds. His acquired bad karmas are covered with good karmas."

Note. Here the words karma vipaka, 'arjite' 'marjit', the example of cloud and moon show that karmas are something material distinct from the pure soul; which can be ripened, collected and destroyed and they obscure the soul in the same way as the clouds obscure the moon and when they are removed, the moon-like soul is shining forth.

(5) The Doctrine of the Buddha by George Grimm (1926.)

Page 252. First of all, of course, our present body, like every future one, together with all its sense-organs and mental faculties ; thus what we have called before the six-sense-machine is exclusively a product of our previous action, in-as-much as it has brought about the grasping in the material womb ; This not, ye disciples, your body, nor the body and another, rather must it be regarded as the deed of the past, the deed that has come to fruition, the deed that is willing actualized. That has become perceptible. (S. N., II p. 64.)

The eye, ye monks, is to be recognized and regarded as determined through former action, the ear, the nose, the tongue, the body, the mind, ye monks ; to be recognized and regarded as formed and determined through former action (S. N. II. p. 72.)

P. 256. These, ye disciples, a man has won insight with the body, has practised himself in virtue, has developed his mind, has awakened knowledge, is broad-minded, magnanimous, dwelling in the immeasurable. In such a man, ye disciples, the same small crime which he has committed ripens even during his life-time.

Note. In the above passage, the word kamma is translated by deed while it really means karmic molecules.

(6) Manuscript Remains of Buddhist literature in Eastern Turkestan by A. F. R. Hoernl (1916).

Sata-panchā sika stotra by Matricheta. Its 73rd verse has the words “Raga renam praśam ayati” means—“subsiding the ashes of affection.”

Note. Here the word ‘raga’ shows that affection producing karma is a material like ash.

Part II Vajra Chhedika:

“ प्रज्ञापारमितां एतां संकलितवान् सर्वाङ्गः भगवान् तां त्रिशतिकाम् बाधयति प्रकाशायति यः एव वज्र छेदिकाम् नाम सर्वाणि कर्माणि तथा भावणीस्य पापाणि सम्यक् वज्रः यथा तेन वज्रेष्ठेदिका नामः ॥ ”

“Prajñā pūra mitam etām sankalita vān—sarvaj- nah bhagawān tām tri satikām vāchayati prakásayati yah eva vajra chhedikām nāma sarvāni karmāni tathāávarnasya pūpāni samyak vajra yuthā tena vajra chedikā nāma.”

“ This Prajñā paramita sutra has been declared by the omniscient lord. It has three hundred verses. He who reads and expresses it, for him its name is assigned “vajra chhedika i.e., it cuts off all the karmas and obscuring demerits like adamant, therefore it is named such.”

Note. This statement very clearly shows that karma is a material thing which obscures and which can be cut and broken.

Page 289. Apari mitāyuh sutra. It has twenty verses.

“ य हृष्म अपरिभितायुः सत्त्वं लिखित्यति लिखापिति- व्यति तस्य पञ्चान्तरायाणि कर्मावणीनि परिक्षयं गच्छति. ”

" Ya idam apari mitāyuh sūtram likhi syati, likhe payisyati, tasya panchantara yani karma varnani pariksayam guchchhanti."

" He who writes this apari mitayuh sutram or makes another write it, his five obstructive karma-obscurings are destroyed."

Note.—Here the obscuring of karmas and their destruction is described just like what the Jain scripture says. Jain literature describes antaraya karma or obstructive karma to be of five kinds:—Dānāntaraya (obstructing charity), Lābhāntaraya (obstructing gain), Bhōgāntaraya (obstructing the use of once-enjoyables) Upa bhōgāntaraya (obstructing the use of many-times-enjoyables), Viryantaraya (obstructing power).

They are material molecules, which are collected and destroyed.

(10) "Samsara or Buddhist philosophy of birth and death" by Bhiksu Narada, published by P. D. M. Perera, Post Master, Talavakele (16-10-1930).

Page 5. Buddha tells us that the coming into being of the linking consciousness (Pati sandhi-vinnana) is dependent upon the passing away of another consciousness in a past birth, and that the process of coming into being and passing away is the result of the powerful force known as kamma.

It is common to say after witnessing an out-break of passion or sensuality in a person whom we deemed characterized by a high moral standard, "How could he have committed such an act, or followed such a conduct?" It was not the least like what he appeared to others and probably to himself." What did it denote? It denoted, Buddhists say, part at any rate of what he really was, a hidden but true aspect of his actual self, or in other words his karmic tendencies."

Page 15. "By death is here meant, according to the abhidhamma, the ceasing of psychic life of one's individual existence, or to express it in the words of a western philosopher, the temporary end of a temporary phenomenon of the so-called being, for, although the organic life has ceased, the force which hitherto actuated it, is not destroyed. As the kammic force remains entirely undisturbed by the dis-integration of the fleeting body, the passing away of the present consciousness only conditions a fresh one in another birth."

"The new being which is the present manifestation of the stream of kamma energy is not the same as, and has no identity with, the previous one in its line; the aggregate that makes up its composition being different from, and having no identity with those that make up the being of its predecessor. And yet it is not an entirely different being, since the same stream of kamma energy, though modified per-chance just by having shown itself in that last manifestation, which is now making its presence known in the sense-perceptible world as the new thing" (na ca so na cha anna)—(neither the same nor another).

(11) The tract The Bodhi Satta Ideal by the same author Narada Bhiksu.

Page 18. "No person what-so-ever is exempt from the inexorable law of Kamma. It is law in itself. It alone determines the future birth of every individual. A Bodhisatta enjoys the special privilege of not seeking birth in eighteen states, in the course of his wanderings in Sansara, as the result of the potential Kammic force accumulated by him.

Note. The above statements clearly show the same kind of description of karmas as the Jain literature says and the Jains understand.

We give below some description of the karmic philosophy according to the Jain scriptures in short.

KARMIC PHILOSOPHY OF THE JAINS.

As karmas are attracted and bound, they must be material in nature. They are the karmic molecules made up of material particles; they are very fine, not cognizable by the senses. They are floating throughout the whole universe. As their fruition is material therefore they are matter. Just as a person may speak and act like a mad man—a reasonable man will infer from it that he has taken some intoxicating thing, similarly when it is proved that the nature of the real self is what is called Nirvâna where there is not any material bondage nor any mentation or Sanskara, then whatever conditions of anger, pride, deceit, greed, etc. appear in the mundane life of the self must have been caused in association with something different from the self. That which is associated with the self in mundane existence is that which is called Karma.

Anger etc. passions can never be the nature of the real self, because when anger arises, body trembles, eyes become red. Body is matter and some matter has made material effect on it, therefore that which has made the body tremble must be a material thing. It proves that anger is a material poison or dirt. Just as red and green waters show that there is mixture of red and green coloured matter with water, so anger etc. impure thought-activities prove that there is mixture of some dirt with the soul. And that dirt must be opposed to the soul which is really non-material. This is nothing else but karmic matter.

There are three acting agents in the mundane soul. They are mind, body and speech. As these three or any of the three are in joint connection everywhere with the soul, so whenever any activity through them happens, there occurs some wavering or vibration in the soul.

At the very time when vibrations occur in the mundane soul, the attractive power called yoga inherent in the soul begins to work. Yoga is a force which attracts karmic matter towards the soul and connects the same with it. This force of yoga attracts karmic molecules which are mixed with the other previously collected molecules in the karmic fine body which is continually coming on with the mundane soul. It should be noted that in this beginningless world phenomena, this mundane soul was never free from this karmic body. It is continually coming on in bondage. Through the fruition of different kinds of karmas in that fine body, there happen birth, death and different kinds of miseries. When any person dies, this karmic body is not left here. It goes with the mundane soul ; only outer physical body is left. The mundane soul going with the karmic body at once takes another birth under the influence of its karmas which are in operation. Old karmic molecules must shed off at the proper time whether they fructify or not from this karmic body and new molecules are added to it, which are attracted by yoga power, when any of the three, mind, body and speech is working and causing soul vibrations. This shedding and binding is going on in all the mundane souls at every instant. Vegetable, animal, human and other beings all have to obey this karmic law.

The Jain scripture, therefore, describes this mundane soul as material like, because it is totally obscured by material karmas just as sky is obscured by smoke, sun-light is obscured by clouds or water is made impure by dirt. If once all the karmic molecules are shed off, this soul will at once attain Nirvāna and remain non-material, and it is in essence like a sky.

As the nature of pure sky is not affected by matter, so the nature of pure liberated soul cannot be affected by karmas. In the mundane life, this soul is from beginningless time totally obscured by karmic matter. It is why it experiences its fruits good or bad.

Saint Amritachandra says in Tattvadrthasara :—

" Taking in karmic material molecules from all-round through attracting power yoga by the passionate soul has been said to be bondage by the Jina 13.

" Karma is not any non-material attribute of the non-material soul, because neither the non-material objects can be bound nor can there be destruction or any mutual benefit between non-material ones." 14.

" Mundane souls have got physical bodies etc. which are material and created; their creating cause must therefore be the material karmas; because creation of material objects is never seen by any non-material thing." 15

" Bondage of this mundane soul by the material karmas is not an unproved fact, although from the real point of view this soul is non-material, yet from the practical standpoint it is like a material thing." 16

" There is beginningless and continual connection of this mundane soul with the karmas, therefore the soul being non-material by nature is seen as material, as it is intermixed with the material karmas." 17

" Just as gold and silver when melted together become one mixture, so also there is mixture of soul and karmas on account of its bondage with karmas." 18

" This mundane soul is material, because its knowledge is seen to be affected on drinking intoxicating liquor; while sky being non-material cannot be affected by it." 19

The mundane soul is from beginningless time continually coming mixed with material karmas. Yoga power attracts them and passionate thoughts make them stay for greater or less time.

When karmic bondage occurs, it appears in four kinds, therefore bondage is said to be of four kinds.

Dravya Sangraha says :—

पयदिद्विवि अणुभागप्रदेसवेचादु चतु विधोबंधो ।
जोगा पयदिप्रदेसा टिदि अणुभागा कसायदो होति ॥

*Paya di thidi anu bhaga ppadesa-bhedā du chadu
tidho bandho,*

Jogā payadi pradesā thidi anu-bhaga kasā yado honti

“ Bondage is of four kinds, Prakriti or class-bondage, sthiti or duration bondage, anubhaga or fruition bondage, and pradesa or molecular bondage; of these class and molecular bondages are caused by yoga or attractive power working and soul vibrations; and duration and fruition bondages are caused by passions.

When karmic molecules are bound, then they assume different kinds of nature according to different thought-activities of the being, this is called Prakriti Bandha.

The number of molecules bound for each class or sub-class bearing different natures is called pradesa bandha. The bound up molecules will be exhausted till such a period—this duration is called sthiti bandha.

When they will be ripened, their fruition will be mild or strong. This is called anubhaga bandha.

Yoga or attractive power working under soul vibrations is good or bad according to good or bad activities of the mind, body and speech. According to strong or mild yoga power under good and bad activities, greater or less number of karmic molecules having more or less number of classes are attracted and bound. Thus yoga causes two kinds of bondage, class and molecule.

When anger, pride, deceit, or greed etc. passions are strong then all the classes of karmas except age karmas have more duration ; if they are mild, the duration will be for smaller periods. The karmas which are bound are either good or bad.

When passions are strong, there is less fruition in good karmas, while more in bad ones ; but when passions are mild, there is more fruition in good karmas and less in bad ones.

As to age karma, if it is bad age karma of hell, there will be greater duration, if passions are strong ; but lesser, if they are mild ; but for the good age karmas of sub-human, human, celestial, if passions are mild there will be more duration ; if they are strong, duration will be for short period.

Prakriti or class bondage.

There are eight classes according to the nature of karmas ; even these eight have got one-hundred and forty-eight sub-classes according to their different varieties of natures. It will be useful to know all of them.

Class I. Sub-classes 5. Jnâna varana karma. Knowledge—obscuring karma—It obscures the attribute of knowledge. As knowledge is of five kinds, so their obscuring karmas are also five :—

1. Mati J.—sensitive knowledge obscuring.
2. Sruta J.—Scriptural knowledge obscuring.
3. Avadi J.—Visual knowledge obscuring.
4. Mana parhyaya J.—mental knowledge obscuring.
5. Kevala J.—Perfect knowledge obscuring.

Class II, Sub-classes 9. Darsana varana karma or conation obscuring karma. It is of 9 kinds :

1. Chaksu d.—ocular conation obscuring.
2. Achaksu d.—non-ocular conation obscuring.
3. Avadhi d.—visual conation obscuring.
4. Kevala d.—perfect conation obscuring
5. Nidra—Sleep.
6. Nidra nidra—Deep sleep.
7. Prachala—Drowsiness.
8. Prachala prachala—Heavy drowsiness.
9. Styanagrigiddhi—Somnambulism.

Class III. Sub-classes 2. Vedaniya karma—feeling karma. It is of two kinds :

1. Sata v.—pleasure-feeling.
2. Asata v.—pain-feeling.

This karma makes the soul feel pleasure or pain.

Class IV. Sub-classes 28. Mohaniya karma, deluding karma, it deludes the right belief and conduct—it produces in the soul attachment, affection, hatred, fear &c. It is of two kinds :—

- (1) Darsana mohaniya or right belief deluding karma.
- (2) Charitra mohaniya or right conduct deluding karma.

Darsana mohaniya is of three kinds :—

- (1) Mityatva wrong belief.
- (2) Samyaktva clouded right-belief which produces defect in right-belief.

When karmas are bound, different sub-classes with different natures are determined according to soul vibrations effected by different kinds of passionate thought-activities.

Pradesa bandha. The number of karmic molecules of each sub-class and class is determined according to the strong or mild vibrations. Strong vibrations attract greater number of molecules, while mild vibrations less number of molecules.

At a particular instant of karmic bondage, age karma will have the least number, body-making karma will have more than that of age; family determining karma will have equal proportion to body-making karma. Knowledge-obscuring karma will have more than body-making karma. Conation obscuring and obstructive karmas will have their proportion equal to the knowledge obscuring karma. Deluding karma will have more than knowledge obscuring karma ; and the feeling karma will have the maximum number of molecules.

Sthiti bandha. Duration period of karmas is of three kinds, maximum, middle and minimum. Middle duration is of many kinds. Let us give below the maximum and minimum durations of the 8 main classes :—

Name of class.	Maximum.	Minimum.
I Knowledge obs.	30 Koti x Koti sâgars.	1 antar muhurta .
II Conation obs.	do.	do.
III Feeling.	do.	12 muhurtas .
IV Deluding.	70 do	1 antar muhurta .
V Age.	33 sâgars.	do.
VI Body-m.	20 Koti x Koti sâgars.	8 muhurta .
VII Family d.	do.	do.
VIII Obstructive.	30 do.	1 antar muhurta .

Note. Sagara = innumerable years :

Koti = 10 millions.

Muhurta...48 minutes.

Antar Muhurta...within 48 minutes.

Anubhâga bandha—Out of the 8 classes the four, knowledge obscuring, conation-obscuring, obstructing and deluding karmas are called ghātiya obstructive, because they obscure the nature of the soul. They are bad or demeritorious karmas. When there is a strong passionate thought-activity, the force of fruition will be stronger in them, but if the passions are mild the force of fruition will be weaker. Their forces being taken as stronger, strong, weak and weaker are exemplified by four examples in hardness and softness respectively of stone, bone, wood and creeper.

At the time of ripening the karmas will yield fruits in proportion to their strength and then shed off.

The other four karmas are called aghā-tiya—non-destructive. Each one of them is of two kinds good and bad. Good age, body making, family and feeling karmas are merits, while bad age, body-making, family and feeling karmas are demerits.

The fruition of these four good karmas is milder, mild, strong, and stronger exemplified by sweetness of molasses, sugar, refined sugar and nectar respectively; while the fruition of the above four bad karmas is also, milder, mild, strong and stronger exemplified by bitterness of a neem tree leaf, kānjira fruit, poison and deadly poison respectively.

Thus every mundane soul has four kinds of bondage according to its good or bad thought-activities.

How the karmas operate and shed off :

When the karmic molecules are bound, they take some time to become ripened ; till then they remain in existence without operation and shedding. This time of quiescence is one hundred years for a duration of one koti koti sagars. According to this proportion if duration is one koti sagaras or less than that, the period of quiescence will come to one antar muhurta. After the proportionate lapse of quiescence time, the molecules begin to operate and shed at every instant till their full duration period is ended. These molecules of a particular group bound at a particular time are distributed for its full duration minus the quiescence time with a proportion of successive less number. The greater number operates before. The least number will operate at the last instant of the duration. Whenever karmic molecules are on the point of operation, they appear in their fruits, if the outward circumstances agree with them if the outward position is not agreeable, they will shed off without giving any result. For example: suppose any one has bound karmic molecules of all the four passions e.g., anger, pride, deceit and greed simultaneously with equal duration for each. They will take equal time for ripening. After their equal period of quiescence they all will begin to shed at every instant, but all the four cannot give results at a time. When there is anger, there is not pride, nor greed nor deceit; only one kind of passion appears at a time in the thought-activity. Suppose there is outward situation of creating anger, then anger karmic molecules will appear in fruit, while the molecules of the other three passions will shed off at that very instant without showing any result. Suppose any good person is attending to reading any pious book peacefully for half an hour; then his thought has good and pious feeling only. It is the result of mild greed. Till half an hour only, greed karma molecules are shedding after giving results, while the molecules of the other three passions shed off during that very half an hour without giving any fruit. Suppose within that half an hour there appears any outward cause of anger, some one may speak abusive words and that very person attending to pious book cannot endure them owing to the weakness of soul power, then anger will appear for some time; then the molecules of greed will shed without showing any fruit.

The Karmic law being such : it is therefore necessary that we should always try to have good circumstances and associations ; then we can be saved from suffering fruits of bad karmas. True knowledge and soul-force are the means for effort. This force of effort is soul's own property which has expressed itself on the subsidence of destructive karmas. We may call it soul-will, soul-power, or soul-exertion. A minutest creature of the vegetable kingdom also has got this soul-power. It has some knowledge and soul-force which is not obscured by karmas. Thus every being has got capacity of applying its free will. They, who have got strong operation of deluding karmas are under control of ignorance or avidya. But they, who can remove this ignorance, have their pure soul-power more in store. They, who act after full consideration and mindfully, perform thoughtful and useful acts. If they succeed in their efforts, the meritorious karmas have helped them ; if they fail, the demeritorious karmas have made obstruction. As we, ordinary men cannot know what kinds of karmas are in store and when and how they will operate, it is our duty to perform every action with strong and thoughtful soul-power.

It should also be known that we can destroy the existing bound demeritorious karmas by self-concentration and pure thought-activities before their ripening time ; we can diminish their fruition and duration. We can increase the fruition of old good karmas. Our thought-activities can modify the past-bound karmas.

By the operation of age karma a being goes from one condition of existence to another. Karmic body goes along with it.

Those saints, who destroy the causes of inflow of karmas, are called Ksinasrava. This term is used in many Buddhist works. Vide Buddha Charya page 264 Sandaka sutta M. N. 2.3.6, page 55 Nanda-Rahula-Sanyasa Jataka N. 4 Mahâvagga, Mahâ Khandaka Rahula-Vastu.

How karmas can be checked and destroyed has been dealt with in the third chapter while describing Samvara and Nirjara.

Let us show the special thought-activities for the bondage of each of the eight karmas. They are the special causes for the karmic bondage of a special karma.

I. Causes for the bondage of knowledge and conation obscuring karmas :—

(1) Displeasure on hearing truth (2) concealment of knowledge, not allowing others to ask him and take his time (3) not to teach others due to malice (4) to make obstructions to the progress of true knowledge (5) to dishonour the learned and the learning (6) to falsify the truth by misleading arguments.

II. Causes for the bondage of pain-feeling karmas :

- (1) to feel pain or to make others painful.
- (2) to be sorry or to make others feel sorry.
- (3) to feel remorse or make others remorseful.
- (4) to weep or make others weep.
- (5) to cry in a way to arouse compassion for him in others or to make others cry in such a way.
- (6) to beat or to kill, etc.

III. Causes for the bondage of pleasure-feeling karmas :—

- (1) to have compassion for all the beings (2) to feel great regard for the Vowful (3) to give charity of food, medicine, knowledge and safety to the deserving pious men with honour and to the distressed through compassion (4) to follow rules of conduct of a saint (5) to follow rules of conduct of a layman (6) to practise meditation (7) to forgive others (8) to feel contentment etc.

IV. Causes for the bondage of deluding karmas :—

(1) To find fault with and speak ill of the true worshipful Lord, Teacher and the Truth itself (2) to have strong anger, pride, deceit and greed (3) to have strong laughter, indulgence, dissatisfaction, sorrow, fear and hatred (4) to have strong sex inclination, etc.

V. Causes for the bondage of hellish age karma :—

To earn money by unjust and ugly means, to have strong attachment for worldly possessions and not to spend money in charity and good works.

VI. Causes for the bondage of sub-human age karma :—

VII. Causes for the bondage of human-age karma :—

(1) to deal justly and with contentment, to have little attachment with the worldly possessions, to have natural modest feelings.

VIII. Causes for the bondage of Celestial-age-karma :—

(1) to have firm right belief (2) to follow the rules of conduct of a saint (3) to follow the rules of conduct of a layman (4) to endure hardships with patience (5) to follow austerities without self-knowledge.

XI. Causes for the bondage of bad-body-making karmas :—

- (1) deceitful engagement of mind, body and speech
- (2) to quarrel and make disturbance.

X. Causes for the bondage of good-body-making karmas :—

- (1) Straightforward dealing of mind, body and speech
- (2) to have love for others and not to quarrel with anybody.

XI. Causes for the bondage of low-family determining karma :—

- (1) to speak ill of others
- (2) to boast oneself
- (3) to conceal others' good qualities
- (4) to express one's non-existing qualities.

XII. Causes for the bondage of high-family-determining karma :—

- (1) to speak ill of oneself
- (2) to praise others' qualities
- (3) to conceal one's own qualifications
- (4) to express others' good qualities
- (5) to be submissive
- (6) not to feel proud.

XIII. Causes for the bondage of obstructive karmas :

- (1) To put obstacles to charity
- (2) to obstruct the gain of others
- (3) to put obstacles for things being enjoyed by others
- (4) to obstruct others from enjoying re-enjoyable things (5) to disturb the zeal of others for good works.

Thus the special thought-activities for the bondage of eight karmas have been described here very briefly. It should also be noted that generally a being binds seven or eight kinds of karmas at a time by its thought-activity; but there occurs difference in fruition bondage of each karma. The special thought activity pertaining to a particular karma will cause more mild or strong fruition in that very karma.

We find in the Buddhist literature also some description of the special thought-activities for the bondage of special karmas.

There are ten thoughts which procure great power in the future life (1) not to have malice (2) to receive and honour others (3) to have worthy mind, to speak highly of others with good mind (4) to spend money for journey pilgrimage etc. (5) to strive to understand Truth (6) To construct images of Lord Buddha (7) to honour parents (8) to honour and receive the Virtuous men (9) to save one from good action of low degree (10) to induce one for good action of high degree. These ten should be followed for high might.

The following ten actions are the causes for the birth in low family :—(1) Dishonour to mother (2) dishonour to father (3) being a monk, not to act as a monk, (4) being a Brahman, not to act as Brahman- (5) not to protect the elders in the family (6) not to receive them properly (7) not to give them proper seats (8) not to serve the parents (9) not to serve the monks (10) to disgrace the poor and low people.

The following ten actions are the causes for the birth in a high family. (1) Honour to the mother (2) Honour to the father (3) to observe monk-hood (4) to observe the duties of a Brahmana (5) To protect the elders in the family (6) to receive them and honour them (7) to give them proper seats (8) to serve the parents (9) to serve the monks (10) not to hate those born in a low family.

The following ten actions cause insufficient enjoyments in the future (1) to take what is not given (2) to accept the things brought by theft (3) to speak good of theft (4) to be pleased with theft (5) to obstruct the livelihood of the parents (6) to obstruct the alms of the monks or the livelihood of good persons (7) to be pleased if one has not gained anything (8) to be displeased on another's gain (9) to obstruct the gain of others (10) to wish for famine.

The following ten actions are causes for having many enjoyments in future :—(1) charity (2) to be aloof from theft (3) to praise the person who does not steal (4) to be satisfied by not taking anything without being given (5) to be sorry if one has not gained anything (6) to be pleased on another's gain (7) to try for procuring gain to others (8) to be pleased on knowing others practising charity (9) to induce people for charity (10) to wish for favourable time.

Note. All these causes as stated in Buddhist literature are included in the causes of bondage of low and high family karmas and pleasure and pain feeling karmas as given before according to the Jain literature.

There is a great detailed description of bondage; fruition, checking and shedding of the Karmas in the Jain scriptures. The following books should be consulted :—

English translation of No. 1 & 5 have been published and can be had from (1) "Jain Gazette" Office, 436. Mint Street, Madras, (2) Jain Publishing House, Ajitashram, Lucknow, (3) Jain Parishad Publishing House Bijnor.

Hindi translations of the above-said books can be had from the Digambar Jain Book Depot, Chanda Wadi, Surat. We have very briefly described the Karmic philosophy here. Whatever we have noted above shows that even the description of the Karmic law according to Jainism and Buddhism is not different. It is possible to have detailed description of Karma philosophy in Buddhist books also. If they could be traced, everything will agree with that of Jainism.

I believe that those who have compiled the old Buddhist literature must have had knowledge of the Karmic philosophy according to Jainism. The present literature, no doubt, does not speak of it so explicitly as the Jain literature does. The educated must study this subject calmly and carefully.

CHAPTER V.

AHIMSA.

Ahimsa is a famous cult of the Jains. I find that the Buddhist literature also speaks highly of Ahimsa. If minutely considered it is not in any way different from what the Jains say. As regards flesh-eating some statements in Buddhist literature appear doubtful. We have to consider whether they are the real sayings of the Buddha or not.

We give below some quotations about Ahimsa from the Buddhist books :—

(1) Majjhima nikaya sallakha sutta attaman :—

“ पाण्मातिपातिस्ल पुरिस पुग्गलस्स पाण्मातिपातवेरमणी-हेति परिनिवानाय.”

“ Pāṇḍitipā tissa purisa puggalassa pāṇḍati pata veramani hoti parinivvā nāya.”

“ He who is addicted to injure the vitalities of living beings, should give up injury—this is for his liberation.”

(2) M. N. Samma ditthi sutta navama.

“ पाण्मातिपातो अकुसलं पाण्मातिपातवेरमणीकुसलं.”

“ Pāṇā it pāto akusalam pāṇāti pāte-verama nī kusalam.”

“ It is harmful to deprive one of vitalities ; while it is useful to be aloof from injury.”

(3) Digha nikaya Vol. 3 Singalo vāda Suttante 31

“ पाणातिपातो अदिक्षादानं मुसावादो च बुद्धति परदा-

“ *Panātipādo adinnādānam musāvādo cha vuchchati

theft, falsehood and intercourse with other women.”

Lord Buddha keeps himself aloof from destroying the group of seeds and the group of beings, eats only once (in 24 hours), does never eat at night (untimely even after noon); does not put on flower garlands, and scents, does not use besmearing, nor ornaments, neither any decoration.

Note.—Here not eating at night shows regard for non-injury.

In that Yagnā (sacrificial ceremony) cows were not killed, lambs and goats were not killed, fowls and pigs were not murdered, neither different kinds of creatures were murdered; neither trees were cut for post (Yupa), nor grass was cut which is injury. That ceremony of Yajna was performed with ghee, oil, butter, curd, sweets and molasses. Brahmana! He, who with cheerful mind follows rules of vows which are (1) to be aloof from injury of vitalities (2) not to take what is not given (3) to be aloof from sexual desire (4) not to speak untruth (5) not to take any intoxicating thing causing carelessness, performs the true yajna. Brahmana! This sacrifice is glorious and brings great fruit..."

The Conduct of monks is described in it. Monk keeps aloof from destruction of seed—groups and groups of creatures, takes food once, does not eat at night, neither eats at untime. He is aloof from destroying groups of seeds and creatures: such as those grown through roots, grown through trunk, grown through fruit, grown through fruit-stem and grown through seeds.

Note.—Here the protection of vegetable kingdom is well described.

It agrees with the description given in the Jain Scripture Gommatasara Jiva Kanda.

"Inflamed by desire, evil-disposed by hate, confused by delusion, overcome, entirely influenced internally, O Brahmin, we think of hurting ourselves, we think of hurting others, we think of hurting both ourselves and others, and feel mental pain and grief. But if we have abandoned desire, then we do not think any more of hurting ourselves, nor of hurting others, nor of hurting both ourselves and others, and we do not feel mental pain and grief. Thus, O Brahmin, Nibbāna is visible and present, inviting to come and see, leading to the goal, intelligible to the wise, each for himself." (M. I. p. 303 A. III p. 55).

Page 434 F. Note. "What is sinful in the taking of food lies in this, that other life is destroyed, and thereby suffering is caused in the world. Since animal life is more highly organized and much more sensible to pain than plant life, the good man will in no case, either directly or indirectly, be the cause of the killing of animals for his food. In consequence of this, he will not eat the flesh of any animal in any case where he has seen or heard or supposes that it has been killed for his sake. "There are three cases, Jivaka, where I say that meat shall not be accepted : Seen, heard and supposed. (M. I. p. 369). For the same reason, no one may offer the Perfected One or his disciples, the flesh of an animal killed for this purpose. "Whoever, Jivaka, takes life for the sake of the Perfected One, incurs five-fold serious guilt. Because he commands : 'Go and fetch that animal !', thereby the first time he incurs serious guilt. Because then the animal, led to him in fear and trembling, experiences pain and torment, he for the second time incurs serious guilt. Because he then says : 'Go and kill this animal,' he for the third time incurs serious guilt. Because the animal then in death, experiences pain and torment, he for the fourth time incurs serious guilt. Because he then gives unfitting refreshment to the Perfected One or the Perfected One's disciple, he for the fifth time incurs serious guilt." (M. I. 369).

FLESH-EATING.

It appears in the present time that flesh-eating is much prevalent among the Buddhists. If I independently think of its cause, it appears to me that the old Pali books were first compiled in Ceylon in the 1st century, as is written in the introduction to Buddha Charya. "In the first century A. D. at Ceylon, Sutra, Vinaya and Abhidhamma, which till that time were learnt by heart only, were at first written. This is the Tripitaka."

I did not find in these Pali books the quotations explicitly prohibiting the taking of flesh.

"The Life of the Buddha" by Edward J. Thomas, 1927.

On page 129 there is the following statement :—

"As meat-eating was made an ethical question, the ritual aspect ceased to have a meaning for the Buddhist. Hence the practice was not in itself condemned, but only in so far as the partaker was in some way contributory to killing or giving pain. This position is stated most clearly in the Jivaka Sutta (M. N. I. 368). Jivaka* told Buddha that he had heard that people killed living things intending them for Buddha, and that he ate the meat prepared on that account. He asked if such persons were truth-speakers and did not accuse the Lord falsely. Buddha replied that it was not true, but that in three cases meat must not be eaten: if it has been seen, heard, or suspected that it was intended for the person. If a monk who practises the brahma-vihara of love accepts an invitation in a village, he does not think, "verily this house-holder is providing me with excellent food; may he provide me with excellent food in the future." He eats the food without being fettered and infatuated. "What do you think, Jivaka, does the monk at that time think of injury to himself, to others, or to both?" "Certainly not, Lord." "Does not a monk at that time take blameless food?" "Even so Lord."

The teaching is the same in the Vinaya, where Buddha is said to have accepted a meal from the Jain general Siha, who had provided meat. The report went about that he had killed an ox for Buddha, but the fact was that he had sent for the meat already killed in order to furnish the meal. The Vinaya forbids certain kinds of flesh, human, that of elephants, horses, dogs and certain wild animals. (F. N. Vinaya I. 218-237; Macchamamsa is expressly allowed; This is usually taken to mean 'flesh of fish.'

Pali books state in one or two places that Goutama Buddha ate flesh—Whether this was true or not is to be properly considered.

Buddha Charya P. 148 M. N. 8. 1. 2. 2. Siha Sutta.

"It appears that Jain Commander-in-Chief Siha of Vaisali served meat to Goutama Buddha."

Note. It seems to me quite impossible that a Jain minister or King could have served Buddha with meat. Neither it seems to be possible that the compassionate Buddha who preached for the protection of immobile and mobile beings would have accepted flesh. Moreover he was so kind that he did not eat even at night and prohibited his disciples from taking food at night.

Buddha Charya Page 433. Chulla Vagga 7.

DEVADATTA VIDROHA.

This Sutta tells that Devadatta told Buddha, "He only, who does not accept fish and flesh for the whole life, should be received in the Order"; then Goutama said, "I have ordered for the pure flesh which is not seen, nor heard, nor supposed to be prepared."

Note. How far this statement is correct, is to be considered. Buddha Charya P. 535 Mahaparinibbana Sutta D. N. 2; 3.

In this Sutta it is said that in the last part of his life Goutama Buddha had taken Sukara maddava from Chunda, the smith. Here this italicised word is translated by some as flesh of pig and by some as soft rice cooked with milk.

Sacred Books of the East Vol. III by Rhys Davids D. N. P. 11. 1910 at Page 110. At Vesali, he (Buddha) had finished eating the rice.

Page 138. "Now when the Exalted One had eaten the rice prepared by Chunda, the worker in metals, there fell upon him a dire sickness, the disease of dysentery and sharp pain came upon him, even unto death."

Note. Here the word Sukara maddava is translated as rice. Except the few statements given above, no other statement in the whole Buddhist literature, as far as I have read, has been found to denote that Buddha or his disciple have ever taken flesh or fish or any other creature. While the above passages of the Pali book express doubt about flesh eating, old Sanskrit Buddhist literature expressly prohibits flesh-eating, by any follower of Buddhism.

There is one Lankavatara Sutra—published in Sanskrit by Bunyin-Nangio, M.A. (Oxon) D. Litt., Otam University—Kyoto (Japan) in 1922. It is also a very old Sutra. Its first translation in the Chinese language was done by one Gunabhadra of Central India in 443 A.D. Its second translation in the Chinese was done by Bodha ruchi of India in 513 A. D. Its third translation in the Chinese was done by Siksanand of India in 700 A.D.

The eighth chapter of the book deals specially about flesh-eating.

This is called Mansa bhakṣana pari varto. From this chapter, it is fully proved that any follower of Buddhism, whether he may be a monk, or a layman, should never eat any kind of flesh either of fish or of any other animal. We give below some Sanskrit passages with the translation :—

“ देशस्तु मे भगवांस्तथागतोऽहं सम्यक् संतुष्टो मांस-

" May the Lord Tathagata, Arhan rightly enlighten and preach to us the merit and demerit of flesh-eating, so that I and the other followers of Buddhism in the present time and in the future may preach the truth to those who are flesh eaters for the destruction of their desire for flesh."

“O wise man, there cannot be any flesh eatable, which may be undone, not caused to be done or not supposed to be done; on account of which I may order it for the disciples. In the future time, there will occur in my order some, who having adopted the conduct of monk and having pledged to follow the order of the Sākyaputra and having put on the flag of red clothes will be deluding and addicted to bodily pleasures. They will have many false notions in their minds and declare different rules of conduct. They will be desirous of taste and shall compile books giving false arguments for flesh-eating. They will maintain that which I have never told. They will tell matters in support of flesh-eating. They will say that I have ordered it for this reason, that I have counted it among the eatables and that Bhagavan has himself eaten flesh. " O wise man ! Arya Sravakas do not even take the natural human diet, how can they eat the rejectable flesh and blood ? My disciples are followers of Truth and so are the self-intelligent ones and other Buddhists. They are not flesh-eaters. Such were the Tathagatas in the former times.....Tathagatas have Truth as their body, they live on Truth, they do not support their bodies with flesh. They never take any flesh. They have given up desire for all the worldly objects. They are free from all the defects causing misery. They are full of unattached discrimination, all-knowing, all-perceiving. They look towards all the creatures like their sons. They are very compassionate. Similarly I look towards all the creatures as my sons how can I order my disciples to eat the flesh of my sons and how can I eat it. There is no question of this that I ordered my disciples for it and that I have myself eaten it."

O wise man ! The conquerors have said that wine, flesh and onions should not be eaten by any Buddhist or great Buddhist. 1.

A monk should always abstain from flesh, onion, many kinds of intoxicating liquors, garlic, and turnip. 5.

He, who kills any creature for money and he, who pays money for it—both of them are evil-doers and shall fall in the Rourava etc., hells. 9.

I have prohibited flesh in the following scriptures
 (1) Hasti kaksya, (2) Mahā megha, (3) Nirvānānguli mālika (4) and Lankāvatārasutra. 16.

Just as attachment is obstructive to liberation, so is flesh, wine etc. obstructive to nirvāna. 20.

Therefore flesh, which is fearful to the creatures and is contrary to the conduct for liberation, should not be eaten. This is the flag of the Arya people. 24.

Note. This Lankavatāra sūtra is also very old. It appears to me that when the Pali sutras were at first compiled in Ceylon in the first century A. D. and flesh-eating was supported therein through any argument then this sutra appears to have been written in answer to that. This Lankavatāra sutra explicitly prohibits any Buddhist from taking any flesh. The saying of those persons who declare that they do not themselves kill the creatures, they only buy flesh from the market and so they are not guilty of any injury is contradicted in this sutra. When they pay money in change of flesh, then they are in fact indirectly promoters of killing. The butchers and fishermen kill the animals on this understanding that their flesh is sold and is used by the people. When they are getting money for the sake of flesh, they go on continually killing the animals.

Really they, who buy flesh, are the inducers of killing the dumb creatures. Those monks who say that they accept what is given to them only in alms, that they do not suppose of having flesh and therefore they are not guilty of killing animals, even if they accept and eat flesh, should deeply consider on their arguments. It is a rule that whatever is accepted by anyone is approved by the same. Accepting flesh proves approval of that food. This approval of flesh by the monks produces this conviction in mind of the donor-layman that there is no harm in eating flesh, when our worshipful monks accept and eat it. Thus the laymen remain flesh-eaters, and are obliged to induce the killers to kill the animals for flesh. Just a monk if supplied with the flesh of a man or a dog, refuses to accept it, because he does not approve of it, similarly he should not accept any kind of flesh. Then only he will be free from any kind of sin of killing animals. When flesh is accepted in alms, it is countable among the eatable foods; while it is altogether rejectable, as has been ordered in Lankavatdra Sutra. Suppose any patriot has a mind to use country-made clothes and has a pledge not to use foreign-made clothes on the conviction that if foreign made clothes would be used and sold here, this country will starve for want of industry. If such a patriot monk is supplied with a foreign cloth for which he has not himself made any effort, nor he has induced others to make it, nor he has any notion of its making, he would not accept it, because his approval and his acceptance would be detrimental to the interests of the country he loves. Similarly acceptance of flesh is to give support to the practice of killing dumb creatures. In Ceylon I found some monks eating flesh on the ground that it is eatable because they were not guilty of killing the creatures in any way, while I saw some monks who do not eat it. But this belief, that if they do not kill animals nor cause to kill them, nor suppose to kill them then they would not be guilty of any injury if they accept flesh in alms, is prevalent in Ceylon, Burma, Siam and other countries where there are larger numbers of Buddhists. But in my opinion, this belief is not right, because the sellers of flesh in the market kill lambs, goats, fowls, fishes only for their sake. They sell it for money which is paid by the buyers. Therefore the buyers cannot be free from the sin of killing the dumb creatures.

In Vidyalankara College, Kelaniya, I saw a Chinese layman Mr. Wong Mow Lam, 19 Hard Road, Shanghai who was studying there. On consulting with him, it was known that this Lankavatāra Sutra is believed to be the authoritative book by the Buddhists of China and Japan and that all the Buddhist monasteries never use any flesh there. The laymen of those countries also believe it to be rejectable, although some eat it while others do not eat it. The followers of Tioist do, as a rule, not eat any flesh. They are pure vegetarians. It appears to me that Ceylon being an island where people generally use fish, the Pali Scriptures when compiled, have prescribed a way for the monks to accept it in alms, if it was given. At the very time this Lankāvatāra Sutra appears to have been written, which prohibits every follower of Buddhism from eating flesh or fish of any kind. The Buddhists in general should pay regard to this sutra and should try to check the prevalence of fish or flesh eating. The monks as a rule should not accept it and then they should preach to laymen to give up flesh-eating. Flesh-eating, no doubt, is a cause for the killing of dumb creatures."

Some description of AHIMSA in JAIN SCRIP.
TURES:

(1) Samayasāra says:—

अज्जहवसिद्धेण बंधो सत्तेमारेहि माव मारेहि ।

एसो बंधसमासो जीवाणं निच्छय अयस्स ॥ २७४ ॥

Ajjhava sidena Bandho satte mārehi māva mārehim

" Bondage (of karmas) will be caused by the intention (of injury), whether the creatures may be killed or not. This is the brief of bondage for the souls from the correct stand-point."

(2) Tattvártha Sutra says:

प्रमत्तयोगात्प्राणव्यपरापणं हिंसा ॥ १३-७ ॥

Pramatha yogat prāna tva paroparapānam himsa 13/7

"Destruction of (subjective and objective) vitalities through passionate activities of mind, body and speech is injury or himsa."

Subjective vitalities are the qualities of soul such as Knowledge, bliss and peacefulness. Objective or material vitalities are ten. Immobile one-sensed beings have four, two-sensed have six, three-sensed, seven; four-sensed, eight; five-sensed irrational, nine; and five-sensed rationals have ten. These are explained in the second chapter of this book (p. 94-95).

(4) Puruśarthasiddhiupāya describes himsa fully. Let us quote some verses:—

" Destruction of objective and subjective vitalities through passionate activities of mind, body and speech is really Himat." 43

" On account of the destruction of soul's (pure) thought-activity, there is himta in all the (sinful) actions speaking false-hood etc., (sins) have only been exemplified for the knowledge of the students." 42

" Non-arising of attachment etc., is verily Ahimsa, while their arising is himsa—this is the summary of the Jain scriptures." 44

" Doing, causing others to do, and consenting for doing and each through mind, body and speech is nine-fold (himsa) ; total freedom from this is real Ahimsa, while the exceptional is of many sorts." 76

" Having thus heard the doctrine of Ahimsa, they, who are unable to refrain from injury to immobiles, should at least give up the injury to mobiles." 75

" The house-holders possessing useful property may even injure the immobiles as least as possible ; they should also refrain from causing injury to other immobiles." 77

It should be noted that the monks and those laymen who take the vow of not performing any engagements are careful in protecting both mobiles and immobiles ; while the laymen engaged in different pursuits cannot give up occupational (drambhi) injury ; they can refrain from intentional (santalphi) injury.

Intentional injury is useless killing such as animal sacrifice, hunting, killing for meat-eating, teasing creatures for sport, pleasure etc.

Occupational injury is of three kinds :—

(1) Professional (Udyami) injury caused in following the justified six kinds of professions :—(1) Military,

(2) writing (3) agriculture (4), trade (5) industry and (6) arts.

(2) Household-work (Graharambhi) injury—caused in preparing food, clothes, etc., digging wells, constructing houses, gardens etc.

(3) Defensive (Virodhi) injury—caused in defending oneself, one's family, property, country etc. from those who attack and do not give up their evil intention in spite of all other possible means. It is caused for saving oneself from plunderers and thieves, in giving punishment to the culprits, in making wars with the enemies.

Although ordinary house-holders cannot give up three kinds of occupational killing, yet they try to be saved from it as far as possible. They always, deal with kind hearts. Saints are vowed in following Ahimsa in full,—it is why they walk after seeing the ground, they do not walk at night, they do not tread on the grass, nor pluck leaves etc. from trees.

(5) Sravakâchâra by Amitagati says :—

हिंसाद्वेधाग्रोक्ताऽरमानारंभजत्वता दक्षैः ।
गृहवासतोनिवृत्तो द्वेधापि लायते तां च ॥ ६ ॥

"Injury has been said to be of two kinds, occupational and non-occupational by the learned; He, who is homeless, protects himself from both of them. A house-holder engaged in house-hold duties, although having mild passions cannot as a rule refrain from occupational injury."

No doubt, intentional killing is due to strong passions in comparison to occupational killing where the passions are mild. A house-holder is obliged to do it.

Flesh-eating—A follower of Ahimsa must not eat flesh.

(6) Purusārthaśiddhiupāya says:—

"Because it is not possible to produce flesh without killing the vitalities, therefore he, who eats flesh, is unavoidably liable to do injury." 65

"Although there is flesh of bullocks and buffaloes etc. dying by themselves, yet there is injury by killing microbes and germs that originate in that flesh." 66

"There is continual coming into existence of microbes of the sort of the flesh in the pieces of flesh whether they may be raw, cooked or being cooked." 67

Note. That is the reason why the flesh in any case is bad-smelling.

Wine drinking. The same book says:—

*Rasajānām cha babunām Jivānām yonirisyate madyam,

" Because there is unavoidable killing when eating at night, therefore they who avoid himsa should also give up eating at night. How can a partaker of food avoid injury to creatures in the absence of sunlight ; if lamp is lighted, many tiny creatures will fall in the eatables."

Note. From the statement of the Buddhist scriptures given in this Chapter it is evident that for the sake of following ahimsa one is required to protect both mobile and immobile creatures, to walk after seeing the ground, not to trample on grass, and not to eat at night. Similarly the Jain scriptures also declare.

If the Buddhists try to prevent the prevalence of flesh-eating, then Buddhism may really shine forth in its true nature; because the words of Lord Goutama which teach friendship towards all the creatures cannot prove that his preaching approved flesh-eating or that He himself would have taken flesh. The learned Buddhists should consider this point quite impartially.

CHAPTER VI.

WHY JAINISM AND BUDDHISM ARE THE SAME?

Goutama Buddha left home in his age of twenty-nine. He devoted six years in practising many kinds of austerities. At his age of thirty-five he decided his path and preached his first sermon at Benares. During these intervening six years, he followed a conduct resembling that of Digamber (naked) Jain Saint also. Lord Buddha has himself described it. Vide—Majjhima Nikaya mahā siha nāda sutta twelfth.—In this sūtra Goutam Buddha in his old age describes the events of his life to his disciple Sariputra. The pali words are :

“ अचेलको होमि....हस्थापलेखनो....नाभिहतं न उहिस्त

" I went without clothes.....I licked my food from my hands. I did not eat food brought in, nor that prepared on my account, nor I accepted invitations for it. I took no alms from pot or dish. I took no food within a threshold, or through window-bar or within the pounding place, nor from two people eating together—nor from a pregnant woman, nor from a woman suckling a child, nor from one in intercourse, nor from food collected here and there, nor food where a dog stood by, nor from place where flies were swarming, nor fish, nor flesh, nor drink fermented, nor drink distilled, nor yet sour gruel did I drink. I ate from just one house, and just one morsel from that, or else I ate from two houses only and just two morsels thence....or I ate from seven houses only and just one morsel from each house. I took food only once a day or once in two days—or once in seven days, even to intervals of half a month.....I plucked out hair and beard and kept the practice up ; even to a drop of water was charity established in me ; thus :—" may I not be guilty of violence in harming tiny living beings (therein) scorched, frozen and alone in fearsome forest, dwelling naked, no fire to warm bent on the meditation is the sage."

Note. Whatever practical conduct of a sage is described above agrees with no other but the conduct of naked (Digambar) Jain Saints. Among the Digambar Jains there is an old Prakrit work on conduct of saints called Mūlachādra by Battakera ; it describes the similar practices. Even now-a-days also Digambara Jain Saints follow the same rules. Below I quote some verses in support of the above practices from this authoritative book. Mūlachādra says :—”

पञ्चय महावयाहं समिदी यो पञ्च विणवरुदित्ता ।
पञ्चेवंदिय रोहो छप्पिय भवासया लोको ॥ २ ॥
अच्छेलक मण्डाणं खिदिसयणमदंत घसणंचेव ।

Pancha vindiya roho chhappiya-avasayā locho 2
*Achchelaka manhāṇam khidi sayaya madanta ghasanām

Thidi bhoyaneya bhattam mūlaguna at thavisadu 3

A saint should follow the following twenty eight root-duties—

- 5 Great Vows of non-injury, truth, not taking what is not given, chastity and non-possession.
- 5 Careful dealing in walking, speaking, eating, handling things and excretions.
- 5 Control of five senses.
- 6 Daily important duties of repentance, renunciation, equanimity, prayer, obedience and abandoning bodily attachment.
- 1 plucking hair by hands.
- 1 not having any clothes.

- 1 not to bathe.
 - 1 sleep on ground.
 - 1 not to rub teeth.
 - 1 to eat standing.
 - 1 to eat only once a day.

28

Locha—hastena mastaka keśa smasrūnam apānayanam, i.e., to pluck the hair of the head and beard by hands. This practice is specially observed by the Jain monks. It was followed by Goutam Buddha also.

Buddha remained achelaka.

Mālachāra says about it :—

वत्थाजिणवकेलय अहवा पत्ताइणा भसंवरणं ।

गिर्भूलज विन्दनं अचेलकं उगदिपूजं ॥ ३० ॥

Vatthā Jina vakke naya ahavā pattā inā asanvaranam Nibbhasana niggaṇham achchelakkam Jogadi pajjam 30

“ Not to cover the body with clothes, skin, bark or leaves etc., not to wear ornaments, not to have attachment is the duty of achelaka. It is worshipful in the world.”

The same book also describes eating from one's hands in standing posture.

अंजलिपुदेष यिका कुडाई विवज्जनेण समणायं ।

पदिसुद्दे भूमितिये असनं यिदि भोजनं जाम ॥ ३४ ॥

Anjali puḍena thichchā kuddāi vivajjanena samapāyam, Padi sudde bhūmitiye asanam thidi bhojanam nāma 34

" Leaving support of any wall etc., standing and keeping feet on parallel lines on pure ground to eat with hands is food in standing position."

A saint does not eat food specially prepared for saints as said in the same book—

जावदियं उद्देसो पासंडोसि य हवे समुद्देसो ।

समणोसिय अद्देसो निग्गन्थोसियहवे समादेसो ॥११-७-६॥

Javadiyam uddeso pā sandatti ya have samuddeso Samanottiya adeso nigganthottiya have samādeso 11. 7/6

" Whatever food is prepared for any saint, sramana or nirgrantha is uddisṭa. It should not be eaten by a Jain saint."

So it is said in the third verse of the 6th Chapter. Goutam Buddha also did not take such food when he was a naked saint.

A Saint takes food from not more than seven houses as said therein :—"

उज्जिहि तिहि सत्तेहि वा घरेहि जादि आगदु आचिण्णं ।

परदो तातेहिभवे तद्विवारिदं अणाचिण्णं ॥ २०-६ ॥

Ujju him tihim sattehim vā gharehim jadi dgadum du āchinnam

Parado tātchin bhave tavvitaridam anāchinnam 20/6

" The food brought from three or seven homes in one line is eatable, but not brought from more homes."

Goutama Buddha did not eat food from more than seven houses, when he was a naked saint.

Goutam Buddha did not eat food served by a pregnant woman as enjoined in Mūlachāra.

अतिबाला अतिबुद्धा घासरी गम्भिरी य अंधलिया ।

अंतरिदा व पिसाना उच्चस्था अहव धीखत्य ॥ ५०-६ ॥

Ati bälā ati budbhā ghāsatti gabbhini su ya andhaliya Autaridā va pisannā uchchattha ahava nichatthā 50/4

"(Saints do not take food from) a child-woman, very old woman, a woman when eating, a pregnant woman, a blind woman, woman sitting in back of a wall, sitting high, or sitting very low."

Note. Goutam Buddha did not take food given through window-bars.

He did not accept dirty sour gruel or thusodka, which is prohibited in Mūlachāra.

तिल तंडुल उसनोदय चणोदय तुसोदयं अविद्धत्य ।

अण्णं तद्वाविहं वा अपरिनादं पेत्र गिणहिज्जो ॥ ५४ ॥

Tila tandula usanodaya-chanodaya tusodayam avid-dhattham

Annam tahāviham vā aparinadam neva ginhijjo 54

"Washing water of Tilas, rice, grams and husks and hot water which is not altered in colour etc., should not be taken."

Goutama did not take food from a woman suckling a child, as is prohibited in Mūlachāra :—

लेवण मज्जण कम्मं पियमाणं दारयंच निक्खविय ।

एवं विहादिता पुण दाणं जदि दिंति दायगादोसा ॥५२-६॥

Levana majjana Kammam piyamānam dārayamcha nikha viya

Evam vihā diyā puna dānam jadi dinti diyagā doso

52/6

" It is wrong on the part of a donor, if any woman serves food while smearing the ground, bathing, suckling a child and leaving it."

About taking food from the hands it is said in Mūlāchāra Anagara bhavana chapter.

अस्त्रं जदि वा पाणं खज्जं भोजं चलिज्जपेत्तं चा

परिलेहि उण सुद्धं भुजन्ति पाणि पत्तेसु ॥ ५४ ॥

Asanam jadi vī panam khajjam bhojam challijja pejjam va

Padi lehi una suddham bhunjanti pāni pattesuh. 54

" The saints eat from the hollow of their hands the pure food eatable, drinkable, tastable, lickable etc., after properly seeing it."

Thus the Jain scriptures prove that the conduct followed by Goutama Buddha while he was a naked monk was nothing but the conduct of a naked Jain Saint.

From the Pali scriptures of the 1st century A.D. at Ceylon it is evident that Goutama Buddha in his 35th year i.e., 6 years after he left his home preached his sermon on the middle path.

Buddha Charya Page 23 (referring to Samyutta Nikāya 55.2.1 and Vinaya Mahāvagga) says :—

“ I heard thus ” once the Exalted One was walking in the forest Risipattana of Benares. There he addressed Pancha Viriya monks thus :—“ O monks, the saints should not serve these two extremes :—First is this : to be addicted to sense-enjoyments, a path served by savages and fit for the low and vulgar village people and full of misuses ; the second is this :—to give pain to body, full of misuses, served by non-learned and miserable monks, leaving these two extremes Tathagata has searched after the middle path, which gives right view and produces Knowledge. It is for peace, discrimination, full knowledge and Nirvana. That middle path is the eight-fold path of liberation, right view etc.

This was the first sermon of the Buddha. It shows that nakedness and all other sufferings along with it were either considered by him to be difficult or unnecessary and therefore He proclaimed a path which was neither difficult nor easy. He, who is not a follower of the Nirgrantha, may say that Goutama Buddha, thinking the conduct of nakedness to be difficult and unnecessary, ordered his monks to put on necessary clothes ; while a follower of the Nirgrantha cult, who has belief that the natural condition of the body is necessary for a saint for the success of Self concentration. It is why Lord Mahavira and His predecessors followed it. It is a help in austerities. No difficulty will be felt by one who has practised it. Natural bliss can be enjoyed only by deep self-absorption. Goutama found it difficult for him and he thought it better to adopt the middle path of Sravakas or laymen. The rules of conduct which are applicable to the Brahmachari sravakas were followed by him and preached to others.

According to the Digambar Jain scriptures, a Brahmachari Sravaka of the 7th stage can have two or three or necessary clothes, can dine where he is invited, can sleep on simple cots etc. This sort of conduct was adopted and preached by Goutam Buddha. I saw this sort of practical conduct among the Buddhist monks of Ceylon. According to Digambar Jain scriptures the middle path has eleven stages. One who is on the last stage has a loin cloth only on the body. A layman in 11th stage while keeping one short cloth and one loin cloth is called a Ksullaka and one who has only one loin cloth is called an ailaka. They do not accept invitations, but go out for alms like the saints. Leaving this controversial point whether Goutama found the conduct of nakedness unnecessary or difficult, it is proved from the Pali books that He preached to monks to have necessary clothings and this conduct very aptly agrees with that of the Swetambar Jain Saints of India, who also maintain that there is no necessity for putting aside all the clothes for a monk in his efforts for nirvana. Perhaps this might have been the idea of Goutam also in adopting the easy mode. Buddhist monks take food once a day, before twelve noon, do not eat at night nor at improper time, nor break bows of trees and stay at one place in rainy season. All these rules of conduct are the same as those of a Jain Saint.

The internal philosophy of self is the same in Jainism and Buddhism as has been described in the previous chapters, only the external conduct of the Buddhists does not agree with that of the Digambar Jain Saints while it agrees mostly with that of Svetambar Jain saints. As the Svetambar saints keep pots to collect alms, so the Buddhist monks do. They eat by alms as well as by invitations, while the Svetambar saints do not accept invitations. Their accepting invitations agrees with that of the Digambar Jain Brahmachari sravaks of 7th degree. While Buddhist monks use vehicles and trains for journey like the Digambar Jain Brahmacharis, the Svetambar Jain monks do not use any vehicle, but walk on foot.

As regards the mode of concentration, there does not seem to be any difference between the Jain and Buddhist saints.

IDOL WORSHIP AMONG THE JAINS AND THE BUDDHISTS.

The idols of Buddha resemble the Jain images as regards the contemplative mode. While Digambara Jain images are quite naked in standing Kāyotsarga or sitting Padmásana or half padmasana and the Svetambar ones are in the same position, but with the sign of a loin cloth, the Buddha images have generally two clothes one under the waist and another upon the shoulders. The position is the same standing or sitting ; some images have their hands like the Jain ones, some have one hand on the lap and one on the breast, or one or both the hands on legs, or in standing posture one hand lying down and one hand raised as if in preaching. Buddha images are constructed in lying posture also in the condition of Goutama Buddha in his last moments just before attaining nirvana. which is a special feature with them. I had occasion to see Buddha images and temples at Ellora, Ajanta, Sanchi, Benares, Nasik, Bombay, Taxila etc., in India and in some places in Ceylon. In India I found almost all the Buddhist images made of stone, while those found in Ceylon are made of stone and also of a particular kind of nice clay. Clay images are constructed very nicely and with different colours of the bodily limbs. Such beautiful images are not seen in India. Here their images made of stone are generally of one colour like those of Jain images.

The Buddhist images seen by me at Kandy, Anuradhapura, Dambal, Kelaniya and Colombo at Ceylon are very meditative and attractive. They are placed on high plat-forms in the same way as in Jain temples. I saw in Ceylon the Buddhists worshipping their images just like the Jains worship their images. They make obeisance, bow and pray like the Jains and use generally flowers for worship and burn incense and light candles. Everything is put in front of the images nothing is put over them. Among some Digambar Jains and mostly among the Svetambar Jains, the mode of worship has considerably changed. They put flower etc., over the images and some cover them with flowers altogether. The Svetambar Jains even decorate their images with ornaments etc. There is no such decoration for the Buddhist images. They keep them very clean. Among the Digambar Jains of Northern India called the Tera Panthis—the images are kept more clean ; they do not put flowers etc., over them. The expression of unattachment is thereby properly kept. I attended in Ceylon two great Buddhist fairs, one on the birth-day of Buddha or Vaisakha sudi 14, and the other on Jetha Sudi 14, commemorating the day of the landing in Ceylon of Asoka's son Mihinda. I saw thousands of men and women bare-footed paying hearty homage to their images like the Jains. There was simplicity in the women, who were seen going on pilgrimage with pure flowers etc. If any one asked them where they were going, they would answer that they were going for Vandana or paying homage. As it is customary for the Jains to bathe their images daily, this custom was not found prevalent among the Buddhists. In many places, they put glasses before the images, to prevent dust. I did not see uncleanliness, or wetness in their shrines.

EACH SOUL IS RESPONSIBLE FOR ITS ADVANCEMENT.

The Jains and the Buddhists both believe that no God can give us pleasure or pain, or get us liberation. One can be liberated by one's own efforts.

"The Doctrine of the Buddha" by Grimm Page 29
"Liberation from suffering cannot be realized through any kind of grace especially not by the help of some personal God, but exclusively by our own strength and by personal action."

Just as the Jains worship the images of the worshipful Arhats and the perfect Siddhas or their meditative images for the sake of purification of their thoughts, so the Buddhists have the similar practice of the worship of Buddhas and their images.

The Jaina Scriptures Say :—

1. Samādhi Sataka.

नयत्यात्मानमात्मैव जन्म निर्वाणं मेव चा ।

गुरुरुत्मात्मनस्तस्माकास्योऽस्ति परमार्थतः ॥ ७५ ॥

2. Purusārtha Siddhiupaya.

3. Stayambhu Stotra :—

"O non-attached Lord, you have no regard for your worship, ; O Lord devoid of enmity, neither you have any concern with your censure ; still when we remember your pure qualities, our minds become free from the dirt of sins."

All the compounds, molecules and created things are destructible :—

The Jains and the Buddhists both believe that the compound or created things or worldly conditions are destructible and fleeting.

"The Doctrine of the Buddha" by Grimm.

The last words of Goutam Buddha were :—

" Well ! monks, I speak to you, all the _created things have the nature of decay ; perform (life-object) carefully. These are the last words of the Thathâgata."

Buddha Charya P. 518 Chanda Sutta (S.N. 45-2-3).

On hearing of the death of Sariputra, Goutam Buddha says :—" Anand ! That which is created is all to be destroyed. It is impossible to check its destruction. Therefore, O Anand, make itself an island, make itself a refuge, walk, having no other shelter."

The Jain scriptures say the same thing :—

Jnânârnava says :—

जाननापि न जानासि प्रह कोऽय मनौषधः ॥ १४-२ ॥

Vastu jâtamidam mudha prati-ksana vinaśvaram,

" Association with the dear ones is like a city in the sky ; youth and riches are like a group of clouds ;

Relatives, sons and bodies etc. are like lightning.

THE UNIVERSE IS WITHOUT BEGINNING AND END.

The Jains and Buddhists both agree that this universe is without beginning and end and that no personal God is its creator. Vide "The Doctrine of the Buddha" by Grimm. Page 90. "Without beginning or end, ye monks, is this round of re-birth (samsara). There cannot be discerned a first beginning of beings who, sunk in ignorance and bound by thirst ceaselessly transmigrating again and again run to a new birth. Five, in number, Sariputra, are the fates that may befall after death: namely, the passage into hell-world, the animal kingdom, the realm of Preta, the world of men and the abodes of Gods."

Page 94. "Among these five fates ultimately only the last one, the abode in heaven-world, could be desirable. But according to the Buddha, this one is just as much subject to the great law of transmigration, as the abode in the four other ones."

Page 96. "Running down from birth to death, from death to birth, you have shed on this long way truly more tears than water is contained within the four great oceans."

Page 106. How can human insight bear the thought of a god who ought to be the sum of infinite goodness, wisdom and power, creating beings whom he knows to be condemned in an over-whelming majority to eternal damnation to hell. What would we think of a father who would send his child into the world, knowing for certain that it would later on commit "voluntarily" a crime that would be punished with life-long imprisonment. Is it conceivable that the same God who orders men to overlook and to forgive every offence, acts himself in quite a different manner, inflicting eternal punishment even after death."

Note. The Jain scriptures also teach the same thing that this universe is eternal and no God is the creator of it.

Jnândarâjava says :—

अनादि निधनः सोऽयं सर्वं सिद्धोप्यनभारः ।

भवीश्वरोऽपि जीवादिपदार्थैः संसूतो भूसम् ॥ ४-११ ॥

Anâdi nidhanah so yam svayam siddho pya naśvarah Aniśvarapi jivādipadârthaś sambhrito bhrisam 4/11

"This universe is without beginning and end, itself existing, eternal, without being created by God, and full of substances, soul, etc."

यज्ञैते जन्तवः सर्वे नानागतिषु संस्थिताः ।

उत्पद्यन्ते विपद्यन्ते अर्मपाश वदांगताः ॥ ५-११ ॥

*Yatraite jantavah sarve nânâgatisusansthitâh
Utpadyante vipadyante, karma-pâsa vasamgatâk* 6/11

"Here the beings existing in different conditions of existence take birth and die under the influence of karmic nets."

Note. The Jain scriptures speak of four conditions of existence namely hell, sub-human, human and celestial. Preta or Ghost, etc. counted as fifth fate in Buddhism is included in the celestials. The Ghosts etc. have abode in the under-neath part of the universe, while the heavenly celestials live in the upper part. So there is no real difference if the Pretas are counted as separate.

Mūlāchāra says :—

लोभो अकिट्ठिमो खलु अणाशिहणो सहाव निष्पण्णो ।
जीवाजीवेहि भुडो निच्छो तालरुखे संताणो ॥ १२२-८ ॥

Loô akittimo khalu andi nihâno sahâva nippanno, Jivâjivehim bhudo nichcho tâla rukke santhâno 122/8

"This universe is verily uncreated, without beginning or end, existing by nature, eternal, having figure like a palm tree and is full of souls and non-souls."

तथानु हवंति जीवा सकम्मणिवसियं सुहं दुःखम् ।
जम्मणमरण पुणव्यव मञ्जते भवसायर भीमे ॥ २५-८ ॥

*Tatthanu havanti jivâ sakam'na nivvattiyam saham

Jammana marana punabbhava mananta bhavasâyare bhime 25/8.*

"There the beings experience pleasure, pain, birth, death, re-birth owing to the results of their own karmas in this fearful and endless world-ocean."

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SYADVADA OR MANY-SIDEDNESS.

In the old Pali scriptures the doctrine of Syadvāda is found in many statements, just as it is existing in the Jain scriptures. One substance has many controversial natures which are viewed and stated from different points of view. It is for that reason that a substance is called Anekānta or having many natures at a time, just as a young man has many relations at one time. He is son with reference to his father, he is father with reference to his son, he is uncle with reference to his nephew, he is nephew with reference to his uncle. Thus a man can have many relations from different aspects at one and the same time. But they cannot be described by one word at one and the same time. When one relation will be described, others cannot be described although they are present there. In order to state a fact in its correct stand-point, the doctrine of Syadvāda is meant. Syāt means, "from some stand-point," Vāda means "to state," thus Syadvāda means, "to say a thing from some stand-point."

Let us give an example. A man dies and is born as a horse. Now the being in the horse is the same as was in the man as well as not the same as it was in the man.

Both statements are controversial, but they are correct from both the different stand-points. If we look to the real being, then the same being which was in human condition has now its existence as a horse, but if we look with reference to change of condition, we must say that the condition of horse is quite separate from that of man. Thus we may say that from some points of view they are the same, but from another point of view they are not the same. Both the statements are correct.

Buddhistic literature states the thing in the same way.

"The Doctrine of the Buddha" by George Grimm.

P. 104. "There a reasonable man reflects thus ; if some of these dear recluses and Brahmans teach personal continuance I cannot see it, and if other dear recluses and Brahmans teach there is no personal duration, neither do I perceive this. But if, without having seen or perceived it, I now decide in favour of one of these doctrines and say :—This one is only true and the other teaching is foolish ; then this would not be well done. For we may easily trust to some thing that is hollow and empty and wrong, and we may fail to trust to some thing that is right and true and real. And thus who seeks for truth, if he is a reasonable man, will not draw readily the one-sided conclusion : 'only this opinion is true, and the other opinion is foolish ', but to gain insight into these statements, it is of importance to regard their content (M. N. I. P. 420 II. P. 270).

The Jain Saint Kunda Kunda Acharya says in Panchástikaya the same thing.

मणुसत्तनेऽनाथो देही देवो हवेदि इदरो वा ।

उभयस्त जीवं भावो न पास्सदि न जायदे अण्णो ॥ १७ ॥

Manusatthayena nattho dehi devo havedi idaro vā,

Ubbayatta jīva bhāvo na pāssadi na jāyade anno 17

"This being is destroyed with reference to human condition, and is born a celestial or another, but in both the existences, the soul-substance is the same, it is neither destroyed nor newly born."

Thus from the point of change of condition they are different; but from the point of the real being, the yare the same.

SAINTS CALMLY ENDURE SUFFERINGS.

As the Jain Saints are required to endure twenty-two sufferings calmly, so the Buddhist literature also speaks on the point for the Buddhist monks.

"The Doctrine of the Buddha" by George Grimm.

Page 325. This is a monk who bears cold and heat, hunger and thirst, wind and rain, mosquitoes, wasps, vexing crawling beings, malicious and spiteful words, painful feelings of the body striking him, violent cutting, piercing, disagreeable, tedious, life endangering, he patiently endures. He is entirely free from greed, hate and delusion, disjoined from mis-conduct, sacrifice and gifts, service and greetings, he deserves as the holiest state in the world.

" Those who cause me pain and those who cause me pleasure, towards all of them I behave in the same way ; affection and hate I know not, in joy and sorrow, I remain unmoved : in honour and dishonour, everywhere I am the same. This is the perfection of my equanimity." (Charujāpitaka III 15).

The Jain saint is required to endure twenty-two sufferings as is said in Tattvārtha sutra —

" With a view not to fall from the Path of liberation and to shed off karmas what one patiently endures are pariṣahas. They are twenty-two and are as follow :—
 (1) Hunger (2) thirst (3) cold (4) heat (5) mosquitoes etc., (6) nakedness (7) dissatisfaction (8) woman (9) walking (10) sitting (11) sleeping (12) malicious words (13) beating (14) begging (15) not gaining (16) disease (17) touch with thorny shrubs (18) dirt (19) honour dishonour (20) knowledge (21) ignorance (22) disbelief.

The Jain Saints are required to observe equanimity.

Sāra Samuchchaya says :—

"One who is unmoved by censure and praise, patient, unattached even to his body, has control over senses, has conquered anger and has vanquished the great warrior greed, devoid of affection, and hatred, anxious of getting perfection, always engaged in pursuit of knowledge, for ever steadfast in passionlessness—such (a saint) comes to the court-yard of his home, seeing him, he who has malice through delusion is devoid of conduct. One who equally treats enemy and friend, is unmoved by honour and dishonour, always the same in gain or loss, equally sees a clay-piece and gold, has pure meditation of right belief, engaged in service of Knowledge, well disposed to pursuit of conduct, and anxious of having eternal bliss—such a saint—he who seeing him does not honour him has a wicked conscience. He totally destroys his useful human birth, making it unprofitable."

LAYMEN CANNOT GET NIRVANA.

As long as home life is not abandoned, and saint life is not adopted in order to have pure self concentration, so long one cannot have Nirvāna, cannot end the miseries of the world. This fact is emphasized in the Digambar Jain Scriptures and also in the Buddhist literature.

"The Doctrine of the Buddha" by George Grimm.

Page 399. "There is no house-holder whatever, O Vachha, who, not having left off house-hold ties, upon the dissolution of the body, makes an end of suffering." (M. I. P. 483).

Page 416. "Cramped and confined is house-hold life, a den of dirt. But the homeless life is as the open air of heaven. It is hard to live the holy life in all its perfection and purity while bound to home. Let me go forth to homelessness." (M. I. P. 267).

The Jain book Jnānārnava says:—

न प्रमाद जयं कर्तुं धीर्घनैरपि पार्यते ।

महा व्यसन संकीर्णे ग्राहवासेऽति निन्दिते ॥ ९ ॥

शक्यते न वशीकर्तुं ग्रहिभिर्भपलं मनः ।

"Even the wise men cannot conquer the passions in house-hold life which is censurable and is full of many calamities. This wavering mind cannot be controlled by the house-holders, therefore the home life has been abandoned by the gentlemen for bringing peace to the mind."

SAINTS SHOULD MEDITATE IN SOLITARY PLACES.

"The Doctrine of the 'Buddha'" by George Grimm.

Page 350. "Whoso once has experienced this state within himself, is lost to the turmoil of the world,

WHY JAINISM AND BUDDHISM ARE THE SAME ? 303

even if he again awakes to it: " His mind inclines to solitude, bends towards solitude, sinks itself in solitude, to him this is highest blessedness." (M. I. P. 306)

SACRED BOOKS OF THE EAST. VOL. X. .

Dhammapada Ch. XXI.

Page 305. " He alone, who, without ceasing, practises the duty of sitting alone, sleeping alone, he subdues himself, with rejoice in the destruction of all desires alone, as if living in a forest."

THE JAIN SCRIPTURES ALSO DESCRIBE THE BEAUTY OF SOLITARINESS.

अभवचित्त विक्षेप पकांते तत्त्व संस्थितः ।
अभ्यास्येदभियोगेन योगीतत्त्वं विज्ञात्मनः ॥ ३६ ॥

Abhavachchitta viksepaekante tattva sansthitih, Abhyasyedabhiyogen yogi tattram nijatmanah

" A meditating saint should practise contemplation of one's own self being steadfast in the true principle with efforts in a solitary place where the mind may not be disturbed.

Jnánárñava says :—

रागादि बागुराजालं निहत्याचिन्त्य विक्रमः ।
स्थानमाभयते धन्यो विविक्तं ध्यान सिद्धये ॥ २-२७ ॥

Rágādi bágurájálam nikritya chintya vikramah, Sthána māsrayate dhanyo viviktam dhyana siddhaé 2/27

"A qualified saint having unthinkable valour, throwing away the net-work of attachment etc. takes shelter in a solitary place for success in self-concentration."

Those who want to arrive at Truth should study the old literature of Jainism and Buddhism. I believe that they will have to conclude that the philosophy of both the systems is one and the same. One who wishes freedom from miseries must follow the eight-fold path of Buddhism or the three-fold path of Jainism. The teaching of both is to be dependent on one's own self, and to practise self-concentration with firm belief and knowledge in order to gain Liberation or Nirvāna.

The Jains and the Buddhists should mutually understand each other's literature and be friendly knowing that their philosophies have emanated from one COMMON SOURCE.
